JERUSALEM (SEPT. 17) - A general strike paralyzed the Israeli-occupied territories and east Jerusalem Monday as the military moved to prevent protests after a Palestinian was shot dead by troops in the Gaza Strip.

The strike was called by the Unified Leadership of the Palestinian uprising in the territories and the Moslem fundamentalist group Hamas, to mark the eighth anniversary of the Sabra and Shatila refugee camp massacres in Beirut.

Shops were closed and public transport was at a standstill, while most of the 110,000 Palestinians who commute to work in Israel stayed at home, Israeli and Palestinian sources said.

The Israeli army maintained its curfew on the Gaza Strip town of Rafah and the nearby Chaboura refugee camp, where the 23-year-old Palestinian was shot dead Sunday in a gunbattle between troops and a group of masked assailants.

Allah Eddine Saed Shahin was the first Palestinian killed by Israeli gunfire in the Strip for several months. A second Palestinian was wounded but escaped.

A total of 707 Palestinians have now been shot dead by Israeli troops or settlers since the uprising erupted in December 1987, according to an unofficial toll compiled by Agence France-Presse from Palestinian sources.

But the uprising has eased in recent weeks, with world attention focused on the Gulf crisis.

Military officials said three Palestinians were sentenced to life imprisonment Sunday for the murder of several fellow Arabs accused of collaborating with Israeli authorities.

A military court in Nablus also sentenced a fourth Palestinian to life for the murder of a fellow Arab detainee in the West Bank town's prison.

ATHENS (SEPT. 17) - Strikes in banks, power stations, telecommunications and tranportation continued Monday to disrupt economic activity in Greece, despite pleas for dialogue from Prime Minister Constantin Mitsotakis.

The strikes, over proposed social security reform legislation, peaked Wednesday and Thursday with a general strike involving more than two million employees in the public and private sectors.

The government plans to put the reform legislation before Parliament Tuesday. Strike leaders, who met Sunday with Economy Minister Georgios Souflias, continued to demand the legislation be shelved.

Antonis Antypas, an executive with the Federation of Bank Employees, called on the government and unions to work out new legislation together.

Strike action involving up to 95 percent of bank employees entered its ninth day Monday. According to Kerdos, an economic daily, the bank strike is costing the economy about 40 billion drachmas (almost 90 million dollars) daily.

Cuts in electricity affecting the most densely populated sections of Athens continued over the weekend. Hundreds of people trapped in elevators were rescued by emergency services, while inoperative traffic signals clogged traffic Sunday.

However, work resumed at airports and air transport unions have not yet decided whether to join another mid-week general strike.

LONDON (SEPT. 17) - International marketing, distribution and insurance company Inchcape turned in a 5.2 percent profits improvement for first half 1990 here Monday.

Pre-tax profit for the period was 92.3 million pounds (175 million dollars, against 87.7 million (167 million) in first half 1989.

The company, a large part of whose business is accounted for by the distribution of Japanese Toyota automobiles in Britain, Greece, the Far East, and South East Asia, turned over 1.617 billion pounds (3.072 billion dollars) in the period, up 11.6 percent on first half 1989 turnover.

Despite growing evidence of an an auto-sales downturn, particularly in Britain and Europe, the company said that Toyota motor distribution continues to be one of the great strengths in the group.

Operating profit from motor sales was up 10 percent at 60.3 million pounds (114.5 million dollars).

Earnings per share were 14 pence against 13.7 pence, and interim dividend 4.8 pence, 6.7 percent up on the 1989 payment.

Although the figures conformed to market expectations, shares in the company were down six pence at 224 pence after a cautious interim statement by chairman and chief executive George Turnbull.

Robert Carpenter of W.I. Carr brokers here said Inchcape's performance was "quite good given difficult current conditions."

The fact that it has managed to continue profits growth, particularly in the motor sector, showed that they are "making the best of a difficult job."

AMMAN (SEPT. 17) - King Hussein has met two radical Palestinian leaders, George Habash and Nayef Hawatmeh, for the first time since the PLO was driven out of Jordan 20 years ago, Palestinian sources said here Monday.

They said the king met separately overnight Sunday with Mr. Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), and Mr. Nawatmeh, who leads the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP).

The two men, who are based in Syria but have backed Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in the Gulf crisis, have been here since Friday for an Arab conference supporting Baghdad against the U.S.-led military build-up in the Gulf.

The PFLP and DFLP sources said the talks with King Hussein, described as cordial, centred on the foreign intervention in the region and the need for an Arab solution to the crisis. Jordan-Palestinian relations were also discussed.

Jordan has not announced the meetings with the Palestinian figures, who lead two of the three main factions in the Palestine Liberation Organisation.

They were on official visits to Jordan for the first time since September 1970 when Jordanian troops drove out the PLO in 10 days of battle after Palestinian guerrillas assumed control of several key areas of the country.

The Conference of Popular Arab Forces, organised by Jordanian political groups and trade unions and due to close later Monday, brought together some 120 delegates from 10 Arab countries.

LONDON (SEPT. 17) - Iraqi soldiers have eaten two-thirds of the edible species at the Kuwait Cty zoo, a British animal protection group said here Monday.

Victor Watkins of the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA) said that antelope and deer had topped the list, but that the Iraqi occupation troops in all had devoured "70 per cent of the edible animals" at the zoo.

Mr. Watkins said he had had reports in recent days that some of the rarest species had been taken to Baghdad.

Forty zookeepers had worked at the complex but most were Asians and all fled after the Iraqi invasion and annexation of Kuwait last month, he said.

He said the zoo housed 208 mammals, 493 birds and 34 reptiles, but now "they have no food, no water and they likely will be dying".

The WSPA said it was trying to contact Iraqi veterinarians through Jordanian and Saudi animal protection agencies but so far had had no response.

August, taking the increase during the previous 12 months to 6.2 percent and so far this year to three percent, official figures showed on Monday.

LONDON (SEPT. 17) - The British Bovis company, which is a subsidiary of the P and O shipping company, said on Monday that it had paid 27.5 million pounds (52 million dollars) to buy the U.S. McDevitt and Street construction company.

Under the agreement, profits will be shared between the two parent firms for three years.

For Bovis and P and O the purchase is part of a strategy to gain market share in the United States.

McDevitt and Street does business in the south of the country and employs about 1,600 people, P and O said. It has orders worth about 913 million dollars.

DAR ES SALAAM (SEPT. 17) - Fires have devastated vast tracts of forest and scrubland in Tanzanian and Kenyan national parks, forestry officials said Monday.

Vast tracts of woodlands have been destroyed on Mount Meru, Africa's third highest mountain, near Tanzania's northern border with Kenya, officials said.

Last week bush fires swept across nearby Tsavo national park, in southern Kenya, destroying thousands of acres of vegetation and scaring away thousands of animals, press reports in Nairobi said. The blaze burned out a few metres (yards) from Jipe Safari Lodge on Friday.

Plumes of smoke were spotted around Mount Meru early Sunday, and strong winds soon spread the blaze across the thickly-wooded slopes.

A regional forestry officer in Arusha contacted by telephone said vast tracts of forest had been razed. Thick smoke was visible from Arusha, some 20 kilometres (12 miles) from the fire, whose cause was unknown, he said.

Arusha officials feared water shortages as the blaze could cut the town off from water sources on the mountain, 4,566 metres (14,980 feet) high.

PRAGUE (SEPT. 17) - President Vaclav Havel on Monday warned that growing tensions between Czechs and Slovaks were threatening Czechoslovakia's future and causing growing concern abroad.

"Reunified Europe will not open its door to Czechoslovakia if we cannot guarantee the integrity of the state," he told the parliament.

A rising tide of Slovak nationalism has led the Slovak government in Bratislava to appoint a minister of international relations, to the dismay of the authorities in Prague, which is the national capital and the Czech republic's capital.

There have also been increasing calls from Slovakia for a constitutional amendment spelling out the right to independence of the two federated republics.

In his address, Mr. Havel rejected such an amendment, arguing that no such article existed even in the United States constitution.

"It would reinforce the impression of fragility and the provisional nature of our common state," he said.

"Our inability to guarantee the integrity of our state is causing growing embarrassment in international political circles" and increasing "reticence" among investors, he said.

Mr. Havel criticized Czechs for "taking over whatever is Czechoslovak" and "viewing Slovaks with paternalistic eyes."

He noted that Slovaks had seen their national aspirations repeatedly dashed this century.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 17) - Landslides triggered by torrential rains struck two villages in the remote Himalayan mountain state of Sikkim, burying 25 people alive, the Press Trust of India (PTI) reported Monday.

The agency in a report from the Sikkimese capital of Gangtok said almost an entire mountainside had smashed into the two villages about five kilometers (three miles) from Gangtok, burying livestock, houses and their occupants.

Eight bodies, mostly those of women and children, had so far been dug out of the rock and mud by police and villagers, PTI said without giving further details.

JAMMU, India (SEPT. 17) - Nine people, including five suspected Moslem militants, were killed Monday in violence linked to the separatist campaign in India's northern state of Kashmir, officials said here.

Border Security Force personnel shot dead the five suspected militants while they were trying to cross into Kashmir from Pakistan in the Kupwara and Handwara sectors of the frontier, the official said.

Militants gunned down four civilians suspected of being police informers in different parts of the valley, the spokesman said without giving details.

Another 11 people were injured, seven of them paramilitary Central Reserve Police troopers, in scattered incidents throughout the Kashmir valley, including the summer capital of Srinagar, when militants hurled grenades and bombs at security pickets and the troopers retaliated.

Five government-owned buildings and three private houses were damaged in bomb explosions attributed to the militants, the official said.

The company said that profits were 66.6 million pounds (126 million dollars) instead of 93.2 million pounds during the first half of 1989.

The interim dividend was held unchanged at 10p.

Analysts had expected profits to total about 68 million pounds.

The company warned that profits in the second half of the year were likely to fall, and that defensive measures had been taken.

LINZ, AUSTRIA (SEPT. 17) - The state prosecutor's office here Monday charged Austrian ex-chancellor Fred Sinowatz with abuse of power in connection with illegal arms deliveries to Iran.

The move came during the trial of managers of state-owned Noricum company, which illegally sold arms to Iran in the 1980s.

During the trial, the former social democratic chancellor and two of his ministers, Karl Blecha and Leopold Gratz, were accused of having been informed about the weapon deals.

The Austrian constitution bans exporting arms to countries in a state of war. Iran and Iraq fought the Gulf war from 1980 to 1988.

PARIS (SEPT. 17) - Henri Martre, chairman of Aerospatiale, one of the major partners in Airbus Industrie, Monday angrily rejected U.S. charges that the Airbus programme could not survive without European government subsidies.

Reacting to a recent U.S. study that the Airbus programme had received eight billion dollars in support over the past 20 years, Martre reversed the allegations.

U.S. plane manufacturers got 70 per cent of their turnover from public-sector orders, he said. The U.S. study had looked ''at the splinter in the eye of Airbus but overlooked the plank in the eye of American industry'', Martre said.

He said the European governments' support for Airbus were not subsidies, but were instead up-front grants which were to be repaid. In the new Airbus programmes, this type of financing was being used less and less, Martre said.

BRUSSELS (SEPT. 17) - Unemployment in the European Economic Community (EEC) stagnated in the five months before the Gulf crisis, which analysts expect to depress economic indicators, according to official figures released Monday.

Joblessness, in seasonally adjusted terms, affected 8.6 per cent of the workforce in July -- a figure that has been unchanged since March, according to the EEC's official statistics agency Eurostat.

Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait sent a tremor through the world oil markets forcing up the price of crude for energy-hungry countries.

Analysts say that if prices remain high, there will inevitably be inflationary pressure in western Europe, accompanied by low growth or even a recession.

Eurostat said unemployment decreased only in Spain (by 0.4 per cent of a percentage point) and in Portugal (0.1 per cent), but remained stable or slightly increased in most other member states.

In the case of Belgium and Britain, however, the increases "were relatively important," at 0.2 per cent, the agency said.

Unemployment in the EEC in the 1980s peaked at 10.8 per cent of the workforce in 1985. The best declines were in 1988 and in 1989.

AMMAN (SEPT. 17) - A predominantly leftist gathering representing 120 political groups and organisations in nine Arab states ended a three-day meeting here Monday with a call on Arab masses to prepare for ''a prolonged and bitter struggle'' against foreign intervention in the Gulf.

A closing statement of the conference said the American-led action in the Gulf was designed to ''impose a direct occupation of the region through military alliances aimed at tearing the Arabs apart and destroying their aspirations for unity and development''.

''Washington has exploited the current decline of the socialist camp (eastern Europe and the Ussr), to act as the world's policeman and to impose its will on the peoples by using force as it did in Panama and Grenada,'' the statement said.

It called on Arabs to raise their voices and ''condemn the American invasion of the Gulf and the Arabian Peninsula and break the blockade imposed on Iraq''.

The conference warned that the U.S.-led western military buildup in the Gulf threatens the breakout of ''a devastating colonialist war in the Middle East, the Gulf and the Arabian Peninsula''.

The gathering groups representatives of political parties or countries which opposed last month's Cairo summit resolutions calling for the deployment of foreign forces alongside Arab troops to confront Iraq. These include politicians from Jordan, Iraq, Tunisia, Algeria, Morocco, Libya, Lebanon, Yemen, Syria, Sudan and the Palestine Liberation Organisation.

Among the leading figures who attended the conference are George Habash, leader of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and Nayef Hawatmeh leader of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, former Syrian President Amin Hafez, Tunisian nationalist Mohammad Balhaj Omar and Jordanian president of professional associations Mamdouh Abbadi.

The conference expressed commitment to an Arab solution for the Kuwaiti problem ''through political and democratic means'' and underlined the need for linking the Gulf crisis to a solution of the Palestinian problem, and the Israeli occupation of the West Bank, Gaza Strip, the Golan Heights, Jerusalem and south Lebanon.

The conference declared its solidarity and support for all Arab states that stood in favour of an Arab solution to the Gulf crisis.

Abbadi told reporters that the conference has decided to symbolically break the blockade against Iraq by sending a shipload of food and medicine from a Moroccan port to Iraq.

AMMAN (SEPT. 17) - Private groups in 11 Arab countries are to charter a boat carrying women and children that will try to penetrate a United Nations embargo and deliver a symbolic shipment of food to Iraq.

The decision was taken here at a Conference of Popular Arab Forces to support Iraq in the current Gulf crisis, according to organizer Mamdouh al-Abbadi.

He said the measure would be officially announced at the closing session of the three-day meeting later Monday.

The vessel will leave next month from a North African port and will call at several European cities on the Mediterranean before heading for Iraq, Mr. Abbadi said.

Warships from the United States and several Western countries are currently patrolling the Gulf region under orders to use force if necessary to stop ships carrying supplies for Iraq, including food.

The embargo was approved by the U.N. Security Council on August 6 to protest the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait four days earlier.

Mr. Abbadi said the Congress had decided to establish a secretariat here to coordinate the activities of "popular organization and Arab political parties" backing Iraq in its current stand-off with the West and the Soviet Union.

"This decision was taken because of the failure of Arab leaders to resist foreign armed intervention in the Gulf," he said.

He said the secretariat was also being created in response to the planned transfer of Arab League headquarters from Tunis to Cairo, approved by 12 of the League's 21 members at a ministerial meeting in Egypt's capital September 10.

The 12 nations backing the move had all strongly condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 17) - Air-India has so far flown back home 45,000 stranded Indians from Amman and Dubai in one of the world's biggest air exercise since the Berlin airlift, the airlines chief executive said Monday.

Chairman Subhash Gupte said the airline had operated 184 special flights from Amman to Bombay directly or through Dubai since August 13, when the first humanitarian shuttle was put into operation to evacuate Indians caught in upheavels of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

There were over 172,000 Indians in Kuwait before the occupation. The official said the airlift will continue ''as long as there are Indians wanting to return home.''

TEGUCIGALPA (SEPT. 17) - At least 25 children were killed when the bus in which they were riding veered off the road and plunged into a river northwest of the capital, authorities said.

Some reports said as many as 35 people were aboard the bus, but there was no confirmation of the number of passengers. Local residents said one family lost four children in the accident.

The accident occurred in the region of Cantarranas, some 30 kilomters (18 miles) northwest of Tegucigalpa, as the bus was carrying students, age four to 10 years, back to the community of Naranjal from a field trip through the surrounding countryside.

The school's U.S. headmistress -- who was not identified -- was driving the bus when it went over the edge of a rustic bridge and fell into the Choluteca River and was dragged downstream by the strong current.

By late Sunday, rescue workers had recovered the bodies of at least 25 children. The search for bodies was continuing Monday.

President Rafael Callejas issued a statement expressing sympathy over the tragedy.

KUALA LUMPUR (SEPT. 17) - Malaysia will seek restoration of Penang as a base port for the Far East Freight Conference (FEFC), Transport Minister Ling Liong Sik said Monday.

Speaking in northern Penang state, Mr. Ling said the ministry would vigorously pursue the matter with FEFC, a Europe-based international shipping consortium which downgraded the port of Penang to a feeder port this year.

He said the ministry would seek to get FEFC to revert to its 1984 decision recognising Penang port as a base port.

The FEFC is a major consortium of shippers plying between Europe and the Far East. The FEFC decision earlier this year to downgrade the status of Penang resulted in additional charges incurred by exporters here using their freight service.

All west-bound goods in containers were charged additional handling charges of between 225 U.S. dollars and 400 U.S. dollars each and the containers were transhipped through Singapore, port officials said.

LIBREVILLE (SEPT. 17) - Regional authorities in southern Gabon called for army intervention when gangs of youths began looting stores in Tchibanga late on Sunday as confusion surrounded the first round of voting in the country's first multi-party poll in a quarter of a century

The demonstrators were apparently angered that election officials had suspended voting because of a lack of voting papers in the town's seven polling booths.

They spread through the streets on a spree of stealing and arson and smashed doors and windows at the offices of President Omar Bongo's ruling party. The regional governor summoned opposition leaders and security officials, and it was agreed the army should intervene, witnesses reported Monday. There was no immediate word of casualties.

LONDON (SEPT. 17) - Britain is to expel two Iraqi military attaches, four embassy employees and 23 other Iraqis in reprisal for recent incidents in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, the government said here Monday.

Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd said in Brussels during a meeting with his European Community counterparts that the move was an act of solidarity with France and Italy, who have already ordered some Iraqi diplomats in their capitals to leave.

Hurd said the Iraqis may deport British diplomats in Baghdad in a reciprocal move.

The British Home Office said the 23 Iraqis not working at their embassy in London would be ordered out for security reasons.

The planned expulsions follow last week's raids by Iraqi troops on E.C. diplomatic missions in Kuwait, which was invaded by Iraq last month and later annexed.

TOKYO, Sept 17 (AFP) - Moody's Investors Service Inc. said Monday it was reviewing its credit ratings for three major Japanese banks, citing their low profitability and heavy exposure to the real-estate sector.

The review affects seven billion dollars in long-term debt of Mitsubishi Bank Ltd., Tokai Bank Ltd. and Long-Term Credit Bank of Japan Ltd. (LTCB), plus three subsidiaries in Australia and the Netherlands Antilles, it said.

The announcement by the Tokyo branch of the U.S. rating agency followed a similar move last month to downgrade its ratings for Dai-Ichi Kangyo Bank Ltd. and Fuji Bank Ltd. for almost identical reasons.

All five banks are among Japan's and the world's top 10 in terms of assets.

Moody's said the review of its "Aaa" rating for Mitsubishi, Japan's fifth-biggest bank, was due to its "weak core profitability and competitive position" and its "vulnerability to domestic asset quality deterioration."

The review will focus on "factors contributing to Mitsubishi's eroding profit performance" and "long-term prospects for maintaining a high value-added domestic banking franchise in an increasingly competitive environment.

"Moody's will also examine the bank's domestic asset quality at a time when Japanese interest rates have climbed rapidly and when inflated asset values are being pressured," it added, apparently referring to Japanese land prices.

The review of Nagoya-based Tokai Bank, the country's eighth-biggest with an "Aa-2" rating, was prompted by similar reasons and is "focussing on prospects for the bank's operating performance and on its relative competitiveness."

Other factors being examined are "the long-term effectiveness of its two-tier (Nagoya and Tokyo) domestic strategy" and the bank's asset quality, "especially its domestic real-estate loan portfolio and its overseas credits."

The review of LTCB, Japan's 10th-largest bank which also has a rating of "Aa-2 " will focus on the "long-term ability of LTCB to maintain stable earnings as a Japanese wholesale bank in a shrinking market," the agency said.

LONDON (SEPT. 17) - The Liberal Democrats opened their annual party congress in Blackpool Monday, determined to maintain their place as Britain's third political force.

An opinion poll published in The Guardian newspaper Monday showed the centrist party could draw eight per cent support in the next general election, well behind the opposition Labor which is tipped to win 50 per cent and the ruling Conservatives of Prime Miniter Margaret Thatcher with 37 per cent.

But there is the possibility that the Liberal Democrats could end up as power brokers if the elections result in a hung parliament.

The 1,800 delegates at Monday's opening adopted a radical constitutional reform program, including proportional elections, the elections of a second chamber of 100 members to replace the House of Lords, more devolution in repesentation for Scotland and Wales, and regional assemblies in England.

A pre-congress meeting this weekend also debated a motion that would separate church and state in England, where the Church of England has official status.

The six-day congress will aim to develop a platform for the forthcoming elections.

The Thatcher government, which was returned to power in the last elections in June, 1987, is required to call general elections by June, 1992.

PRETORIA (SEPT. 17) - Police have arrested fugitive right winger Piet "Skiet" Rudolph, the supposed mastermind behind a series of weapons thefts and bombings, Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok announced here Monday.

Mr. Rudolph, the 53-year-old deputy leader of the extreme right wing Boerestaat party has been on the run since April 13.

He disappeared after a raid on the South African Air Force headquarters which netted a large amount of weapons. Far right wing sypmathisers in the Air Force were suspected of helping the raiders.

Mr. Rudolph claimed responsibility for an attack in May that severely damaged Melrose House, the building where the Boer generals surrendered to the British on May 31, 1902 to end the second Anglo-Boer war and abandon the independence of the Boer Republics of Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

Mr. Vlok put a 50,000 price tag on his head on June 19 after he sent a video to the Afrikaans-daily Beeld exhorting police and soldiers to stage a coup.

He made a daring visit in person to the Johannesburg offices of the left-leaning Afrikaans weekly Vrye Weekblad last week to complain about an article that said he wanted to surrender.

Mr. Vlok said Mr. Rudolph was arrested at lunchtime Monday in central Pretoria in the passenger seat of a car. Police also impounded two .38 special revolvers and two other guns with ammunition.

Boerestaat Party leader Robert van Tonder urged the government to treat Mr. Rudolph as a political prisoner, and warned of trouble if he were tortured.

SINGAPORE (SEPT 17) - Singapore Petroleum Company (SPC) Monday issued 80 million shares for public subscription as part of its plan to get listed with the Stock Exchange of Singapore.

The 80 million shares with a par value of 50 Singapore cents (18 U.S.) were issued at 1.25 dollars (71 U.S. cents) each. They comprised 30 million new shares and 50 million existing shares held by Singapore Factory Development Ltd (SFDL), a wholly owned subsidary of the local DBS Bank, one of the republic's big four banks.

Announcing the move, the chairman of SPC, Tan Boon Teik, said the share offer represented about 25 per cent of the company's enlarged capital.

He said the net proceeds of the new shares, estimated to be about 36 million dollars (20.4 million U.S.) would be used to partly finance the construction of an oil terminal on the island of Pulau Sebarok.

Despite the Gulf crisis, Mr. Tan said the SPC directors decided to proceed with the public issue because oil and oil-related stocks had not been adversely affected and had seen "only modest declines" in their share prices compared to most other blue chip stocks.

Meanwhile, the government-owned DBS Bank in a statement said that it was disposing off 40,866,738 ordinary shares, representing 12.8 per cent of its stock, held by SFDL to local steelmaker, National Iron and Steel Mills Ltd, at the same rate.

SPC is principally engaged in oil refining, marketing distribution, trading of crude and petroleum products, third party processing and tanker transportation.

Besides the DBS stake, SPC is 31.5 per cent owned by local firm Oceanic Petroleum (Asia) and the rest by Japan's C. Itoh trading group.

FREETOWN (SEPT 17) - Twelve hundred Nigerian soldiers are due to leave the Sierra Leone capital Tuesday for Liberia to boost the firepower of West African troops trying to impose a ceasefire to end nine months of civil war .

About 600 Nigerian soldiers are already here and were to be joined by another 600 men late on Monday, according to African diplomats.

The reinforcements are being sent to Liberia in the wake of fierce fighting at the weekend between rebels of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) of Charles Taylor and the peace force composed of contingents from six countries of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

Port officials said the reinforcements would leave Tuesday for Monrovia aboard two merchant ships, "Tano River" and "River Oli".

African diplomats described the development "as a step up of military action".

They said the ECOWAS Monitoring Group (ECOMOG), as the peace force is officially known " can no longer remain sitting ducks to be taken shot at".

"They have actually forced us into the offensive," the diplomats said of the NPFL which has condemned the ECOMOG intervention and refused to join an interim government set up under ECOWAS auspices.

The diplomats said the goal of the West African peace force was to achieve "a quicker end to the conflict and the installation of the new interim government whose power would extend throughout the whole of Liberia before ECOMOG forces will be withdrawn."

(Elite Nigerian paratroopers packed by warplanes launched a large scale offensive against positions held by NPFL rebels on Sunday, a source close to the government in Lagos said.

The source said that members of the 82nd Paratroop division had been dropped behind the lines of the NPFL. Nigerian air force Jaguar, Mig 21 and Alpha planes and Puma and Super-Puma helicopters provided air cover by carrying out bombings. Ghanaian warplanes also participated in the attack, the source said).

One African diplomat however described the bombing of Charles Taylor's forces by two Ghanaian air force jets Sunday as "a retaliation for the death of Ghanaians killed as result of the shelling by the Patriotic Front rebels".

RIYADH (SEPT. 17) - Iraqi occupation forces in Kuwait Monday prevented Kuwaiti men aged between 17 and 45 from crossing into Saudi Arabia, while the European Community decided to expel Iraqi military attaches from all E.C. member countries.

Iraqi soldiers ordered Kuwaiti men out of thousands of cars with refugees who were waiting for hours at the Khajfi border crossing, southwest of Kuwait. But many cars turned back because families refused to leave Kuwait without their men.

Earlier, about 50 cars were allowed to cross the border. They were mainly driven by Kuwaitis and Egyptian workers, while Asian and Western nationals were not allowed to leave the country.

Unofficial reports said about 6,000 Kuwaitis have streamed across the border since Saturday, when Iraqi troops opened the border in a surprise move. Many refugees said Iraqi authorities had ''encouraged'' them to leave.

The E.C. decision was taken in Brussels by the community's foreign ministers in retaliation for last week's Iraqi raids on the French, Belgian and Dutch diplomatic missions in Kuwait. In one incident, Iraqi troops detained the French military attache for several hours and abducted three French civilians.

The British government said it would expel two Iraqi military attaches, four embassy employees and 23 other Iraqis.

Reports said 29 Iraqis were flown out of France late Sunday. The deportees included 26 military technicians and pilots as well as three alleged secret service agents.

Meanwhile, elderly and sick French nationals Monday left Iraq in accordance with a ''personal initiative'' of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Radio Baghdad said without elborating. The report could not be confirmed.

The president of the E.C. commission, Jacques Delors from France, said in Paris that in the light of the Gulf crisis the community should set up a joint military intervention force.

He said the West must help four billion people in the Third World who are living ''outside wealth'', but it must also be capable ''to prevent conflicts from occurring''. The setting up of such a force was not only ''necessary'' but also ''logical''.

In Amman, a predominantly leftist gathering of 120 pro-Iraqi parties and organisations in nine Arab states ended a three-day meeting with a call on Arab masses to prepare for ''a prolonged and bitter struggle'' against foreign intervention in the Gulf.

It called on Arabs to raise their voices and ''condemn the American invasion of the Gulf and the Arabian Peninsula and break the blockade imposed on Iraq." It warned that the U.S.-led Western military build-up in the Gulf threatens the breakout of a war in the Middle East, the Gulf and the Arabian Peninsula.

In another development, Iranian officials again denied rumours that Teheran had reached an agreement with Iraq to exchange oil for food and medicine, the Cyprus-based Middle East Economic Survey reported.

''It seems that the deal should best be regarded as a non-starter,'' the weekly said in reference to rumours of an arrangement under which 200,000 barrels per day of Iraqi crude would be transported for processing in Iranian refineries, thus freeing an equivalent volume of Iranian crude for export.

In Cairo, a foreign ministry spokesman confirmed that Egypt began dispatching more troops to the Gulf on Monday. No details were given, but Western diplomats put their number at about 15,000. An estimated 5,000 Egyptian forces are already stationed in the region.

Meanwhile, Air India has so far flown home 45,000 stranded Indians from Amman and Dubai in one of the world's biggest air exercises since the Berlin airlift of 1948-49, the airline's chief executive said Monday. There were over 172,000 Indians in Kuwait before the occupation.

TEHERAN (SEPT. 17) - Iran and Syria could discuss the deployment of Iranian troops in Saudi Arabia during a visit here of Syrian President Hafez al-Assad in the next few days, an informed Iranian source disclosed Monday.

His remarks came as the Syrian Ambassador to Iran, Ahmad al-Assan, told the English-language Teheran Times newspaper that Iranian troops, "which have a long experience in war technology, can help in the defense of the holiest places in Islam."

Syria has joined Egypt and Morocco in an Arab defense force deployed in Saudi Arabia to defend the kingdom against a possible attack by Iraqi forces in neighboring Kuwait.

In addition, the United States has stationed as many as 100,000 ground and air troops in Saudi Arabia and Britain sent a squadron of Tornado fighters in the aftermath of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

The Iranian source provided no further comment on the possible discussion of an Iranian deployment in Saudi Arabia but stressed the importance of the Syrian ambassador's interview in the Teheran Times.

Mr. al-Assan stressed that a request for Iranian forces "should come from the Arab League and Syria will support it by all means if such a proposal is tabled.

"Naturally, when we support the deployment of forces from Pakistan and Bangladesh ... there is no reason why the deployment of Iranian forces for the safety of Islam's holiest places is not backed by Syria," he said.

The ambassador said his government hoped that "foreign forces will be replaced by Arab and other Moslem ... forces."

Iran and Syria were solid allies during the eight-year Iran-Iraq war and have both condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

But Teheran has spoken out strongly against the burgeoning U.S. military presence in the Gulf region, with Spiritual Guide Ayatollah Ali Khamenei equating popular resistance to the U.S. deployment with holy war.

BRUSSELS (SEPT 17) - The 12 countries of the European Economic Community (EEC) agreed Monday to allow private enterprise participation in four key sectors -- drinking water, transport, energy and telecommunications.

A spokesman for the European Commission said here that private sector firms would be allowed to compete freely for contracts individually worth over 400,000 European Currency Units (ECU's -- 520,000 dollars.

The floor limit would be 600,000 ECU's (780,000 dollars) for telecommunications, and five billion ECU's (66.5 billion dollars) for public works.

The measures are due to come into effect no later than January 1, 1993. However, this limit is to be extended to 1996 for Spain and 1998 for Greece.

According to the agreement, firms from EEC countries are to be given preference in the award of contracts if tender price differences are no greater than three percent.

A tender from a firm outside the EEC can also be rejected if more than half the value of the product comes from outside the community.

EEC public sector spending amounts to over 200 billion ECU's (260 billion dollars) a year.

LONDON (SEPT 17) - British group Storehouse, owner of several chain stores including Habitat, announced Monday it had sold two of its subsidiaries, the British furniture group Heal and Son and the French children's clothing chain Jacadi for 15.8 million pounds (24 million dollars).

Jacadi was bought by an investment group headed by Patrick Hamelle, director-general and founder of Jacadi, and the French bank Credit Agricole, for 15 million pounds.

Heal and Son was sold to its current managing director, Colin Pilgrim, for 850,000 pounds.

Michael Julien, director general of Storehouse said that the sale "reflects our policy of concentrating our financial and managerial resources on our major businesses."

Storehouse owns the British Home Stores chain.

Jacadi which has 288 outlets, of which 250 are in France, recorded profits for the year ended March 1990 of 1.5 million pounds (2.2 million dollars) on sales of 31.6 million pounds.

Heal and Son which operates two large stores in London, recorded a loss of 1.9 million pounds on turnover of 14.6 million pounds for the 1989 financial year. This year's results are also expected to be in the red.

TOKYO (SEPT 17) - Capital investment by all Japanese companies except in the banking and insurance sector jumped 22.1 percent to 50.37 trillion yen (367.7 billion dollars) in fiscal 1989, the finance ministry said Monday.

Their sales during the year ending in March this year rose 2.8 percent from fiscal 1988 to 1,307.85 trillion yen (9.5 trillion dollars), the ministry said in a report.

Sales went up 8.8 percent in the manufacturing sector and by 0.5 percent in the non-manufacturing industries, it said without specifying the amounts and the number of firms.

The companies' pre-tax profits rose 8.3 percent 38.91 trillion yen (284.0 billion dollars), the ministry said.

The Japanese economy is expected to remain brisk at least through the end of the current 1990 fiscal year ending next March, it said.

Higher crude oil prices and interest rates will not have a major impact on companies' business performance, the finance ministry said.

The estimate was based on a survey taken in mid-August covering some 10,000 firms.

The authoritative weekly newsletter Middle East Economic Survey reported that ''it is not yet clear to what extent production is likely to be increased further in the fourth quarter of 1990, using temporary surge capacity to 8.0 to 8.5 million bd''.

The newsletter said that to cope with increased military demand for gasoline and middle distillates, Saudi Arabia has increased its domestic refinery runs by some 200,000 bd, partly from the country's Gulf refinery at Ras Tanura and partly at Rabigah on the Red Sea.

SOFIA (SEPT 17) - About 30,000 people took part in an anti-government demonstration in the centre of the Bulgarian capital Monday, and were exhorted to "chase the communists out of power", eyewitnesses said.

The demonstration was organised by the Union of Democratic Forces (UDF), which groups together the 15 main opposition movements in Bulgaria.

It was the first such event organised officially by the UDF since elections in June which were won by the Bulgarian Socialist Party (BSP), the renamed communist government.

Speakers chanted such slogans as "chase the communists out of power", "we don't want communism" and "down with the BSP".

They also demanded punishment for those responsible for the "national catastrohpe" -- the Bulgarian economy.

Several anti-government activists were given a loud welcome by the crowd, including trade union leader Konstantin Trenchev, who was accused by the government of instigating the ransacking of BSP headquarters last month.

The governing socialists are due to hold a special party congress at the end of the week.

MIAMI BEACH, FL (SEPT. 17) - The United Mine Workers (UMW) opened its 100th annual convention here Monday facing problems of a declining membership, worsening financial woes and legal problems.

Delegates are to be asked to give the executive board the authority to close down 21 local district organizations, including many which have become insolvent.

The executive will also request permission to use interest from a 60-million-dollar strike fund to pay off legal expenses and other costs related to recent strike action. The interest may now be used only to pay strikers' benefits.

Finally the delegates will be asked to adopt constitutional changes which will according to the leadership, give the union greater flexibility in dealing with multinational corporations.

The union's membership, which stood at 400,000 and controlled 80 percent of the nation's coal pits in the 1940's, is now down to about 70,000 as an increasing number of mines have implemented greater mechanization. Use of coal has also been reduced due to environmental concerns in the United States.

The union's president, Richard Trumka, told the convention Monday that a national energy policy promoting the use of coal could have helped evert the Gulf crisis.

Trumka claimed: "The only reason characters like Iraqi President Saddam Hussein have any power at all is because of the oil they have -- oil we could have replaced years ago with coal mined in the United States and Canada."

TEHERAN (SEPT 17) - The repatriation of Gulf war prisoners has been interrupted, as there have been no official announcements here of POW exchanges between Iran and Iraq since Saturday.

There was no apparent reason for the suspension, which came as an Iranian delegation headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Manouchehr Mottaki was on an official visit to Baghdad.

Iran has condemned the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait but has also spoken strongly against the massive buildup of Western -- notably American -- military forces in the Gulf region and in Saudi Arabia.

More than 75,000 prisoners from the eight-year war between Iran and Iraq, which ended in a cease-fire in August 1988, have been exchanged since August 17, two days after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein agreed to Teheran's terms for a formal end to the conflict.

FREETOWN (SEPT 17) - Ghana is prepared to send 1,000 additional troops to boost the ranks of the West African peace force in Liberia, informed sources said here Monday.

The sources said the offer was made during a meeting between Economic Community of West African States Monitoring Group (ECOMOG) commander Arnold Quainoo, West African ambassadors to Freetown and Sierra Leone President Joseph Momoh.

Ghana, Sierra Leone, Guinea, the Gambia, and Nigeria have contributed troops to the ECOMOG force sent into to war-torn Liberia on August 24 to impose a ceasefire in the country's nine-month civil war.

Nigeria at the weekend brought in 600 soldiers here to board vessels to set sail this week for Monrovia and another 600 were expected to arrive late on Monday.

Monday's "crisis" meeting, which was also attended by ECOWAS Executive Secretary Abass Bundu and U.S. ambassador to Sierra Leone Johnny Young, was held to evaluate intensified fighting over the weekend, including Ghana air attacks on positions held by Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front (NPFL) rebels in Monrovia.

Unconfirmed reports said Ghanaian fighters on Saturday bombed Robertsfield, Liberia's only international airport 55 kilomters (35 miles) east of Monrovia.

Sources close to the meeting at State House Monday said General Quainoo, a Ghanaian, had stressed the need to use "military alternative to bring peace to Monrovia."

He was reported as saying the next step in the Ecowas peace plan would be to instal an interim government which was chosen three weeks ago by Liberian politicians meeting in the Gambian capital Banjul.

The force commander said the food situation in Liberia was "desperate" and that ECOMOG troops have had to share their rations with starving Liberians trapped in Monrovia.

Meanwhile, sources here said Nigeria plans to drop paratroops at the port of Buchanan, a rebel stronghold 144 kilometers east of Monrovia where up to 2,000 Ghanaian nationals are reportedly living.

Paratroopers are also to land at Kakata, an important crossroad 55 kilometers (35 miles) north of Monrovia, but the sources did not know when.

WORCESTER, South Africa (SEPT 17) - African National Congress (ANC) deputy leader Nelson Mandela warned here Monday that peace talks towards a negotiated settlement in South Africa could be on the rocks, correspondents said.

If the white minority government did not take "emphatic steps" to end spiralling violence in black townships around Johannesburg, the ANC will have to make a decision reversing "almost everything" done since May this year towards a negotiated peace, he said.

Mr. Mandela was adressing about 3,000 people here, some 100 kilometers (63 miles) north east of Cape Town, following an one-day tour of South Africa's winemaking region.

More than 700 people have been killed since August 13 in South Africa's worst wave of black-on-black violence and on Saturday the government announced new moves to clamp down on the violence.

An emergency meeting of the ANC's National Executive Committee (NEC) will consider "very carefully" the government's reaction towards the violence in black townships, Mr. Mandela said.

He added that the ANC was finding its commitment to peace increasingly difficult. "In these circumstances it should be very easy for us to walk out of the talks in which we are engaged".

The ANC has already held two rounds of exploratory talks with the government since May 2, aimed at removing obstacles to constitutional negotiation and in terms of a historic accord reached between the two parties on August 6, the ANC suspended its 29-year guerilla war waged against the government.

AMMAN (Sept 17) - Pro-Iraqi delegates from 10 Arab countries and the PLO on Monday vowed to strike U.S. interests around the world if Washington attacked Iraq in the current Gulf crisis.

The pledge came at the end of a three-day meeting here of the Conference of Popular Arab Forces, which also decided to challege a United Nations embargo against Baghdad by chartering a boat carrying women and children that would try to deliver food and medicine to Iraq.

Nearly 1,000 people at the close of the meeting staged a demonstration here expressing support for Iraq and denouncing Syrian President Hafez al-Assad as a "traitor to the Arab nation."

Mr. Assad has denounced the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2 and agreed to deploy Syrian troops in Saudi Arabia to help defend the kingdom against a possible attack by Iraqi forces in Kuwait.

"With your chemical weapons, bring us victories, O Saddam!" shouted demonstrators, alluding to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, currently locked in a bitter standoff with the West.

The congress, which grouped non-governmental secular groups from the Arab world, backed calls for holy war "to liberate the holy sites (in Saudi Arabia)

Upwards of 100,000 U.S. forces have also been stationed in Saudi Arabia in the aftermath of the Iraqi invasion.

The final communique vowed to "use all means to strike American interests in the world the moment the United States attacks Iraq militarily."

Delgates proposed that August 6 be recalled and commemorated in the Arab world as the day U.S. troops "invaded" Saudi Arabia.

In addition, the conference decided to create a permanent secretariat here "to ensure the coordination of popular activities ... in light of the failure of Arab leaders to oppose the intervention of foreign forces in the Gulf."

Representatives here were from groups based in Algeria, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Libya, Mauritania, Morocco, Sudan, Tunisia and Yemen, along with two senior leaders of Palestine Liberation Organization factions, George Habash and Nayef Hawatmeh.

MUNICH (SEPT. 17) - France is to reduce the number of troops based in West Germany from the present 50,000 after German unification takes place, it was agreed in talks here between Bonn Chancellor Helmut Kohl and French President Francois Mitterrand.

The two governments are expected to make a ''joint political declaration of principle'' setting out their plans for military cooperation.

Spokesmen for Kohl and Mitterrand gave no details of the extent of the French troop reductions but Bonn government spokeman Hans Klein said it was obvious there would be some cuts in line with the general reduction in German force strength.

The West German government had asked France to retain a military presence in Germany after unification.

Bonn delegation sources said the West German government would like some French and German brigades such as medical units to work together. Meanwhile a joint 4,000-strong brigade, already agreed by the two governments, will begin operations on October 1.

BRUSSELS (SEPT 17) - The European Economic Community on Monday decided to sign an economic and trade cooperation agreement with Romania, which was frozen in June, Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis announced.

The EEC froze the signing of the accord to protest bloody repression in June of anti-government demonstrations, mainly by miners drafted in to Bucharest for the purpose.

Foreign ministers of the EEC meeting here considered that the political situation and observance of human rights had sufficiently improved to go ahead with signing the accord, diplomatic sources said.

The agreement will ease restrictions on trade between the EEC and Romania which, with Albania, is the only country in Eastern Europe not to have signed such an accord.

French diplomatic sources said Britain and the Netherlands were the last to lift their objections to the unfreezing of the agreement. France had threatened to sign a bilateral accord with Romania if the EEC did not do so.

Mr. De Michelis said Romania remained excluded from Western aid for Eastern European reform coordinated by the so-called G-24 countries.

He said foreign ministers of the 12 EEC countries agreed Monday that East Germany, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria should be added to the list of aid recipients, which already includes Poland and Hungary.

Mr. De Michelis said Romania's inclusion on the list would depend on the results of a Romanian parliamentary probe into the June protests in Bucharest, and specifically into the violence dealt out to anti-government protesters.

SAN JOSE (SEPT 17) - Leftist Salvadoran rebels, despairing over peace talks that have bogged down amid disputes over the future of the Salvadoran military announced Monday they would present new economic proposals at the negotiations.

As the latest round of peace talks here were drawing to an end, heavy fighting was reported in different parts of El Salvador Sunday and Monday, with 20 rebels and government troops killed and 35 others wounded.

The talks, which began last week and are due to end Tuesday, have been bogged down in arguments over rebel demands that the Salvadoran Army be disbanded and replaced by a civil police force.

Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) commander Francisco Jovel said Monday he would change tack Tuesday by delivering an economic proposal aimed at developing small and medium-sized businesses and protecting the country's poor.

The guerrilla leader said the proposal would aim to protect the workers' right to organize and provide better housing, education and health care for Salvadorans.

Salvadoran Justice Minister Oscar Santamaria said the government would examine the rebels' economic proposal, but he was not as pessimistic as the rebels about reaching "at least a partial agreement" on military questions.

Mr. Jovel said the major obstacle to reaching an agreement on military matters was "the need to resolve fundamental problems, such as the impunity with which the military is committing human rights violations."

Last week, Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani agreed to restructure El Salvador's armed forces but he refused to bow to the rebels' demand to disband them.

The FMLN was "totally wrong" to want to pressure the government with the threat of launching a new military offensive, Mr. Cristiani said.

FMLN leaders said they would launch a new offensive if the current round of talks in San Jose failed.

The talks are aimed at ending the decade-long civil war that has left some 70,000 dead among rebels, troops and civilians.

The armed forces reported heavy fighting Sunday in the town of Anamoros, some 220 kilometers (135 miles) east of the capital, and also in the northern Chalatenango department and central San Vicente.

PRETORIA (SEPT 17) - South Africa is ready to sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty on "certain conditions", Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha said here Monday.

"The South African government is prepared to accede to the treaty in the context of an equal commitment by other states in the Southern African region," Mr. Botha said in a statement.

South Africa has consistently refused to sign the treaty which would involve a pledge not to make nuclear arms, and to open nuclear installations to international inspection.

The country already has one French-built nuclear power station at Koeberg on South Africa's south-west coast and two nuclear research plants near Pretoria, including a top-secret uranium-enrichment plant at Pelindaba.

"Viewed within the context of the government's irreversible reform initiatives the proposed action underscores South Africa's commitment to contribute to peace and regional security" in southern Africa, Mr. Botha said.

He added that the government's decision to sign the treaty follows several rounds of discussions with the main signatories to the treaty, the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union.

Cheney said the dismissal was ''not a pleasant task but a necessary one''. He said Dugan was ''a fine officer with an outstanding record,'' but that ''there are certain things we never talk about''.

In interviews Sunday to the Los Angeles Times and the Washington Post, Dugan said that allied forces in Saudi Arabia would conduct aerial bombing missions on Baghdad should there be an outbreak of war.

BRASILIA (SEPT 17) (AFP) - Brazil will give 10 percent of its land to some 230,000 Brazilian Indians by 1993, the National Foundation of the Indian (FUNAI) announced here Monday.

Cantidio Guerreiro Guimaraes, the new president of FUNAI, said the government would transform the nearly 87 million hectares (215 million acres) of land into natural reserves for the Indians.

The cost of creating about 300 Indian reserves -- with a total area larger than France and Italy combined -- was estimated at more than 100 million dollars, Mr. Guerreiro said.

Some of the funds will be used to compensate farmers forced to leave the future reserves and to protect large areas of virgin Amazon forests where more than 40 "isolated" Indian tribes still live, he said.

There are currently 43,990,112 hectares (108,655,576 acres) of Indian reservations.

The FUNAI plan still calls for boundaries to be set in 1990 for 10 additional Indian reserves in the Brazilian Amazon: three in the state of Rondonia, two in Mato Grosso, two in Acre, one in Roraima, one in Para, and one in Pernambuco.

Brazil's population is two percent Indian, comprising 200 indigenous groups which speak 170 different languages.

WASHINGTON (SEPT 17) - The United States Monday withheld comment on reports of a large-scale offensive by Nigerian paratroopers against rebels in Liberia but reiterated its support for a bid by a West African peacekeeping force to arrange a ceasefire.

"As of this morning the situation is relatively quiet, with only sporadic fighting," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Fierce fighting erupted at the weekend between rebels of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) of Charles Taylor and the West African peacekeeping force.

Mr. Boucher reiterated U.S. support for the six-nation peacekeeping force sent to Liberia by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), "particularly its goal to establish a ceasefire."

(Nigerian paratroopers backed by warplanes launched a large scale offensive against positions held by NPFL rebels on Sunday, said a source close to the Nigerian government in Lagos. Ghanaian warplanes also participated in the attack, the source said.

(Twelve hundred Nigerian soldiers are due to leave the Sierra Leone capital Tuesday for Liberia to boost the firepower of West African troops trying to impose a ceasefire to end nine months of civil war .

Mr. Boucher said U.S. assistant Secretary of State for African affairs Herman Cohen was currently travelling in West Africa to assess the Liberian situation with regional leaders. But he said his exact schedule was still being worked out.

(In Banjul, Gambian officials said Mr. Cohen would meet first with Gambian Foreign Minister Omar Sey in the Sierra Leone capital Freetown and was scheduled to visit Monrovia Wednesday.)

NEW YORK (SEPT 18) - The 45th session of the U.N. General Assembly begins in New York Tuesday against the backdrop of the further escalating Gulf crisis.

For the next three months delegates from 159 countries will be occupied with an array of problems filling an agenda already running to 155 topies. Topics range from the Palestinian issue to drug abuse and aging.

But the major issue facing the chamber presided over this year by Malta Foreign Minister Guido de Marco will be the Mideast, according to diplomats and U.N. officials. It is expected that the Kuwaiti delegation will bring up the Iraqi invasion of their country for debate.

NEW YORK, United Nations (SEPT 17) - The representatives of the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council were meeting in closed session late Monday to consider including the commercial airways in the U.N. economic and military embargo against Iraq, diplomatic sources said.

Delegates of the United States, the Soviet Union, China, Britain and France were meeting at the French mission here on whether to include air travel in the embargo -- something which was never done in previous U.N. economic embargoes.

Diplomats were seeking ways to step up control over air shipments at internatonal airports and to verify the flight plans of planes headed to Iraq. There was no question of using force, diplomatic sources said.

The United Nations imposed the trade embargo against Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2. Diplomats say the Iraqis have circumvented the embargo with air shipments.

Also Monday, U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar and Iraqi Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari met at the secretary general's invitation, but both men refused to comment on their discussions.

The Security Council's sanctions committee met Monday primarily to discuss emergency aid to Jordan, which has been flooded with refugees from Iraq and Kuwait.

The security council, the same sources said, was expected to adopt soon a resolution calling for international aid to Jordan.

The committee was also expected to discuss aid to other countries suffering economically because of the U.N. embargo.

The latest country to request aid is Yemen which, in a letter to Mr. Perez de Cuellar, said the embargo had cost it some 1.4 billion dollars in lost revenues.

MANAMA (SEPT. 17) - Some 6,000 Kuwaiti families have fled from Kuwait to Saudi Arabia since Iraq unexpectedly opened a border post on the weekend and the exodus is continuing, Saudi officials and diplomats said Monday.

A Saudi immigration official reached by telephone at the Khafji checkpoint said thousands of people, a large majority of them Kuwaitis, were pouring into Saudi Arabia from Kuwait for the third consecutive day.

He was unable to give figures, but Gulf diplomats said some 6,000 Kuwaiti families had crossed into northeastern Saudi Arabia since Iraqi troops who have occupied Kuwait since August 2 opened the Khafji post Saturday.

According to Saudi border police, some Egyptians have been able to take advantage of the Iraqi move but Western nationals have been barred from leaving. It was unclear how many Asians, if any, have crossed the border.

The police said Iraqi troops have been stripping those leaving of all their identity papers before they are allowed to enter Saudi territory.

"It is a new Iraqi policy aimed at throwing Kuwaitis out of their own country so that Iraqi citizens can be settled in their places," said Citizens for Free Kuwait, a resistance committee based in Taif, Saudi Arabia.

The exodus has come amid a sharply worsening situation in Iraqi-controlled Kuwait, where according to accounts from escapees, public order has broken down and there are severe shortages of food and medicine.

The opening of the border came the same day as Iraqi Minister of Local Government Ali Hassan al-Majid was named governor of the province of Kuwait, which Iraq annexed shortly after the invasion.

TOKYO (SEPT. 17) - The recent surge in crude oil prices will have little impact on Japan's economic growth or inflation in the next two years if prices stabilise at around 24 dollars a barrel, according to a leading Japanese bank.

"If Japan responds coolly to the present sharp rise in the price of crude oil, there is little likelihood that the country's current buoyancy and price stability will be affected," Sumitomo Bank Ltd. said in a monthly report.

The bank, the world's third biggest, calculated that a 50 percent rise in oil prices from 16 dollars in June would have no impact on the real rate of economic growth in the current fiscal year which began in April. But the rate would fall by one-tenth of a percentage point the following year, it said.

Consumer prices would not be affected this year but boosted by 0.3 percentage points next year, while wholesale prices would rise by an extra 0.3 points this year followed by an increase of 0.8 points the following year.

Higher oil prices would meanwhile reduce Japan's current account surplus by almost six billion dollars this year and 11 billion dollars next year.

The bank, which said its forecast did not take into account "excessive reactions" by companies and consumers, noted that oil stocks were high and that producers besides Iraq and Kuwait were expected to boost their output of crude.

The report also noted that Japan's oil efficiency, as measured by gross national product (GNP) divided by the country's volume of oil imports, was now almost twice the level at the time of the second oil shock in 1979.

"This has given the country substantially increased strength to resist rises in crude oil prices," it said, adding that the impact of higher oil prices would probably be further cushioned by a stronger yen.

Japan's GNP, the country's total output of goods and services minus foreign income, grew five percent last year with consumer prices rising 2.9 percent and wholesale prices 2.5 percent. The current account surplus, measuring trade in good and services plus certain financial transfers, was 54 billion dollars.

ISLAMABAD (SEPT. 17) - Three people were killed and 25 injured in two bomb explosions late Sunday, police said Monday.

Police said one bomb was placed in a Rawalpindi-bound bus by unknown "terrorists" who got off before it exploded near Gujrat, 160 kilometres (100 miles) southeast of here.

The three victims included a woman and her one-year old daughter. Eleven passengers were seriously injured.

Almost simultaneously, another bomb exploded under a fruit vendor's cart in the busy market town of Jhang in the Punjab. Seven people were taken to hospital.

The town has witnessed repeated clashes between Sunni and Shiite Moslem sects since last year. The sects, differing on religious rites, also clashed in the provincial capital Lahore Sunday, leaving one person dead and 20 hurt.

Three blasts in Punjab last month on a passenger train and in crowded public places left a dozen dead and 60 injured.

WELLINGTON (SEPT. 17) - New Zealand Premier Mike Moore stunned the country Monday with a pre-election bombshell, an economic package focussing on a wage order which critics said smacked of state intervention.

The economic package revealed New Zealand's annual growth rate had plummeted.

The initiative featured an agreement with the country's leading union body to create jobs, spark economic growth and lower interest rates without relying only on monetary policy, Mr. Moore said.

Mr. Moore announced the package ahead of the October 27 general elections, which various opinion polls indicate the ruling Labour Party will lose.

He told a press conference the package was a major economic initiative which would ensure New Zealand would be cushioned from external economic events and would lead to growth, investment and jobs.

But analysts here said the package appeared to be a last minute patch-up job for Mr. Moore, who only became prime minister two weeks ago.

Television New Zealand reported Monday night that the package was formulated in the last 72 hours.

Mr. Moore said the government would substantially reduce its projected 2.2 billion New Zealand dollar (1.3 billion dollar U.S.) deficit but did not specify how it would achieve this.

The central banker, the Reserve Bank, will not interfere with the measures, he said, as Finance Minister David Caygill said interest rates had already begun falling Monday as word of the package spread.

On currency markets, the New Zealand dollar tumbled, closing Monday at 62.26 U.S. cents, after opening at 62.60 and reaching a day's high of 62.95.

The country's main union body, the New Zealand Combined Trade Unions (NZCTU), has agreed to use its influence to achieve wage settlements of two per cent in the wage round currently underway, Mr. Moore said.

Mr. Moore said the agreement with the NZCTU would run for a year, effective immediately, and added: "It is a bold move by all parties to tackle the root causes of our new problems, not a tinkering with the monetary rules.

"It is New Zealand's best shot at getting interest rates down and keeping them down," Mr. Moore said, adding that the country could slide into needless recession without the economic package.

The government had revised its July budget estimate of a 2.4 per cent annual growth rate down to around one per cent but external factors were mostly to blame, Mr. Moore said.

These factors included the Middle East crisis, events in Eastern Europe, falling farm export prices and the declining economies of New Zealand's main trading partners -- the United States, Japan and Australia, he said.

Mr. Moore said he expected all parties to cooperate on wages to achieve a common goal of economic and job growth.

Reserve Bank director Don Brash said a government-NZCTU initiative would mean monetary policy would carry less of the burden of making New Zealand competitive and economically sound.

But Employers Federation director Steven Marshall said the package was a reversal of government policy.

"We have a decentralised economy now and we are looking at a policy initiative which is very much centralised," Mr. Marshall said. "That in itself sends out very confusing signals to competing businesses in the country."

August motor vehicle exports by Toyota, the top carmaker in Japan, totaled 128,986 units and those by Nissan, the second largest, came to 69,912 units.

Domestic sales by Toyota in the month jumped 20.2 percent to 141,874 units, helped by a boost in demand, while those of Nissan rose 5.1 percent to 82,238 units.

MANILA (SEPT. 17) - The U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) signed 17 million dollars' worth of grants for Philippine projects Monday on the eve of negotations on the future of U.S. military bases here, the U.S. Embassy said.

The agency signed a nine million-dollar agreement with the Philippine Exporters Foundation to promote trade and investment in the Philippines through a project designed to help small and medium-scale companies gain access to foreign markets.

It was the first time USAID has given assistance to a non-government organization involved in trade and investment promotion in the Philippines, an embassy statement said.

Microlink Philippines, Inc., a private voluntary organization, received a 7.475 million-dollar AID grant for a project that would provide jobs for more than 1,000 low-income Manila residents, it added.

USAID also signed a 500,000-dollar grant agreement with the Asia Foundation to help disadvantaged Filipinos enhance their legal rights.

The foundation is a private American voluntary organization. The grant will support the work of four non-government organizations -- the Structural Legal Assistance for Grassroots, the Haribon Foundation, the Alternative Legal Assistance Center and the Developmental Legal Aid Center.

FRANKFURT (SEPT. 17) - While West German industry continues to work to the limits of its capacity amid the strongest economic boom in 20 years, East German industrial performance is steadily sinking on a broad front, the Bundesbank said here.

Comparing the two Germanys' economies in the summer of 1990, the central bank said that the introduction of the Deutschmark in East Germany had above all kept the West German economy rolling.

Orders from East Germany since the D-mark introduction had more than compensated for a slackening export demand amid economic slowdown elsewhere - the United States, Britain, Sweden, France and Italy - the Bundesbank said.

However, as East Germans, with D-marks to spend, rapidly changed their buying habits, East German industry has as a result suffered "considerable downturns in production and employment".

The decline in East German industry which had set in last spring was "accelerating on a broad front", the Bundesbank said. East German-made products were unable to compete with Western goods in terms of price, quality, speed of supply and marketing.

In July, East German industrial output was 42 per cent lower than in the same month last year, the report said.

Seoul (SEPT. 17) - South Korea and the Soviet Union will announce a timetable for the establishment of diplomatic ties later this month, the South Korean news agency Yonhap reported Monday.

The news agency said South Korean Foreign Minister Choi Ho Joong and his Soviet counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze will announce details of the normalisation in relations when they meet at the United Nations general assembly session.

Yonhap also quoted an unidentified South Korean government official as saying the two countries would conclude agreements on economic and technological cooperation on September 23-25 in Moscow and investment protection on October 4 in Seoul.

The signal for a normalisation in ties came in June after Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met South Korean President Roh Tae Woo in San Francisco for the first direct talks between leaders of the two countries since the division of the Korean peninsual 40 years ago. dpa ms 171155 sep 90

A group of six mountaineers from Zollingen, West Germany, fell 250 meters to their deaths near Brigue, Switzerland, when they apparently slipped on an ice face while climbing in two teams at 4,000 meters.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 17) EFE - Hundreds of separatists have stormed the headquarters of the KGB secret police in the Soviet republic of Georgia's capital Tbilisi, according to a report on Radio Moscow's Interfax news service Monday.

The report, which cited information it said it had not been able to confirm, said the raid came at the end of a nationalist rally late Sunday attended by 15,000 people.

As the meeting wound up, some 1,000 protesters headed for the headquarters of the republic's government to demand its resignation and the closure of regional KGB headquarters.

The crowd later burst into the KGB building, breaking down doors, shattering windows and destroying furniture.

Interfax said no one was injured in the incident and none of the demonstrators carried weapons.

In June the republic's parliament approved the independence of Georgia, as part of a wave of similar declarations by other Soviet republics.

In August, the parliament passed an electoral law paving the way for multi-party elections, following weeks of protests organized to call for open polling and the resignation of the republic's leadership.

ABIDJAN (SEPT 17) EFE - Warplanes from Ghana and Nigeria have bombed guerrilla positions around the Liberian capital, according to radio reports Monday, damaging the neutral image of the West African peacekeeping force in the Liberian civil war.

Monitored in the Ivory Coast capital of Abidjan, the reports said Sunday's raids against Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) around Monrovia was in response to a guerrilla attack on the peacekeeping force's headquarters on Friday.

Three Nigerian doctors and two Ghanian soldiers were killed in the attack.

Observers said that the bombing by planes of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) appeared to indicate that the peacekeeping force was supporting Taylor's rival, Prince Johnson, who has declared his willingness to collaborate in the formation of a transitional Liberian government.

But they said it would be difficult to defeat Taylor whose 10,000 men control 90 per cent of Liberian territory.

Fighting between Taylor's and Johnson's guerrillas, once loosely united in the struggle to depose the late President Samuel Doe, has intensified in the streets of Monrovia.

The peacekeeping force, in a bid to end the civil war that has now raged for nine months and cost 6,000 lives, sent 4,000 men to Liberia in mid-August.

The force has been bosltered with the recent arrival of 1,000 Nigerian soldiers.

But the presence of the peacekeeping force has not eased the desperate plight of Monrovia's population whose situation has been aggravated by a cholera epidemic.

The disease has killed 20 people in the past six days and authorities fear the epidemic will spread rapidly because of the lack of medical equipment and appalling hygienic conditions.

A group of Spanish, Belgian and Dutch doctors has arrived in Abidjan with the intention of travelling by road to Liberia to provide some medical relief, authorities said.

Baghdad, Sept 17 (EFE).- Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister Manucher Mottaki Monday met with his Iraqi counterpart, Wisam Al-Zahawi, to iron out details of their governments' recent moves towards a formal peace and to discuss the opening of their borders, Iraqi officials said.

They said the visit was a follow-up of talks held in Tehran between the foreign ministers of Iraq, Tareg Aziz, and Iran, Ali Akbar Velayati.

The two deputy ministers discussed the ongoing exchange of tens of thousands of prisoners of war each country has held since the 1980-1988 Gulf War.

Mottaki also laid the groundwork for Velayati's upcoming visit to Baghdad, and of a possible summit between Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, the officials said.

Last month, Saddam offered to settle with Iran outstanding issues from their 1988 cease-fire, which included Baghdad's acceptance of a 1975 accord splitting ownership of the Shatt al-Arab waterway, which borders the two countries.

Observers said the Iraqi peace overtures were aimed at getting Iranian support to help Baghdad sidestep a United Nations trade embargo imposed four days after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Some 5,000 Egyptian troops had already been sent as part of an Arab contigent alongside U.S.-led multinational forces deployed in Saudi Arabia following Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait August 2.

Managua (SEPT. 17) EFE - The Nicaraguan government is to reduce the number of staff in its diplomatic missions and close embassies in several socialist countries in an effort to cut costs, Deputy Foreign Minister Ernesto Leal said Monday.

The government, in response to the country's economic crisis, will recall diplomats from embassies in Eastern Europe, Africa and Asia established by the previous Sandinista administration, the minster said.

One ambassador, based in Warsaw, will represent Nicaragua's interests in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Bulgaria.

While Managua has yet to name an ambassador to Cuba, Leal said this did not mean "there was no intention to do".

Foreign Minister Enrique Dreyfus announced soon after the April inauguration of Nicaraguan President Violeta Chamorro that "almost all" the country's diplomatic missions abroad would have to close.

TOKYO (SEPT. 17) KYODO - BUOYANT DOMESTIC DEMAND BOOSTED AUTO PRODUCTION BY TOYOTA MOTOR CORP. BY 17.9 PERCENT IN AUGUST FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO 292,780 VEHICLES, A RECORD FOR THE MONTH, INDUSTRY SOURCES SAID MONDAY.

TOYOTA'S BRISK PERFORMANCE WAS IN CONTRAST WITH THAT OF ITS CLOSEST RIVAL, NISSAN MOTOR CO., WHOSE PRODUCTION DIPPED 1.3 PERCENT FROM THE YEAR-EARLIER LEVEL TO 168,929 VEHICLES, MAINLY DUE TO SAGGING EXPORTS, THE SOURCES SAID.

DOMESTIC SALES BY TOYOTA SURGED 20.2 PERCENT FROM THE YEAR BEFORE TO 141,874 VEHICLES, WHILE THOSE BY NISSAN, THE NO. 2 AUTOMAKER IN JAPAN, ROSE 5.1 PERCENT TO 82,238 VEHICLES.

TOYOTA'S SHARE IN THE DOMESTIC MARKET INCREASED 2.9 PERCENTAGE POINTS TO 39.8 PERCENT, WHILE IN CONTRAST, NISSAN'S SHARE DROPPED 1.4 POINTS TO 23.1 PERCENT, THE FIFTH CONSECUTIVE MONTHLY DECLINE.

THE SOURCES SAID NISSAN'S PERFORMANCE REFLECTS ITS APPARENT DIFFICULTY IN BOOSTING PRODUCTION TO KEEP UP WITH GROWING DEMAND.

TOYOTA RETAINED AN EDGE OVER NISSAN IN OVERSEAS MARKETS AS WELL. IT EXPORTED 128,986 VEHICLES IN AUGUST, UP 1.0 PERCENT, WHILE NISSAN'S SHIPMENTS PLUNGED 16.6 PERCENT TO 69,912 VEHICLES.

OVERSEAS PRODUCTION BY TOYOTA JUMPED 35.0 PERCENT TO 62,286 VEHICLES, WHILE THAT BY NISSAN WAS DOWN 3.0 PERCENT TO 47,225 VEHICLES.

SEOUL (SEPT. 17) KYODO - THE HEAD OF THE SOUTH KOREAN OBSERVER MISSION TO THE UNITED NATIONS HYUN HONG CHOO INDICATED THAT HIS GOVERNMENT MAY APPLY FOR UNILATERAL ENTRY INTO THE U.N. THIS YEAR, SOUTH KOREA'S YONHAP NEWS AGENCY REPORTED MONDAY.

THE YONHAP REPORT, DETAILED NEW YORK, QUOTED HYUN AS SAYING SUNDAY THAT "THE GOVERNMENT HAS YET TO DECIDE WHETHER TO FILE AN APPLICATION THIS YEAR OR LATER BUT WE AT THE U.N. ARE READY WHATEVER THE GOVERNMENT'S DECISION IS."

SOUTH KOREA WOULD HAVE TO CHOOSE AN INDEPENDENT ROAD TO THE UNITED NATIONS IF IT FAILS TO REACH AN AGREEMENT WITH NORTH KOREA, HYUN WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

BUT HE REPORTEDLY ADDED THAT IT IS MOST DESIRABLE TO SETTLE THE U.N. MEMBERSHIP ISSUE THROUGH AN INTER-KOREAN AGREEMENT.

THE GOVERNMENT IN SEOUL HAS ARGUED FOR UNILATERAL OR SIMULTANEOUS ENTRY INTO THE U.N. FOR BOTH KOREAS, WHILE PYONGYANG HAS INSISTED THAT THEY SHOULD SHARE A SINGLE SEAT IN THE WORLD BODY.

DURING TALKS IN SEOUL ON SEPTEMBER 5 AND 6, THE PRIME MINISTERS OF THE TWO KOREAS AGREED TO CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS ON THE U.N. MEMBERSHIP ISSUE.

TOKYO (SEPT. 17) KYODO - NEC CORP. HAS DEVELOPED WHAT IT CLAIMS TO BE THE WORLD'S FIRST OPTICAL REGENERATOR FOR PRACTICAL USE THAT CAN TRANSMIT 10 GIGABITS OF INFORMATION PER SECOND, EQUIVALENT TO MORE THAN 50 ENGLISH-LANGUAGE BIBLES, COMPANY OFFICIALS SAID MONDAY.

THE NEW OPTICAL REGENERATOR WILL AID MOVES TOWARD THE INSTITUTION OF A NEXT-GENERATION BROADBAND DIGITAL NETWORK TO MEET POTENTIAL DEMAND FOR HIGH-DEFINITION TELEVISION BROADCASTING AND TELECONFERENCING, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE REGENERATOR HAS EXTERNAL MODULATION AND AMPLIFICATION OPERATIONS AS WELL AS RESHAPING, RETIMING, AND REGENERATING OPTICAL/ELECTRONIC/OPTICAL SIGNALS.

THE LONG-DISTANCE OPTICAL DATA TRANSMISSION EQUIPMENT ALLOWS FOR A 400 PERCENT INCREASE IN TRANSMISSION CAPACITY OVER THE PRESENTLY DEVELOPED 2.4 GIGABIT SYSTEMS, AND PRODUCES LESS WAVE DISTORTION, WHILE GUARANTEEING OPTICAL POWER FOR THE RECEIPT OF INFORMATION, THEY SAID.

IN 1988, THE INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCITT), HEADQUARTERED IN PARIS, RECOMMENDED AN INTERNATIONAL STANDARD FOR SYNCHRONOUS DIGITAL HIERARCHY FOR OPTICAL TRANSMISSION EQUIPMENT WITH A MAXIMUM SPEED OF 2.4 GIGABITS.

THE CCITT IS AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION WHICH SETS STANDARDS AND PROTOCOLS GOVERNING THE FORMAT AND TIMING OF SENDING DATA OVER COMMUNICATIONS AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT.

THE COMPANY PLANS TO HAVE THE EQUIPMENT READY FOR COMMERCIAL USE IN ABOUT THREE YEARS, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE RESULTS OF THE BREAKTHROUGH WERE TO BE ANNOUNCED AT THE 16TH EUROPEAN OPTICAL COMMUNICATIONS CONFERENCE IN AMSTERDAM ON MONDAY AND THE INSTITUTE OF ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATION ENGINEERS IN HIROSHIMA ON OCTOBER 1, THEY SAID.

TOKYO (SEPT. 17) KYODO - THE GOVERNMENT HAS PROPOSED THAT TARIFFS ON SOME 2,200 INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS BE SCRAPPED IN LINE WITH THE MULTILATERAL TRADE TALKS UNDER THE GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE (GATT) BEING HELD IN GENEVA, GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS SAID MONDAY.

TARIFFS ON ABOUT ONE THIRD OF MANUFACTURED GOODS, INCLUDING TELEVISIONS, VIDEOTAPE RECORDERS, AND MOST INDUSTRIAL MACHINERY AND MACHINE TOOLS WILL BE ELIMINATED, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE HIT LIST ALSO INCLUDES CHEMICAL PRODUCTS LIKE FERTILIZERS, GLASS, FILM, AND RUBBER PRODUCTS, THEY SAID.

THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA HAVE ALREADY ANNOUNCED PLANS TO ABOLISH TARIFFS ON SOME 1,000 MUTUALLY AGREED ITEMS.

THE U.S. LIST INCLUDES STEEL, CHEMICALS, AND LUMBER PRODUCTS, WHILE CANADA HAS TARGETED TELECOMMUNICATIONS EQUIPMENT, CHEMICALS, AND MARINE PRODUCTS.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY MINISTER KABUN MUTO ANNOUNCED THE PLAN AT THE RECENT MEETING OF THE ASIA-PACIFIC ECONOMIC COOPERATION (APEC) GROUP IN VANCOUVER.

THE FINAL LIST ITEMS SUBJECT TO TARIFF ELIMINATION WILL DEPEND ON MUTUAL AGREEMENT REACHED AT THE TRADE NEGOTIATIONS, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE AVERAGE TARIFF IMPOSED BY JAPAN ACCOUNTED FOR 3.4 PERCENT OF THE IMPORT VALUE IN 1988, ACCORDING TO THE FINANCE MINISTRY. BUT JAPAN VIRTUALLY ABOLISHED TARIFFS ON SOME 1,000 ITEMS LAST APRIL WITHOUT REPORTING THE CUTS TO THE GATT. THE MOVE LOWERED THE AVERAGE RATIO OF TARIFFS TO IMPORTS TO SLIGHTLY ABOVE 3 PERCENT.

AMONG THE 2,200 PRODUCTS THAT ARE ON THE NEW TARIFF CUT LIST ARE A NUMBER OF THE PRODUCTS INCLUDED IN THE 1,000 TARGETED IN APRIL.

IF TARIFFS ARE ELIMINATED ON ALL OF THE 2,200 PRODUCTS, JAPAN'S AVERAGE TARIFF ON INDUSTRIAL GOODS WILL ACCOUNT FOR LESS THAN 3 PERCENT OF THE IMPORT VALUE.

TARIFFS IMPOSED BY JAPAN, ALONG WITH SWEDEN AND OTHER SCANDINAVIAN COUNTRIES, WOULD THEN BE AMONG THE LOWEST FOR INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS, ACCORDING TO THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

BEIJING (SEPT. 17) KYODO - JAPAN AND CHINA AGREED MONDAY TO EXTEND THEIR CURRENT PRIVATE TRADE PACT FOR ANOTHER FIVE YEARS IN A MOVE AIMED AT REVIVING SHRINKING BILATERAL TRADE, OFFICIALS SAID.

THE AGREEMENT CAME IN A MEETING BETWEEN A VISITING JAPANESE BUSINESS MISSION, ORGANIZED BY THE JAPAN-CHINA ASSOCIATION ON ECONOMY AND TRADE, AND CHINA'S MINISTRY OF FOREIGN ECONOMIC RELATIONS AND TRADE, JAPANESE MISSION MEMBERS SAID.

THE BILATERAL TRADE PACT WAS ORIGINALLY SET FOR 1978-1985 AND THEN EXTENDED UNTIL 1990.

THE NEW ACCORD MAY BE SIGNED FORMALLY IN TOKYO AS EARLY AS LATE NOVEMBER, REPORTERS TRAVELING WITH THE 60-MEMBER BUSINESS MISSION WERE TOLD.

UNDER THE AGREEMENT, JAPAN WILL IMPORT 8.8 TO 9.3 MILLION TONS OF CHINESE CRUDE OIL A YEAR IN EXCHANGE FOR PLANT AND RELATED FACILITIES, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

BUT THE TWO SIDES LEFT OPEN HOW MUCH CHINESE COAL WILL BE IMPORTED BY JAPAN, THEY SAID.

CHINA HAS ASKED JAPAN TO BOOST ITS COAL IMPORTS BY ONE MILLION TONS OVER A FIVE-YEAR PERIOD FROM THE CURRENT 3.7 TO 4.1 MILLION TONS A YEAR.

CHINA WANTED AN EXTENSION OF THE CURRENT PACT TO SECURE A SOURCE OF FOREIGN CURRENCIES, BUT THE JAPANESE PUT OFF A FORMAL DECISION DUE TO ECONOMIC SANCTIONS IMPOSED BY THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT FOLLOWING FOR THE TIANANMEN SQUARE INCIDENT IN JUNE LAST YEAR.

THE JAPANESE MISSION, LED BY RYOICHI KAWAI, CHAIRMAN OF KOMATSU LTD., A MAJOR JAPANESE MAKER OF CONSTRUCTION MACHINERY, IS ON A WEEKLONG VISIT HERE FOR TALKS WITH CHINESE OFFICIALS.

REGARDING CHINA'S IMPORT REGULATIONS ON SEVERAL INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS, THE JAPANESE PRESSED FOR A RELAXATION OF SUCH CONTROLS, BUT THE CHINESE ONLY AGREED TO DISCUSS THE MATTER IN DECEMBER, THE MISSION MEMBERS SAID.

"THE RULES ARE NOT INTENDED ONLY FOR THE JAPANESE," ONE CHINESE OFFICIAL WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

CHINA SLAPPED TIGHER QUALITY INSPECTIONS LAST MAY ON IMPORTS OF NINE PRODUCTS, INCLUDING AUTOS AND MOTORCYCLES, WHICH THE JAPANESE SAY COULD EFFECTIVELY SHUT THE JAPANESE PRODUCTS OUT OF THE CHINESE MARKET.

THE JAPANESE MISSION ARRIVED ON SUNDAY WITH THE AIM OF ENDING THE IMPASSE IN BILATERIAL ECONOMIC TIES SINCE BEIJING'S MILITARY CRACKDOWN ON PRO-DEMOCRACY DEMONSTRATERS IN JUNE LAST YEAR.

PULLED DOWN BY THE JAPANESE ECONOMIC SANCTIONS, EXPORTS TO CHINA HAVE BEEN ON THE DECLINE, SHRINKING 41 PERCENT IN THE FIRST HALF OF THIS YEAR OVER THE SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR.

FROM THE BULLS:

"The pessimism among money managers is as thick as can be," says PETER ANDERSON, president of IDS ADVISORY INC. in Minneapolis. "Even most of my associates are cautious. However, I don't share that feeling and I am looking to invest the remaining 7% of the $1 billion I manage. I don't think we are in a bear market. A bear market can be characterized by excess valuations, optimism and speculation. I don't see that. I see fear, pessimism, reasonable valuations and building liquidity." ("Investor's Daily", 9/17)

"This has been a significant bear market and you can't find a bull," says HARVEY EISEN, quickly adding that such a scenario means the time is near for a big up move. "I think that this is one of the great times in this business. We're not there yet, but this is how you make money in this business. This is what happened in '73 and '74 and it happened in '81 and '82 to a lesser extent. This is the time to get focused on being bullish. ... The sentiment figures are there, the pessimism is great, everyone has cash today. This is when you get bullish. This is the time to get bullish." ("Wall Street Week", 9/14)

FROM THE BEARS:

"The next 12 months could prove the most dangerous of the decade," cautions JAMES STACK at "Investech." "We not only have the ingredients for a bear market, but also a recession." Stack says panic selling will often coincide with a temporary bottom in the market, and he looks for a 2550-2700 sideways trading range in the short term. Stack expects a final low in the range of 1650-2150. (CNBC "World Business", 9/17)

"I think this market is going in only one direction for now, which is down, and it doesn't make too much difference which stock you are, you are going to get beat up in the process," says TED EGGERT, director of equities research at YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL. "Generally speaking, good news is bad news and bad news is bad news." (CNBC's "Market Wrap-Up", 9/14)

"I suspect that we will see a traditional sell-off at some point in the next three quarters," says MARC PERKINS, the Florida-based money manager who has been bearish all year. "There will be a lot of blood in the Street. Then we will go right back on the merry-go-round again. Stocks will be great buys and you will be able to value them by traditional standards." ("Barron's", 9/17)

"I think we're in an old-fashioned bear market, not like the '87 variety that was quick and over in a short period of time," says LOU HOLLAND. "I think this bear market may look something like the one we had in '73 and '74. I think we're in a recession. I don't think the world yet has come to grips with it. ... I think the surprises will be on the downside, meaning that we are going to have a recession, it may not be as shallow as people think it is and I don't think that is currently in stock prices." ("Wall Street Week", 9/14)

STOCK MARKET:

Look for a New York opening at least 15 points lower this morning, says LEHMAN BROTHERS' MICHAEL BENSON from London this morning where U.S. stocks are down. "This would put us at 2550 which should provide some kind of support. ... People will be looking over their shoulders to see if the sellers are going to follow them down. My guess is they don't." (FNN "World Business Update", 9/17)

"The long-term picture is, on balance, a bearish one," says MARTIN PRING of the "Pring Market Review." Because of oversold conditions, he expects recent lows to hold for several weeks. But, says Pring, "The market will eventually move lower following erratic price activity." He warns against complacency in a face of a downward primary trend: "Surprises usually go in the direction of the primary trend." (CNBC "World Business", 9/17)

"Inflation is the single most negative variable for financial instruments," says A.C. MOORE, research director at ARGUS RESEARCH, "and the price of oil is the single most important element. It affects pricing for everything. Secondly, oil-price increases translate into diminished demand throughout the economy. There's lots of justification for being fixated on oil. It's not a phantom worry." (WSJ, 9/17)

"We're looking for a tradeable upside move after this low period, whatever it turns out to be, and that in turn followed by even lower lows," says PHILIP RETTEW, technical analyst at MERRILL LYNCH. "So this is best interpreted as a trading type market and people who overstay their welcome will pay the price," (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/14)

"I don't think it's a bear market, I think it's a reaction to an ongoing bull market," says FRANK CAPPIELLO of the current situation. "But no matter how you slice it, we've seen stocks go off by a third in the case of some technology stocks and even more in the case of stocks like some of the retailers. I think what we're hoping for is something that will turn the news. It has to be something in the Persian Gulf or it has to be a drop in interest rates." ("Wall Street Week", 9/14)

"I think what's going on is we're in a bear market and would-be buyers are sitting on the sidelines and shorts are trying to manufacture" bad rumors, says BRUCE LUPATKIN of HAMBRECHT & QUIST INC. ("Investor's Daily", 9/17)

HUGH JOHNSON of FIRST ALBANY CORP. says some stocks are attractively priced now, but that it is "extraordinarily difficult to recommend any stock in this climate because the risk has been raised several decibels. The Middle East situation makes it impossible to forecast with any certainty the outcome for the economy, inflation and interest rates." ("The Washington Post", 9/16)

"Wall Street tries to make things very simple," says AL GOLDMAN, director of market analysis at A.G. EDWARDS. "It's a one-note street. But if one makes the mistake of following that one note, you miss many critical factors. Admittedly, as with oil, the myopic view often works -- but only on a very short-term basis." (WSJ, 9/17)

STOCK TIPS:

ELLEN HARRIS, chief domestic investment officer of PAINEWEBBER mutual funds, suggests investors look at stocks whose ability to earn fatter profits aren't vulnerable to oil shocks. A favorite is WASTE MANAGEMENT, and biotechnology stocks such as CHIRON and GENETICS INSTITUTE. "Their growth isn't affected by the events going on" in the Middle East. (WSJ, 9/17)

Even though he thinks most stocks are in for further battering, TED EGGERT of YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL sees good value in ATLANTIC RICHFIELD and EXXON. Moreover, he says some stocks are in an "insulated" category, listing PHILIP MORRIS and PEPSICO, and that there are "some special situations such as WASTE MANAGEMENT." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/14)

MARC PERKINS, head of PRIVATE CAPITAL MANAGEMENT and PERKINS, SMITH INC. brokerage, is bearish on the market overall, but finding what he believes are solid values in a number of stocks. His picks: BANKERS CORP., BANK OF BOSTON, BAYBANKS INC., CROWN CENTRAL PETROLEUM, DIAMOND SHAMROCK, DIGITAL COMMUNICATIONS, GERBER SCIENTIFIC, HARMONIA BANCORP, JSB FINANCIAL, LA QUINTA MOTOR INNS, PLAINS PETROLEUM, SOUTHEAST BANKING, TIME WARNER PREFERRED D, TOTAL PETROLEUM and UNIVERSAL HEALTH REALTY. ("Barron's", 9/17)

"This is a market of momentum type plays, not of value orientation," says EUGENE PERONI JR. of JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. Showing very good momentum is TIDEWATER, an oil services company which made a new high on Friday. Peroni sees good support at 20-21 with breakaway upside potential of 25 or higher on a short-term basis. Peroni also likes SONAT. He says the natural gas company has support around 53 with 3 short-term potential to 58. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/17)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (SEPT. 17) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"I just don't see a case for the dollar bouncing," says DAVID HORNER, senior financial strategist at MERRILL LYNCH & CO. He predicts the dollar could fall to 1.42 marks and 132 yen in coming months. (WSJ, 9/17)

A plunging dollar will have "damaging implications ... for U.S. financial markets," including stocks and bonds, says MARK CLIFFE, chief economist for NOMURA RESEARCH INSTITUTE in London. (WSJ, 9/17)

"Japanese investors are incredulous that the Fed could even be considering an easing move at a time when every other major central bank is considering tightening," says DAVID JONES, chief economist at AUBREY G. LANSTON & CO. He adds that foreign investors believe that the yield on the 30-year U.S. Treasury bond must rise a full percentage point or more from its current 9% level to be attractive. "The implication is that U.S. long-term rates must move significantly higher to remain competitive for a limited amount of global capital in the midst of a recession." (WSJ, 9/17)

"Even though economic conditions are weak, inflation is going up, and that is causing the Fed to slow down in lowering interest rates," says DONALD FINE, chief market analyst at the CHASE MANHATTAN BANK. "As a result, the Fed may be looking to the exchange rate mechanism to help the economy. The only thing I question is whether a depreciating dollar will have the economic impact it did in 1987. A depreciating dollar will have a much milder impact than it did two or three years ago, because the economy is a lot weaker now." (NYT, 9/17)

"The Fed faces an impossible trade-off between growth and inflation," says NEAL SOSS, chief economist for FIRST BOSTON CORP. He says the Fed probably will not make a move until some agreement is ready in the budget negotiations. ("Investor's Daily", 9/17)

RICHARD BERNER, a vice president and economist at SALOMON BROTHERS is concerned about the effect a further drop in the dollar would have on foreign capital flows into the United States. He says, "Foreign investors are losing patience with our ability to come to grips with our fiscal problems. With interest rates overseas higher than they are here and continuing to rise, we are starting to border on the edge of where foreign investors don't really seem to care about what our economic policies produce." (NYT, 9/17)

"With interest rates higher abroad, why would foreigners want to keep buying U.S. bonds?" asks NICHOLAS SARGEN, an international economist at SALOMON BROTHERS. And while "the dollar is cheap, our assets are unattractive to overseas investors because our interest rates are too low and our investment prospects stink." (WSJ, 9/17)

THE ECONOMY:

The retail sales report released Friday is "telling me that we entered a recession in July," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "I see the danger of a fairly severe recession right here. I think it comes out from these numbers on retail sales. ... Barring some very satisfactory conclusion in the Mideast, I can see a rate of decline of maybe 2 1/2 percent in the last quarter of this year and the first quarter of next year. ... You've got a situation in which the economy is weakening and interest rates are rising and that's a toxic situation." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 9/14)

DONALD RATAJCZAK, director of the economic forecasting project at GEORGIA STATE UNIVERSITY, believes that a recession in the near future is inescapable. "Look at what happened in August: employment declined, consumer spending declined, industrial production declined. At some point when it looks and smells and acts like a duck, then what is it?" (WSJ, 9/17)

"The retail sales number shows the consumer is headed for a fall, and a pretty big one," says STEPHEN ROACH, an economist at MORGAN STANLEY. "The spending response we are seeing in the August numbers is a sign of what lies ahead, rather than an aberrational development." (NYT, 9/16)

"It is a very difficult environment," says LEWIS COLEMAN, vice chairman of BANKAMERICA CORP. "For planning purposes, we assume it shortly will be a recession environment. There is some debate, but we - and most businessmen - have to assume that." TERRANCE LARSEN, chairman of CORESTATES FINANCIAL CORP. in Philadelphia has a similar view. "Our economics department believes we will have a recession, starting about now," he says. "I agree with that and just about everyone I talk to believes that. I think it will be mild, [but] we have to worry about oil prices." ("The Washington Post", 9/17)

"If we're not in one [a recession] we're very close to it," says PETER RADFORD chief economist at NATIONAL WESTMINSTER BANKCORP. "Even if we get down into real, real slow growth and the statistics fall short [of a technical recession] it will still feel like one." But LYNN REASER, senior economist at FIRST INTERSTATE BANKCORP in Los Angeles, concludes that while Friday's retail sales report shows "weakness in consumer spending ... it does not show a collapse at the retail level." ("Investor's Daily", 9/17)

"I wouldn't be surprised to see the [crude oil] prices on average over the longer term settle down below that price [$25 a barrel] but I think it's reasonable to do forecasts on $25 oil and help use that as a guiding light to translate into recommendations," says DOUG SULIMAN, president of ISLAND PARTNERS. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/14)

"I'd hoped to see 1990 as the year that the trade deficit improved. But that hope's gone. It's fizzled," says RICHARD TRAINER, senior economist at the BANK OF TOKYO in New York. (WSJ, 9/17)

HOUSTON (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Garnet Resources Corporation (NASDAQ: GARN) today announced Chevron's commitment to drill a well on Garnet's block in Papua New Guinea and the issuance of new exploration licenses in Turkey.

VIRAL TECHNOLOGIES' HGP-30 AIDS VACCINE SHOWS NEW IMPORTANCE

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - French and U.S. researchers report in today's issue of the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (USA) ("PNAS") that the HGP-30 AIDS vaccine elicits the production of CD8+ killer T-cells which recognize the same targets as CD8+ killer T-cells obtained from HIV-infected individuals.

CD8+ killer T-cells are the major defense mechanism by which the body eliminates virally-infected cells. This scientific paper concludes that the p17 "core" based HGP-30 AIDS vaccine "may be an important candidate subunit vaccine either alone or in combination with other subunit vaccines ... against HIV infection."

This report is the first peer-reviewed scientific publication that documents the production of CD8+ killer T-cells in response to an AIDS vaccine. It has been known for many years that the major defense mechanism by which virally-infected cells are killed and eliminated from the body is by the development of CD8+ killer T-cells. It is now recognized that this is true for AIDS infection as well. Recent publications about two envelope-based candidate AIDS vaccines have demonstrated the production of CD4+ killer T-cells, but not the production of CD8+ killer T-cells. CD8+ killer T-cells are able to kill all AIDS infected cells throughout the body, whereas CD4+ killer T-cells are restricted, and able to kill only AIDS infected immune system cells. Furthermore, the presence of CD8+ killer T-cells has been found to be associated with a greater longevity of HIV-infected individuals.

This renewed emphasis on killer T-cells is a recognition of the fact that antibodies alone cannot kill an AIDS infected cell. Yet infected cells are factories for the production of new AIDS viruses. In order to stabilize the disease, the infected cells need to be destroyed before the virus overcomes the immune system. CD8+ killer T-cells are designed to do just that.

The published data comes in advance of expanded trials of HGP-30 which are to begin this fall at the University of Southern California Medical Center and at San Francisco General Hospital.

The authors of the PNAS paper and their affiliations are as follows: 1.) Drs. Ammar Achour, Odile Picard and Daniel Zagury, Department of Physiologie Cellulaire, Universite Pierre et Marie Curie, U.E.R. 61, 4 Place Jussieu (Tour

HARRISBURG, PA. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Attorney General Ernie Preate Jr. today sued a nationwide private mail box rental business, charging that the business is misleading the public by marketing its mail boxes as "suites."

Preate said the suit, filed in Commonwealth Court by his Bureau of Consumer Protection, alleges that Mail Boxes Etc. USA Inc. of San Diego, Calif., is violating Pennsylvania's Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law.

Mail Boxes Etc. is a franchisor of commercial mail receiving agencies, including 35 in Pennsylvania, which offer such services as rental of private mail boxes; postage, stationery and packaging supplies, and facsimile and copying services, according to the suit.

The suit alleges that Mail Boxes Etc. offers private mail boxes for rent to businesses and individuals and gives customers the opportunity to identify the boxes as "suites" or "apartments."

"A private mail box is not a suite or apartment according to the commonly accepted meaning of those terms," Preate said. "When a business uses the term suite in its address, consumers reasonably believe that the business is located at the listed address.

"Unscrupulous businesses can mislead consumers with such terms. And consumers can be frustrated when they try to visit a business that lists its address as a suite, only to discover that the suite is nothing more than a pigeonhole at a private mail service."

Deputy Attorney General Nora A. Dowd of the Bureau of Consumer Protection's Philadelphia office said one of the franchisees, M.J. Forcina and Associates Inc., which operates Mail Boxes Etc. at 892 W. Street Road, Warminster, also is named as a defendant in the suit.

She said the bureau received a consumer complaint about a business that uses the term suite for a mail box it rents from the Mail Boxes Etc. in Warminster.

The suit asks the court to order the defendants to stop marketing their mail boxes as suites or apartments and to notify their customers to stop using those terms in their addresses.

The suit also seeks civil penalties of $1,000 for each violation of the Unfair Trade Practices and Consumer Protection Law.

RICHMOND, Va. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Circuit City Stores, Inc. (NYSE: CC) today announced record sales and net earnings for the second quarter ended August 31, 1990.

Total sales for the quarter grew 18 percent to $554.9 million from $471.6 million in the second quarter of last year. Comparable store sales increased 2 percent. Second quarter net earnings rose 13 percent to $19.0 million from $16.9 million in the same period last year, and net earnings per share increased to 41 cents from 37 cents.

For the six months ended August 31, 1990, total sales grew 19 percent to $1.05 billion from $879.6 million in the same period last year, and comparable store sales increased 2 percent. Net earnings for the six months rose 13 percent to $31.1 million from $27.6 million in last year's first half, and net earnings per share increased to 67 cents from 60 cents.

"We were pleased that the second quarter sales increase met our expectations," said Richard L. Sharp, Circuit City's president and chief executive officer.

"The rate of growth for the quarter reflects continued moderate growth in our retail segment and consumer uncertainty about the overall economy. The expansion of our store base in both new and existing markets continues to enhance Circuit City's competitive position and support strong total sales growth."

During the quarter, Circuit City opened 12 Superstores. In addition to a three-store entry into the Cincinnati, Ohio, market, the company added Superstores in Los Angeles, Calif.; Philadelphia, Penn.; San Francisco, Calif.; Phoenix, Ariz.; and Tampa, Fla. Superstores were relocated in Nashville, Tenn., and Charlotte, N.C. Superstores replaced consumer electronics-only stores in Louisville, Ky., and Columbia, S.C. The company also opened one mall-based Impulse store in the Miami, Fla., market during the quarter.

"Sales training, advertising programs and merchandise strategies that emphasize higher margin products combined with greater buying volumes to produce an increase in the second quarter gross profit margin," Sharp said. For the quarter, Circuit City's gross profit margin rose to 30.0 percent of sales from 29.3 percent in the same period last year.

"Our ongoing commitment to broadening the geographic base of the Circuit City Superstore and maintaining high levels of service in all our stores has resulted in anticipated increases in selling, general and administrative expense as a percent of sales," Sharp said. For the quarter, SG&A expenses rose to 24.1 percent of sales from 22.9 percnet in the second quarter of last year.

The higher gross profit margin partially offset the rise in the expense ratio, resulting in a pre-tax profit margin of 5.6 percent for the quarter versus 5.9 percent in last year's second quarter. The effective tax rate declined slightly to 39.0 percent, and the net profit margin was 3.4 percent compared with 3.6 percent in the same period last year.

In addition to the second quarter results, Sharp announced that Circuit City's board of directors has declared a cash dividend of 2.5 cents per share payable October 15, 1990, to shareholders of record on September 28, 1990.

Circuit City Stores, Inc., with headquarters in Richmond, Va., is the nation's largest specialty retailer of brand-name consumer electronics and major appliances. At the end of the second quarter, the company operated 138 Superstores, 16 Circuit City stores and five Impulse mall stores in the eastern, midwestern and western United States.

BIRMINGHAM, MICH. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Allnet Communication Services, Inc. has dropped prices in Missouri for several of its long- distance services tailored to residential customers and small- and medium-sized businesses.

Rates for Allnet Premier(R) service from Missouri have been reduced by an average of about 5 percent.

According to Greg Jones, Allnet vice president of marketing, Allnet Premier long-distance service was designed for small- and medium-sized businesses, especially those making most of their long-distance calls within a region or to frequently dialed cities. Savings are based on calling patterns and calling areas. For example, from Missouri, "Special City Discounts," which provide 10 percent off of Business Hour rates, are included for calls made to Indianapolis, Los Angeles, New York City, downtown Chicago and Washington, D.C.

Allnet Pacesetter(R), a standard mileage band-based service designed for small commercial customers, now offers a 20-percent discount during its "Early Bird" (7 a.m. to 8 a.m.) and "Night Owl" (5 p.m. to 7 p.m.) periods. The new discount reduces effective rates for both periods by 12.5 percent.

According to Jones, one of the major benefits of Allnet Pacesetter is its flat-rate billing. Because each minute is billed at the same amount, shorter business calls are less expensive than standard services which offer billing plans with higher first-minute costs. Allnet's program of volume discounts can increase savings even more.

A large majority of residential callers make their long-distance calls in the evening. Responding to traffic patterns of its customers, Allnet has reduced interstate evening rates for Allnet Dial-1, its standard residential service, by almost 6 percent. Calls made within a radius of 125 to 3,000 miles will see slightly larger savings (about 6-1/2 percent) on the average. Allnet Dial-1 also offers the simplicity of flat-rate billing.

Allnet is one of the nation's largest long-distance carriers, offering service in every U.S. major metropolitan area. Via the Allnet network, calls can be made to any dialable location worldwide. Allnet is headquartered in Birmingham, Mich., and has Missouri offices in Kansas City and St. Louis.

CERRITOS, CALIF. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Cardis Corp. (OTC) today reported a further reduction in operating losses for the first fiscal quarter ended July 31, 1990, reflecting the trend of the preceding two quarters.

The company reported a net loss of $1,171,000 or 11 cents per share, for the first quarter, compared with a net loss of $1,762,000 or 16 cents per share, in the same period a year ago. The company posted net sales of $21,518,000 for the three month period, up from $21,301,000 a year earlier.

The company posted a small operating loss of $40,000 in the first quarter of fiscal 1991, versus an operating loss of $836,000 a year ago. First quarter 1991 results were affected by higher interest expense compared with the year-earlier period, since interest was not charged on debt deferred by Chapter 11 bankruptcy in fiscal 1990. With the company's emergence from bankruptcy, interest on debt has been charged to operations at contractual rates.

Included in the prior year's results is an extraordinary item of $1,024,000 resulting primarily from legal fees relating to the reorganization.

Kenneth D. Walker, Cardis president and chief executive officer, said the year-to-year improvement reflected the planned reductions in operating expenses and higher gross margins in accordance with management's long-term goals.

Cardis Corp. operates nine automotive parts warehouse distribution centers and 25 jobber retail stores located throughout California.

In May of 1989, Intelligent Electronics announced an agreement to purchase the Connecting Point chain pursuant to which the final installment of the purchase price would be due in 1991, contingent upon CPA's operating results through March 31, 1991. According to Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer Richard D. Sanford, "Since it is anticipated that CPA will meet the terms of the acquisition agreement, we can realize greater synergies and efficiencies by completing the integration ahead of schedule, rather than waiting until next year."

Subject to the satisfaction of the contingencies, IE will pay the remaining $18 million in the first half of 1991, bringing the total purchase price to $54 million. At least 10 percent of the final installment must be paid in cash; the balance is payable in cash or IE common stock, at IE's option.

"During the past 12 months, Intelligent Electronics has focused on integrating our operations in order to create one cohesive support organization for our dealer network," said Sanford. "IE's goal has been to provide flawless, world-class service to our customers by every standard of measurement, and the integration of the two organizations has reached a point where we anticipate a smooth transition."

The company announced plans to operate according to five operating divisions effective Nov. 1: Franchise (FD); International; Corporate Services (CSD); Company Center (CCD); and Distribution Services (DSD).

Each division will operate autonomously under the direction of President and Chief Operating Officer Michael R. Shabazian. "The new divisions will enhance the focus of the company and capitalize on its strengths. Integrating provides the logistic support to build on our leadership position " he said, adding that the mission of Intelligent Electronics remains unchanged. "We will provide world-class customer service at the lowest possible cost of delivery."

Although various franchise functions will continue to be performed at all IE locations, franchise operations will be headquartered in Denver in the newly formed Franchise Division. Said Shabazian, "We are integrating the franchise function into a single division to further accomplish our mission."

He indicated current staff levels would be maintained although some staff reporting relationships will change. James M. Ciccarelli, who formerly served as president and chief operating officer of the Connecting Point subsidiary, will be appointed president of the Franchise Division. Ciccarelli will direct all franchise functions for the three chains -- CPA, Entre' Computer Centers and Todays Computers Business Centers (TCBC) -- and will assume responsibility for franchise development, revenue growth, customer satisfaction, market development, marketing, operations and purchasing activities.

The Distribution Services Division will be headed by Stephen C. Wright at IE's Chantilly, Va., location. Wright will be appointed to the position of president, having served as vice president of Distribution with the corporation.

A newly created Company Center Division will operate IE's company- owned centers. Frank H. Slovenec, appointed president, formerly served as vice president of Sales and Marketing for the TCBC and Entre' chains.

BIRMINGHAM, MICH. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Allnet Communication Services, Inc. has dropped prices in Texas for several of its long- distance services tailored to residential customers and small- and medium-sized business.

Rates for Allnet Premier(R) service from Texas area codes 214,713 and 817 have been reduced by an average of 10 percent, in part because of a reduction in local access charges being passed on to customers.

According to Greg Jones, Allnet vice president of marketing, Allnet Premier long-distance service was designed for small- and medium-sized businesses, especially those making most of their long-distance calls within a region or to frequently dialed cities. Savings are based on calling patterns and calling areas. For example, from Texas, "Special City Discounts," which provide discounts of 10 percent off of Business Hour rates, are included for calls made to Atlanta, Chicago, Los Angeles, Oklahoma City and Washington D.C.,

Allnet Pacesetter(R), a standard mileage band-based service designed for small commercial customers, now offers a 20-percent discount during its "Early Bird" (7 a.m. to 8 a.m.) and "Night Owl" (5 p.m. to 7 p.m.) periods. The new discount reduces effective rates for both periods by 12.5 percent.

According to Jones, one of the major benefits of Allnet Pacesetter is its flat-rate billing. Because each minute is billed at the same amount, shorter business calls are less expensive than standard services which offer billing plans with higher first-minute costs. Allnet's program of volume discounts can increase savings even more.

A large majority of residential callers make their long-distance calls in the evening. NEW YORK (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - The Marcade Group, Inc. (NYSE: MAR) today reported higher revenues and lower earnings for the 13 weeks ended Aug. 4, 1990 as reflected in the attached consolidated statements of operations.

Revenues for the quarter were $97,705,000 compared with $82,902,000 for the similar period last year.

Net income for the quarter was $527,000 or $.01 per fully diluted shares, compared with the $2,489,000 or $.03 per fully diluted shares earned in the 1989 quarter.

Charles S. Ramat, president, stated, "We are pleased to report a profit in what continues to be a difficult period for the apparel business. While some of our divisions are performing well other areas of our business have felt the impact of adverse business conditions. As consumer confidence declines, some of the major customers dealing with these divisions are reducing quantities purchased and shortening the lead time we are customarily given to make delivery. This adversely impacts our profit margins. While there is no way to know how long this trend will continue, we are helpful that this situation will be alleviated in the not too distant future."

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Allnet Communication Services, Inc. has dropped prices in California for several of its long- distance services tailored to residential customers and small- and medium-sized businesses.

Rates for Allnet Premier(R) service throughout California have been reduced by an average of 5 percent. The rate reductions for Allnet Premier will be effective on Oct. 1, 1990.

According to Greg Jones, Allnet vice president of marketing, Allnet Premier long-distance service was designed for small- and medium-sized businesses, especially those making most of their long-distance calls within a region or to frequently dialed cities. Savings are based on calling patterns and calling areas. For example, from California, "Special City Discounts," which provide discounts of 10 percent off of Business Hour rates, are included for calls made to Chicago, Denver, New York City, Washington, D.C. and cities throughout Arizona and Oregon.

Allnet Pacesetter(R), a standard mileage band-based service designed for small commercial customers, now offers a 20-percent discount during its "Early Bird" (7 a.m. to 8 a.m.) and "Night Owl" (5 p.m. to 7 p.m.) periods. The new discount reduces effective rates for both periods by 12.5 percent.

According to Jones, one of the major benefits for Californians is the "Early Bird" discount for companies with long-distance traffic to the Eastern time zones. In addition, Allnet Pacesetter offers flat-rate billing. Because each minute is billed at the same amount, shorter business calls are less expensive than standard services which offer billing plans with higher first-minute costs. Allnet's program of volume discounts can increase savings even more.

A large majority of residential callers make their long-distance calls in the evening. Responding to traffic patterns of its customers, Allnet has reduced interstate evening rates for Allnet Dial-1, its standard residential service, by almost 6 percent. Calls made within a radius of 125 to 3,000 miles will see slightly larger savings (about 6-1/2 percent) on the average. Allnet Dial-1 also offers the simplicity of flat-rate billing.

Rate changes for Allnet Pacesetter and Allnet Dial-1 were effective Sept. 1, 1990.

Allnet is one of the nation's largest long-distance carriers, offering service in every U.S. major metropolitan area. Via the Allnet network, calls can be made to any dialable location worldwide. Allnet is headquartered in Birmingham, Mich., and has California offices in Anaheim, Los Angeles, Oakland Sacramento, San Diego and San Francisco.

RICHARDSON, TEXAS (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - In its latest effort to introduce alternatives that offer advanced calling features on analog switches, NAC Inc. has announced that NYNEX (NYSE: NYN) is testing its series of patented intelligent network components.

The equipment, System CONTAC BASE(R), consists of intelligent network platforms that allow telephone companies to rapidly and cost- effectively deploy advanced network features on analog central office switches. Such features -- utilizing the Signalling System No. 7 protocol (SS7) -- include Custom Local Area Signalling Services (CLASS).

Designed and manufactured by NAC, System CONTAC BASE is targeted for a field trial this month in the Boston suburb of Natick, Mass., 16 miles west of the city. The system will tap into an existing 27,000-line analog AT&T 1A ESS central office switch. The field trial is expected to last through December 1990.

Raju Patel, NAC's president and chief executive officer, said System CONTAC BASE is an economic alternative to replacing old analog switches. The product also allows companies to prepare for the emerging Advanced Intelligent Network (AIN). "This is not a technological trick," Patel said. "We're simply moving today's technology forward."

NYNEX provides local telephone service to most of the Northeast United States through its subsidiaries -- New England Telephone and New York Telephone. The company is specifically evaluating System CONTAC BASE for interLATA and intraLATA SS7 call setup, as well as other SS7- based services like CLASS and 800 Data Base Service.

Bruce Johnson, staff director-signalling at NYNEX Service Company, said the Natick trial enables NYNEX to evaluate System CONTAC BASE as one alternative to offer SS7-based services on a 1A ESS switch.

"The field test represents our need to respond to customers who want new services that previously were available only on a digital switch," Johnson said. "We recognize that it's not practical to completely replace all our existing, aging central office switches, so we are always looking at cost-effective alternatives," Johnson said.

Earlier this year NAC began shipment of System CONTAC BASE systems for deployment into Bell Canada's network. The $7 million contract is part of an Original Equipment Manufacturer's (OEM) deal with Northern Telecom Canada.

NAC, founded in 1984, is a designer and manufacturer of systems that provide advanced networking capabilities for telecommunications networks. NAC's customer base includes NYNEX, Pacific Bell, U S West and Northern Telecom Canada. Currently, NAC equipment serves about 2 million lines in North America.

LOWELL, MASS. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Wang Laboratories Inc. (AMEX: WAN) today announced that EG&G Idaho, Inc. has purchased two Wang Integrated Image Systems (WIIS) with a total value of over $800,000. The systems will provide computerized management of records for EG&G Idaho's Environmental Restoration Project (ERP) and its Radioactive Waste Management Complex (RWMC) at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL) in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

The installations at ERP and RWMC, both managed by Larry Leach, manager of EG&G's Waste Management Department, complete the first phase of INEL's long-range imaging project. At INEL, Wang imaging will be integrated with NORMS, a mainframe-based document control and records management system from Southern Electric International (SEI).

EG&G Idaho will use Wang imaging to provide better control and faster access of critical records and to assist its efforts in complying with federal and state records management regulations. In addition, EG&G Idaho will improve communications links with other agencies through Wang's VS FAX gateway, which permits FAX transmission of images from a Wang VS computer.

"Automating with image processing provides us with an effective way to safeguard our vital records for government reporting purposes and will change the way we do business in the future," said Chuck Aquilina, manager of Information Resources at EG&G Idaho.

With computer imaging systems, paper documents, such as vital records and government directives and orders, are electronically duplicated as images using document scanners and stored on optical disks for quick retrieval. The images can be viewed repeatedly but cannot be altered, ensuring information integrity. Once the documents have been scanned and indexed into a computer database, they can be accessed interactively by hundreds of users.

In May 1990, Wang and SEI announced an agreement under which both companies market customer-oriented solutions that integrate SEI's NORMS with Wang's imaging systems. The EG&G Idaho imaging procurement is the first award won by this systems integration alliance.

DANBURY, CONN. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - The Barden Corporation (NASDAQ: BARD) announced today it signed a definitive agreement to be acquired by FAG Bearings Corporation of Stamford, Conn., creating a large, strong, and competitive bearing manufacturing group designed to provide U.S. customers with a wider range of antifriction bearing products over the long-term.

Under the terms of the agreement, FAG Finance Corp., a subsidiary of FAG Bearings, will acquire Barden Corp. through a tender officer to commence no later than Friday, Sept. 21, 1990. The purchase price is $66.50 a share, which givers the transaction a value of $131,157,000 based upon Barden's 1,972,282 common shares outstanding on a fully diluted basis. Carl Norden, whose family helped found Barden, and other family members have also entered into an agreement with FAG Bearings to sell their Barden shares to FAG Bearings at the same price per share. Norden and his family currently hold approximately one-third of the company.

The transaction is not conditioned on financing. The tender offer is scheduled to close in October and is subject to required regulatory reviews.

"This partnership is a strategic step forward for Barden," said Stanley Noss, president and chief executive officer. "We are gaining a partner with compatible marketing and manufacturing philosophies, significantly larger financial and technical resources, and worldwide market presence. These capabilities will provide us with the resources to continue our successful performance in the 1990's and beyond." Noss emphasized that FAG Bearings and Barden Corp. will continue to operate as separate and distinct companies, with Barden retaining its own corporate structure and identity. Barden's headquarters will remain in Danbury, its management personnel and employee staffing levels will not change, and use of the Barden name and trademark will continue.

"We decided a strong and dedicated partner with both substantial North American operations and worldwide scope was our key to future competitiveness in the global bearings marketplace," Noss added. "We believe this transaction is in the best interest of all our constituencies."

"Our shareholders will receive significant value for their investment. Our customers will be served by a company with the same high standards for quality and service but with greater access to resources for increased capital investment and research and development spending. And our employees will benefit through increased job opportunities as part of an autonomous company within a larger bearing manufacturing group. We are doubly fortunate to have found such a partner in a Connecticut neighbor as well," Noss said.

"We are delighted to be joining forces with Barden," said Walter Schwarz, president of FAG Bearings Corp. "Since our product lines are complementary, the strategic fit between our two companies is excellent. Furthermore, the transaction will provide a means to develop additional domestic capacity to replace products FAG currently imports."

Barden's Danbury facility specializes in a broad range of highly engineered precision bearings, while FAG in North America produces heavy duty bearings, a range of standardized ball bearing products, and aircraft and instrument bearings in several North American locations.

In addition, both Noss and Schwarz emphasized the long-term growth opportunities for Connecticut they anticipate from the transaction. FAG Bearings intends to relocate the company's instrument bearing operations, currently in Stratford, Ontario, Canada, to Barden's Danbury plant, as well as introduce new product lines at Barden's manufacturing facilities.

"Moreover, Barden's products will gain access to global markets through FAG Bearings' worldwide distribution channels, greatly expanding our export potential," said Noss.

FAG Bearings, headquartered in Stamford, Conn., is a subsidiary of FAG Kugelfischer George Schaefer KGaA, a bearing and industrial systems manufacturer with 1989 revenues of $2.8 billion based in Schweinfurt, West Germany. The FAG group in North America had total sales in 1989 of $270 million and 1400 employees. The manufacturing operations of FAG in North America are located in Joplin, Mo. and Straford, Ontario, and key sales offices are in Detroit, Memphis, Toronto, and Miami. It has been doing business in North America since 1954.

The Barden Corporation, which manufactures a variety of bearing products as well as precision plastic moldings and metal stampings and assemblies, has 1700 employees located in Danbury, Bridgeport, and Winsted, Conn. and the United Kingdom. It anticipates 1990 revenues of $105 million.

FAG Finance Corp., has agreed to commence a tender offer within five business days for all outstanding common shares at a price of $66.50 per share. As soon as practicable following completion of the tender offer and after any required approvals by shareholders, FAG Bearings will cause FAG Finance Corp. to merge into the company and all remaining common shares will be converted into the right to receive $66.50 per share.

PALO ALTO, CALIF. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Emery Worldwide and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. (NYSE: T) shortened the paper trail between them today by launching an Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) partnership for exchanging invoicing and remittance data -- AT&T's first electronic link with an air freight carrier.

The billing system, which employs the Transportation Data Coordinating Committee (TDCC) transaction standard and is supported by the AT&T EDI Network will eventually eliminate paper invoicing and remittance for the more than 5,300 shipments Emery Worldwide handles for AT&T each month.

Officials for both companies say the new system will result in a "significant" savings of both time and money.

"We've leveled a mountain of paperwork by going online with this system," said James J. Kopa, Emery Worldwide's project manager for EDI billing systems. "As a result, both companies should realize greater productivity and cost efficiency."

According to Dan Whalen, EDI planning and implementation manager at AT&T, the telecommunications company last year processed some four million vendor/customer transactions via EDI.

"When we decided to expand our EDI program to air transportation, Emery and other major carriers were contacted regarding their EDI capabilities, and although we are currently testing with others, Emery is the first to go live," said Whalen.

Emery Worldwide was the first air cargo carrier to offer electronic remittance and its EDI experts played an integral part in developing "Set 110," the electronic invoicing standard for the air freight industry.

AT&T uses Emery Worldwide to transport computer and telecommunications equipment directly to its customers as well as to AT&T locations around the country. Emery also handles overnight envelopes for AT&T.

Other companies with EDI connections to Emery Worldwide include ITT, Proctor & Gamble, General Electric, and Northern Telecom Canada, Ltd. "We're working to get as many of out national accounts on EDI as possible," said Kopa.

"In our experience, existing customers may ship more often with Emery simply because it's easier to do business with us electronically. And new customers will often select us because of our EDI expertise," Kopa added.

Emery Worldwide is a diversified air freight company specializing in the delivery of urgent envelopes, parcels and heavy freight. It has headquarters in Palo Alto, Calif., and freight facilities throughout North America and 90 countries around the world.

PHOENIX (ARIZ.) PR NEWSWIRE - Zila, Inc. (NASDAQ: ZILA), the Phoenix-based health care products company, today reported fourth quarter (unaudited FY 1990) (July 31) net sales of $974,732, compared to FY 1989 fourth quarter sales of $685,549 -- an increase of 42 percent.

Zila reported net sales for all of FY 1990 of $3,444,935, versus FY 1989 sales of $2,557,798 -- an increase of 35 percent.

Net income for the fourth quarter FY 1990 totalled $90,477, compared to a net loss of $17,613 for the fourth quarter of FY 1989, or a net loss of $19,540 when adjusted by $1,927 for marketing expenses that were paid by the Daleco Zila Partnership. Net income for all of FY 1990 totalled $129,700, compared to $124,118 for FY 1989, or a net loss of $266,298 when adjusted by $390,416 for marketing expenses assumed by the Daleco Zila Partnership. Since the beginning of FY 1990, the company has absorbed all marketing expenses for its products.

"Steps taken in FY 1990 contributed to solid sales and earnings expansion," said Zila President Joseph Hines, "but, more importantly, they positioned the company for significant growth." Hines cited these factors:

-- Zilactin (non-prescription medicated gel for canker sores, cold sores and fever blisters) sales continue strong.

-- ZilaBrace and ZilaDent, after a year of market development, are contributing to sales and profits with a solid re-order pattern from major chains and wholesalers.

-- Zilactol, liquid medication for cold sores and fever blisters, was introduced in the first week of FY 1991 and has met with strong market acceptance.

-- A new Zilactin "mini-pak" is being designed for sale at convenience and sundries stores to open a previously unavailable market segment and class of consumer trade.

-- Bausch & Lomb, Inc., which earlier this year was licensed to manufacture and market Zila oral health care products world-wide outside the United States is poised to begin foreign sales, initiating a significant stream of royalty income for Zila.

-- MGI Pharma, Inc., reached a licensing agreement with Zila in the final days of FY 1990 and will soon begin selling a new compound based on the patented Zila bioadhesive formula, targeting the oncology market through MGI Pharma's experienced detailing force.

-- Drug Topics magazine (Aug. 6, 1990) pharmacists' survey says Zilactin is the second most frequently recommended canker/cold sore remedy; 28 percent of female pharmacists and 26 percent of pharmacists in the West rank Zilactin No. 1. This rapid gain in market position has been confirmed in other industry surveys.

-- Zila is working with numerous medical researchers and institutions on a wide range of studies to document the efficacy of the Zila technology and to find new applications for it, including the treatment of genital herpes (HSV II), shingles (herpes zoster) and genital warts (condyloma).

-- Zila is aggressively pursuing additional new business opportunities. Zila has no debt and over $1 million in cash.

In recent months the company eliminated all preferred stock and undertook a warrant exchange program, which had the effect of reducing the number of fully diluted shares of outstanding common stock. "The result," said Hines, "is that Zila today has a simplified corporate structure, our shareholders enjoy less dilution of earnings per share, and our prospects for growth and profit in FY 1991 and beyond are brighter than ever."

Zila has executive offices at 777 East Thomas Road, Phoenix, Ariz. 85014-5454, 602-957-7887.

LYNN, MASS. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - GE Aircraft Engines has received a contract, potentially worth $100 million in engine orders, to supply the United States Navy with 50 TF34-GE-400 high bypass turbofan engines to power its fleet of Lockheed S-3 aircraft.

Deliveries of an initial 20 spare engines will begin in early 1993. Delivery will average three units a month through mid-1994 if two contract options totalling 30 additional engines are exercised.

The Lockheed S-3A is a twin-engine, carrier-based, antisubmarine warfare aircraft. The Navy is expanding the aircraft's role, using it for multiple missions.

This Navy order revives production of an engine last delivered in August 1978. An Air Force version of the TF34 was produced through March 1983. GE has produced a combined total of 2,000 TF34 engines and has maintained a spare parts production support for the power plant.

Plans call for producing the TF34 on the same assembly line as the CF34, a commercial variant that powers Canadair's Regional Jet.

The TF34 entered Navy service in 1971 and was chosen then for its fuel efficiency, as well as the increased range and flying time capabilities it gave the Lockheed aircraft. Rated at 9,000 pounds of thrust, the engine features the lowest specific fuel consumption in its class.

SEATTLE (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Security Pacific Bank today announced a new account that offers customers at virtually every income level a way to save money easily while earning CD-like interest.

A minimum of $100 is all that's required to open the account called the Savings Builder(TM). Additional deposits ($25 minimum) can be made at any time during the term of the account, which can range from one to 15 years. The interest rate, up to 70 percent of the bank's prime rate, will be determined based on the term and balance.

"The trend in the 1990s is to save," said Vice Chairman Dave Williams, "and we believe the Savings Builder Account will allow a greater number of our customers to establish a healthy savings pattern because of its low minimum balance and deposit requirements."

As an added convenience, customers have the option of establishing Automatic Transfer Service (ATS). With this service, money can be transferred automatically from a Security Pacific checking, savings, money fund or High Yield Money Fund account into the Savings Builder Account. Customers who opt for ATS and make deposits on at least a monthly basis, will receive an ongoing 1/4 percent bonus on their interst rate.

Senior Vice President and Marketing Manager Bette Floray said Security Pacific created the new account because of customer demand.

"Our customers talked and we listened," said Floray. "Customers wanted a product that would meet their savings needs over time. And whether they're parents encouraging their children to save paper-route money or young adults saving for a home down payment, the Savings Builder Account will be an excellent tool in meeting a broad range of personal financial goals."

Calling the 1990s "The Decade of the Saver," the September issue of Money magazine reported the national savings rate recently was running at 5.1 percent of after-tax income. In 1987, that figure was 2.9 percent.

"The statistics speak for themselves," said Williams. "It's clear that we're moving toward a more saving-conscious society. The Savings Builder Account is important because it will allow the smaller saver to earn yields closer to those who invest larger amounts."

Security Pacific Bank Washington, the state's second largest commercial bank, is the principal subsidiary of Security Pacific Bancorporation Northwest, a Seattle-based, multi-bank holding company with assets of $11.2 billion. Other subsidiaries operate in Oregon, Idaho, Alaska and Canada. The Bancorporation is an affiliate of Security Pacific Corp. (NYSE: SPC), the nation's fifth-largest banking company.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - San Francisco-based Transcisco Industries Inc. (AMEX: TNIA and TNIB) today announced an agreement with PLM International Inc. (PLMI) (AMEX: PLM). The agreement is substantially the same as an agreement reached by the parties Aug. 26, 1989, which covered PLMI's 1989 Annual Stockholders Meeting and confirmed Transcisco's agreement not to commence a proxy contest regarding that meeting. That agreement was terminated Sept. 10, 1990, in accordance with its provisions. The new agreement covers PLMI's 1990 Annual Stockholders Meeting expected to be held Oct. 17, 1990, and remains in effect until Jan. 10, 1991.

Although Transcisco had no intention or plans to launch a proxy contest for the Oct. 17, 1990, meeting, the fact that Transcisco will give its proxy to PLMI to vote at that meeting will ensure that the resources of both companies do not get tied up in such a contest. Under the agreement, PLM International has agreed "to use its best efforts to cooperate" with Transcisco in the sale or disposition of Transcisco's holdings of approximately 36 percent of PLMI's outstanding common stock. In exchange, Transcisco will give its proxy to PLMI to be voted at the upcoming PLMI Stockholders Meeting, and will support the PLMI slate of directors.

Transcisco noted that this new agreement will benefit both companies by facilitating an orderly disposition of Transcisco's PLMI stock, and improved relations between the two companies.

Transcisco Industries operates rail car maintenance and retrofitting operations through its Transcisco Rail Services division, and its wholly owned subsidiary, Transcisco Tours, operates a dinner train in San Antonio, Texas and will commence operation of a luxury "cruise train" service to Tahoe and Reno from the San Francisco Bay Area starting late 1990. Transcisco owns 36 percent of PLM International, an AMEX-listed diversified equipment leasing company that operates tank cars with Transcisco's Uni-Temp heating system. Transcisco expects to diversify its exposure, both in equipment-types and geography, to proprietary transportation equipment, parts and operating business using its own unique technologies and its proven financing skills.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - United Airlines today moved to intervene in a lawsuit filed by American Airlines against the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) in Washington.

American Airlines is requesting that the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit issue an emergency stay of an order dated Sept. 12 by the FAA that approved changes to United's fall schedule at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

In its court papers filed today, United urges that the Court of Appeals not issue a stay, which would be most disruptive to the traveling public. United's brief reinforces the FAA's conclusion that American's new Sept. 15 schedule will substantially increase airport congestion at O'Hare in the evening hours. In its order, the FAA concluded that "the implementation of United's proposed schedule (effective Oct. 1) will benefit air traffic control and the traveling public at O'Hare Airport."

According to the FAA, American has threatened to "operate an alternate, 'countermeasures' schedule on Oct. 1" if United's proposal was approved. The FAA found that "even under American's alternate schedule, however, the resulting airport operation is preferable to that which would occur if the United proposal is denied."

The FAA's response to American's lawsuit also will be filed today. American has until Wednesday, Sept. 19, to file its reply. The D.C. Court of Appeals is expected to rule on the matter by Sept. 24.

MIAMI (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - On Friday, Sept. 14, General Development Corporation (NYSE: GDV) filed a motion to gain approval for a Homesite Purchaser Assurance Program with the U.S. Bankruptcy court. The program helps to assure lot purchasers that upon completing payments they will receive a deed to an improved lot in one of the company's nine Florida communities. The program offers discounts from five to 25 percent to lot purchasers, with an additional discount for customers who pay their contracts off immediately.

"The main thrust of the program is the assurance that all customers who have a contract to purchase a lot from General Development will receive title to an improved lot once they finish their payments," GDC President and Chief Executive Officer Thomas Hutchison said.

"The initial concept of the plan has been very well received, and we hope to have approval soon, so it can be implemented," he said. "This is an important part of moving forward to bring the company out of the bankruptcy proceeding."

Hutchison said the program has three main goals: -- Satisfy the lot purchasers who make up the largest group of GDC creditors, by assuring them of a deed to a developed homesite and offering price discounts;

-- Maximize the value of the $1 billion portfolio of homesite contract receivables (including all principal and interest and $300 million in receivables which the company has sold) by encouraging more people to continue payments on their contracts; and

-- Reduce the company's future development obligations by not having to make road and drainage improvements in areas where some of the unimproved lots are located.

Gordon Pfersich, senior vice president/operations, said that under the plan, all purchasers of lots in GDC's Florida communities who still have payments remaining on their contracts will be offered discounts on the original purchase price for their homesite, starting at five percent for those whose original purchase price was $18,000 or less, up to 25 percent for those whose original purchase price was $25,000 or more. Discounts will be limited to a maximum of 30 percent off the customer's remaining principal balance. For customers whose contracts included a graduated payment plan (which provided for monthly payment increases in each of the first five years of the contract) the program will reduce or eliminate the scheduled increases. Finally, those buyers who accept the program nd pay in full immediately will receive an additional 10 percent discount off their principal balance.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. sales of the Genuine Swiss Army knife by Wenger, official supplier of knives to the Swiss Army since 1908, are up 65 percent over last year, according to Precise International, Wenger's exclusive U.S. importer. "Precise will sell about 850,000 units of the Wenger Swiss Army knife in 1990," said John Bergeron, Precise's chief executive officer, "nearly triple what we were selling just three years ago." The U.S. is the world's largest importer of Swiss Army knives.

Lewis Feldman, Precise's director of sales, said Wenger's U.S. resurgence is due largely to Precise's success in signing several major distributors and retailers including Gutmann Cutlery, the country's largest cutlery importer, Best Products, the catalog showroom retailer, and Buck Knives, the country's largest sports cutlery manufacturer. Gutmann and Best formerly sold Swiss Army knives by Victorinox, the only other company licensed by the Swiss Army to produce its knives.

Based on its success with the Wenger knife, Precise plans to introduce watches and sunglasses bearing the Wenger name and the Swiss cross insignia in early 1991. "Wenger hasn't put its name on anything other than a knife during its entire 98-year history," said Bergeron, "so their decision to work with us on this is significant."

HIGHLAND PARK, MICH. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Car buyers will rate car salespersons in a new customer satisfaction program Chrysler Corporation (NYSE: C) is launching this fall.

The two-part program introduces a new Sales Satisfaction rating system and a certification program for dealership salespeople, who'll need a "passing grade" from their customers to become certified.

Tom Pappert, Vice President - Sales, for Chrysler, announced the program to U.S. dealers last week via Chrysler's national Dealer Satellite TV network.

"Our new Sales Satisfaction Index (SSI) and the Sales Certification program are industry firsts to the degree which they measure the salesperson's role in a car purchase," said Pappert.

"With SSI, a dealer has the means to listen to, evaluate and respond to the customer's input to the sales process. Pilot studies prove that the benefits are enormous.

"Our certification program raises the professional standards for salespersons which makes the customer's experience in the showroom more satisfying.

"Customer loyalty can't be won by having product quality alone," Pappert said. "Consumer perceptions about product quality are equally influenced by what happens at the dealership."

Chrysler will begin mailing SSI rating forms to customers in October and dealers will receive monthly reports in January.

Customer satisfaction surveys until now have focused on the delivery, preparation and product quality of the vehicle. However, Chrysler's new sales satisfaction survey also asks the buyer to grade the salesperson on courtesy, sincerity, availability, manner of greeting, overall appearance, product knowledge and explanation of price, warranty and delivery.

This questionnaire also asks consumers if they were offered a test drive and whether they'd make another purchase through the same salesperson.

In addition to grading salespersons, consumers will rate the dealership for its appearance, parking, pricing, service and location.

Surveys will be sent to buyers within a week after purchase.

LYNN, MA (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Turboprop engines made by GE will power the G.222 aircraft selected for the U.S. Air Force's C-27A intratheater airlifter program.

The team of Chrysler Technology Airborne Systems Inc. (CTAS) and Aeritalia won the $80.2 million initial production contract for five aircraft.

The first C-27A is expected to be delivered to Howard Air Force Base, Panama by August 1991. The aircraft will be used to move company-sized military units and their equipment to remote, unimproved airfields.

Aeritalia will supply the G.222 airframes, each powered by two GE T64/P4D turboprop engines, to prime contractor CTAS.

GE's 3,400 shaft horsepower T64/P4D will enable the aircraft to clear 50-foot obstacles with takeoff distances of 1,800 feet, and land within 2,000 feet.

"The short takeoff and landing demands of the C-27A program call for an extremely versatile and adaptable turboprop powerplant," said W.M. Meyer, manager of GE Aircraft Engines' T64 Programs. "The T64 family's distinguished history of military service around the world, and its demonstrated reliability, operability, and low life cycle cost make it the ideal powerplant for the Air Force's new airlifter."

The T64 engine family has accumulated more than seven million engine flight hours, and is currently in service on approximately 700 fixed-wing aircraft and helicopters operating in 29 countries.

EATONTOWN, N.J. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Syntrex Incorporated (NASDAQ: STRX), which recently changed its fiscal year from a year ending in October to a year ending in April, announced today the results for the first quarter which ended July 29, 1990. The company reported revenues of $20.7 million for the three months ended July 29, 1990 compared to $11.1 million for the three months ended July 28, 1989. The quarter ended July 29, 1990 represents the second full quarter of operations since the Lanier acquisition and the significant increase in revenues is primarily due to the expanded customer base resulting from the company's January 1990 acquisition of the former Lanier Business Systems unit of Harris Corporation. The company reported revenues for the three months ended April 29, 1990 of $21.9 million.

The net loss for the three months ended July 29, 1990 was $2.3 million or $.29 per share. This loss includes $830,000 of reduced gross margin as a result of the accounting treatment for the maintenance contracts acquired through the Lanier acquisition. These contracts were recorded at net cost to complete and there is no gross margin for these acquired contracts. This accounting treatment will continue for the next two quarters and will reduce gross margins by an additional $1.2 million. After Jan. 29, 1991, the company will not have to make this type of adjustment to reduce gross margins. Syntrex previously reported a loss of $6.3 million or $.83 per share for the three months ended April 29, 1990. The company reported earlier that $1.7 million of $6.3 million loss was attributed to non-recurring expenses incurred in connection with the Lanier acquisition. In addition, $1.3 million of the $6.3 million loss for the three months ended April 29, 1990 was attributed to the accounting treatment of maintenance contracts acquired from Lanier.

Dan Sinnott, chairman and CEO of Syntrex, said "after giving effect to all acquisition related accounting adjustments, the loss incurred for the three months ended July 29, 1990 was approximately $1.5 million vs. approximately $3.3 million for the three months ended April 29, 1990, adjusted for the same considerations."

Sinnott continued "the cost reductions and organizational consolidations resulting from the acquisition are starting to take hold." On Sept. 11, 1990, Syntrex announced that it had completed a major financial restructuring program and signed product and marketing agreements with Olivetti Office USA. Sinnott said "we believe that the recent restructuring program and the strategic partnership with Olivetti will give us a stronger presence in the marketplace and enhance our ability to generate profits."

Syntrex is a national Network System's Integrator. The company designs, implements and supports PC-based networks using Novell NetWare, Banyan VINES, and 3Com 3+Open network operating systems. With system engineering, service, and sales professionals in 40 cities, the company ranked as the fifth largest Network System's Integrator in 1989, according to LAN magazine.

A Geffen spokeswoman commented: "We find ourselves increasingly at odds with Def American's creative philosophy after decisions not to affix our logos to their albums by Clay, Slayer and finally, Danzig, followed by our refusal to distribute The Geto Boys album. CHICAGO (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Manville Corp. (NYSE: MVL) and the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) have agreed to a Stipulation and Order of Dismissal regarding certain allegations made by the Department of Justice (DOJ) on behalf of the EPA.

DOJ had alleged in an August 1989 civil complaint that Manville violated a consent decree issued for the implementation of a remedial action plan for Manville's Waukegan, Ill., facility. Manville had always maintained that it fully complied with the consent decree and that no violations took place, but agreed to the settlement to resolve the case quickly, according to Dale D. Wheeler, Director of Real Estate, Manville Corp.

DOJ admitted as part of the settlement that it never alleged Manville ever intentionally violated the consent decree, and that there was never any actual harm to public health. As set forth in the stipulation and order of dismissal, Manville will pay the EPA a total of $165,000, which includes $95,000 as settlement for a claim of a civil penalty and $70,000 in costs sought by the EPA.

Manville and the EPA entered a consent decree with the court in March, 1988. The decree provided for the implementation of an agreed upon clean up plan by Manville at its Waukegan facility. DOJ had alleged that Manville had violated the consent decree by improperly grading a portion of the site, causing visible emissions of asbestos to occur briefly in the work area and failing to immediately halt work upon occurrence of visible emissions, as required by the consent decree.

"The bottom line is that we were able to reach an agreement regarding our Waukegan site without a lengthy and expensive litigation process which was to no one's benefit," Wheeler said. "Manville believes that it fully complied with the specifications at issue and this was supported by the firm that prepared the specifications. The most important thing to keep in mind is that nothing in the performance of the work caused any harm to human health or the environment. Now we can concentrate our resources completing some extra work on site not required by the consent decree."

Manville's Waukegan plant has been in operation since 1923 and manufactures a variety of building materials, including roofing products, insulation, floor tile, acoustic tile, flexboard and wallboard. During these operations, solid waste was generated, some of which contained asbestos.

Most all the waste generated at the plant was deposited in an on-site disposal area, which covers approximately 120 acres of the 300 acres owned by Manville at the Waukegan plant. Materials containing asbestos have not been used in the manufacturing process at the plant since 1982. There are no residential dwellings within one-half mile of the disposal area and access is restricted.

Manville is an international manufacturing and natural resources company headquartered in Denver. The company's primary businesses include building and engineered products, fiber glass and industrial insulation products, paper and wood products, packaging, roofing systems and filtration and minerals.

ROCKAWAY, N.J. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Osicom Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: OSIC) reported net income for the quarter ended July 31 of $122,622, or 4 cents a share, on sales of $11.4 million. In the year ago quarter, the company lost $1.7 million, or 57 cents a share, on sales of $20.7 million.

Gross margins for the July 31 period, the company's second fiscal quarter, more than doubled to 16.8 percent of revenue from 7.2 percent a year ago. The higher margins resulted from a planned change in product mix that increased sales of personal computer systems.

The revenue decrease between year's second quarter and this year's was due not only to a planned reduction of sales of lower margin computer enhancement products, but also a shortage of critical components, including certain microprocessor chips and high capacity disk drives, for personal computer systems. A seasonal slowdown in Europe and softness in the U.S. retail distribution channel further impacted revenues, the company said.

For the quarter just ended, the company increased working capital $342,000 to $578,000 due to net income combined with the recognition and deferral of foreign currency transactions.

Shareholders' equity at July 31 increased to $2.0 million from $1.6 million at Jan. 31, 1990.

For the six months ended July 31, net totaled $181,515 or 6 cents per a share, versus a loss of $2.3 million, or 72 cents a share, a year ago.

Separately, Osicom said it was unable to make a scheduled $3 million principal repayment to United Jersey Bank due today for borrowings to finance its European operations. The company is working with the bank to negotiate a new repayment schedule. During the past four fiscal quarters, Osicom repaid $4.5 million in loans to UJB, reducing its outstanding balance at July 31 to $9.7 million.

EBENSBURG, PA. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - A Bethlehem Steel Corporation transportation official told a U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee hearing here today that the government should renew its commitment to upgrade and repair the nation's highway system, and called for uniformity of transportation laws within the various states to reduce commercial shipping costs.

Lawrence A. Rogers, transportation representative for Bethlehem's Johnstown-based Bar, Rod & Wire division, told the House panel that "large parts of our highway system are in disrepair or resemble parking lots at peak hours." And, he said, the lack of a good transportation network tends to put American business at a competitive disadvantage in the international economy.

Rogers' testimony before the subcommittee of the House Public Works and Transportation Committee pointed out that Bethlehem Steel is both a supplier to, and a user of, the nation's highway system, shipping more than 400,000 truckloads of steel products last year from its various steel and manufacturing plants.

"The efficiency and safety of the highways directly affect our operations," he testified.

The subcommittee hearing was chaired by Rep. Norman Mineta of California, and was held here at the request of local Rep. John Murtha of Johnstown.

In emphasizing to the subcommittee the need to upgrade and repair the nation's highway system, Rogers said preference should be given American businesses in bidding on these projects. He cited statistics that show that every $1 billion spent for highways adds $2.4 billion to the national economy and creates 50,000 additional jobs.

"With such powerful multipliers favoring domestic sourcing, providing some preference more than pays for itself in the generation of additional tax revenues," said Rogers.

The Bethlehem representative stressed the need to establish "uniformity and reciprocity between the states on regulation, registration and taxation" as part of a new Federal Highway Program." He told the subcommittee that the reduced regulation of motor carrier entry and rates, which "has contributed hundreds of billions of dollars in savings in interstate trucking since its adoption in 1980, should be extended to the intrastate operations of those same carriers."

He pointed to studies showing that continued economic regulation of trucking by states costs the national economy between $5 billion and $12 billion yearly and declared that the regulatory process denies the consumer the benefits of competition and forces motor carriers to operate unnecessary empty miles.

Rogers urged the subcommittee to include provisions in the 1991 highway reauthorization legislation that would allow the benefits of reduced state regulation to occur on intrastate truck movements.

He said Bethlehem Steel needs these legislative efficiencies to help reduce its transportation costs and thereby improve its competitive position both in this country and abroad.

NEW ORLEANS (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon Co., U.S.A. (NYSE: XON) today announced that major contracts have been awarded to develop its Mobile Bay deep gas reserves offshore Alabama. John H. Steele, Exxon USA Eastern Production Division Manager, said the company plans to begin natural gas production operations in late 1993.

"The decision to develop these long life gas reserves is another indication of Exxon's interest in pursuing domestic energy opportunities," Steele said.

Prior to production, planned expenditures of $1 billion will be made for a 300 million cubic feet per day onshore gas treating facility, three offshore production platforms, pipelines, flowlines, and six additional wells to be drilled to an average depth of 22,000 feet. Production platforms will be installed in state waters 15 to 45 feet deep in the Bon Secour Bay, Northwest Gulf, and North Central Gulf gas fields in coastal waters of Alabama. The treating facility, located in south Mobile County, is being designed to process the gas for sales into intrastate and/or interstate markets, while removing 150 long tons per day of sulfur from the produced gas.

Steele said, "Designs for the facilities will incorporate best available technologies, such as the use of special corrosion-resistant alloy metals, as part of Exxon's overall effort to ensure a safe, reliable, and environmentally sound operation."

H.B. Zachry, headquartered in San Antonio, Texas, was awarded a contract for engineering, procurement, and construction of the gas treatment plant. Stearns-Roger, based in Denver, Colo., is the engineering subcontractor. Peak construction employment will reach about 1,000 people in mid-1992. When fully operational, Exxon's Mobile Bay facilities will employ about 70 people.

Additional contracts have been awarded to Fluor, Ebasco, and Brown & Root for gathering system design, quality management services, and production facility and flowline designs, respectively. Contracts for fabrication and construction of these facilities and the offshore platforms will be awarded at a later date.

REDWOOD CITY, CALIF. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - VeriFone Inc. (NASDAQ: VFIC) today announced that its third quarter 1990 results, which will be fully reported in the third week of October for the period ending Sept. 30, will likely fall short of current estimates by Wall Street analysts who have been following the company.

"Revenue growth in the second half of 1990 has not met our internal expectations," said Hatim Tyabji, president and chief executive officer of VeriFone. "Business in our core financial market and in our rapidly expanding international markets continues to exceed our expectations, but not sufficiently to offset the shortfalls in other areas. PITTSBURGH (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Visual Understanding Systems Inc. (VISUS) announced today the introduction of two new versions of PaperSight, the "personal digital file cabinet," new PaperSight V1.2 and Professional PaperSight, for the NeXT computer.

PaperSight V1.2 is a stand-alone version, providing the user with a simplified document image management system that can dramatically increase personal productivity.

Professional PaperSight is a feature-rich, network version that provides document image management for an entire department or business.

Both versions of PaperSight enable users to scan any image from any piece of paper into the computer, where it is stored digitally in a "personal electronic file cabinet." The image of the document can then be accessed, edited, printed, faxed and re-filed, without ever having to touch the original piece of paper. By reducing or eliminating the handling of paper, PaperSight enhances a user's ability to manage the flow of documents and information within the office environment.

A unique document retrieval system based on annotation layers permits workers to quickly find information they need by referring to notes added to a document, such as the sender's name, address, topic, product sold, action taken, or client identification.

PaperSight also supports the ability to non-destructively mark up text and annotate both voice and text. With Professional PaperSight, documents can be shared among workers, with each individual adding their own annotations. As a result, the software offers an ideal environment for executives to incorporate both written comments and voice notes during their review and mark-up of documents. For example, a manager could verbally communicate instructions or explain revisions on draft material with voice remarks that can be later replayed by staff personnel.

PaperSight can receive and transmit fax documents over standard phone lines. Documents can be sent from or received at any or all machines in a network. The images can then be printed like any other file.

PaperSight V1.2 on the NeXT computer is priced at $695; Professional PaperSight on the NeXT is $1,695. Until June 30, 1991, VISUS is offering $300 off on either PaperSight product, with the purchase of a NeXT computer. Call VISUS for details.

Visual Understanding Systems Inc. is a worldwide supplier of image technology. Since 1979, VISUS has offered a variety of high quality image scanning, image processing, pattern recognition systems and services to business, education and government markets.

DALLAS (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Mortgage and Equity Trust (NASDAQ: CMETS), National Income Realty Trust (NASDAQ: NIRTS), Income Opportunity Realty Trust (AMEX: IOT), and Transcontinental Realty Investors, Inc. (NYSE: TCI) today announced dividends will be determined on an annual basis, after the trusts' calendar year end, compared with the current quarterly dividend policy.

The trusts intend to maintain annual distribution schedules as long as the uncertainties currently inherent in the real estate market continue. The minimum amount of distributions will be determined by the amount required to maintain real estate investment trust status, which is 95 percent of taxable income.

However, pursuant to a previously-announced agreement, CMETS, NIRTS, IOT and TCI agreed to distribute at least $0.94, $1.96, $0.33, and $1.06 per share, respectively, prior to May 23, 1991. These per-share amounts are based on the current number of shares outstanding.

"The board of each trust determined it was in the best interest of the trusts, and consequently their shareholders, to adopt an annual distribution policy," said a spokesperson for the trusts.

"The trusts' cash reserves are modest and cash flows are variable because of the significant investments the trusts are making in improving their real estate portfolios and continuing uncertainty over the ability of many of the trusts' borrowers to meet their obligations. The instability of the real estate markets and the virtual non-existence of real estate financing dictate that we take a conservative approach."

Continental Mortgage and Equity Trust, National Income Realty Trust, Income Opportunity Realty Trust, and Transcontinental Realty Investors, Inc. are combination mortgage and equity real estate investment trusts which operate nationwide.

Miller noted that, for the three-month period ended July 31, 1990, Royalpar lost $262,666 on revenues of $14,074,686. For the corresponding period of last year, Royalpar earned $141,465 on revenues of $16,342,054.

On Aug. 28, 1990, Royalpar announced a proposed merger with Raycomm Transworld Industries, Inc.

Miller today re-emphasized the importance of the Raycomm merger to the long-term prospects for Royalpar and its shareholders, noting that the merger would accomplish cost savings through the elimination of duplicated overhead and consolidation of regional offices.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - SHL Systemhouse Inc. (NASDAQ: SHKIF; Toronto and Montreal: SHK) of Ottawa today announced productivity and expense control measures in its Systemhouse business unit for its 1991 fiscal year, beginning Sept. 1, 1990. Similar measures were implemented during the 1990 fiscal year in its ComputerLand Canada subsidiary.

These measures are being taken in the context of an extremely strong financial position that sees the company with working capital of $123 million, of which $73 million is in cash, and shareholders' equity of $256 million.

The announcement follows actions taken during the past several weeks to streamline the organization of SHL Systemhouse Inc. and to increase the effectiveness of its sales organization. The combined emphasis on sales and productivity is designed to improve Systemhouse profit margins in fiscal 1991 in what the company expects to be a very competitive atmosphere within a potentially recessionary market.

Roderick M. Bryden, chairman of SHL Systemhouse Inc., said, "Business and government in Canada and the United States face probable recession or very small growth in 1991 and will also be impacted by rapidly changing national and world conditions. Our plan for fiscal 1991 reflects the need to restrain expenses and be more effective in winning business, relying upon our record of quality and our 16 years of experience in designing and implementing complex computer systems. While recognizing that revenue opportunities may be substantially greater, we expect revenue growth in our Systemhouse unit of 12 percent to 15 percent in 1991 with improved predictability and profit generated by productivity gains.

"In Systemhouse, about 80 percent of our operating expenses are salary and fringe benefits to employees. To achieve significant results, we must increase our operating revenue earned per dollar spent on employee costs,"

Bryden said.

Systemhouse's business plan for fiscal 1991, which began Sept. 1, includes three significant measures, following the organizational changes put in place in July and August:

-- For all management in all branch and corporate offices, 6 percent of their 1990 base salaries and all previously planned 1991 increases have been shifted into a special incentive plan to be paid out for exceeding budgeted net income for the profit center where each manager works. This shift to greater incentives affects approximately 150 people in Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom and will reduce base salary expenses by approximately $2 million.

-- Hiring of new employees will be closely monitored to ensure that the company delivers 12 percent to 15 percent more operating revenue return on employee costs. This will permit Systemhouse to continue to pay competitive salaries for staff while reducing total employee expenses by approximately $7 million.

-- Expenditures for all other expense categories will be reduced by approximately $1 million.

"We believe that these actions, and the organizational adjustment previously announced, will position Systemhouse well to achieve solid and predictable profits in fiscal 1991 while remaining a preferred employer," concluded Bryden.

FLAT ROCK, MICH. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Mazda Research and Development of North America, Inc. (MRA) announced today it will expand its Flat Rock facilities to include testing for local parts development and added development staff for the new operations.

The MRA office in Flat Rock undertakes the development of locally procured parts. The new facilities, which are located in the Flat Rock building, adjacent to Mazda Motor Manufacturing (USA) Corporation (MMUC), have been dedicated today.

The new testing facilities enable Mazda to localize testing and evaluation of locally sourced parts, thus facilitating joint development with North American suppliers from the early development stage. The time it takes to test parts can also be shortened, as a result.

The new facilities feature three hydraulic actuators, an environmental chamber an electric dynamic shaker and other equipment, all procured from U.S. suppliers.

Local parts that will be tested at the new $1.5 million facilities include interior plastic trims, audio components, and suspension components, such as lateral arms, bushes and struts.

MRA plans to introduce additional equipment as the number of parts to be tested increases in the future.

Initially, six employees have been required to staff the new facilities, raising the total number of staff members at MRA in Flat Rock to 45 people. The number of employees who engage in local parts development could grow to more than 70 within the next few years.

"The new testing facilities enable MRA to further accelerate localizing its development and engineering in North America and to achieve our goal of local content, in cooperation with local suppliers," said Hiroshi Ozeki, MRA executive vice president of eastern operations.

Mazda plans to attain 70 percent to 75 percent of local content at MMUC by 1992. Current local content at MMUC is 65 percent.

MRA employs some 150 people nationally, over 60 of whom are located in Southeast Michigan. While the majority of employees are based at the company's headquarters in California, MRA also has R&D centers in Ann Arbor and in Flat Rock. The Ann Arbor office conducts emission engineering, while the Flat Rock office concentrates on local parts development and air conditioning system engineering.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - General Mills (NYSE: GIS) today reported a 16 percent gain in earnings per share from continuing operations for the first quarter of fiscal 1991. The board of directors also declared a 100 percent stock dividend.

Earnings per share reached $1.51, compared with $1.30 earned by continuing operations a year ago. Earnings of $123.8 million represent a gain of 15 percent. Sales grew 16 percent to $1.74 billion, well above the growth rates of the markets in which the company competes.

Chairman Bruce Atwater told shareholders at the company's 62nd annual meeting that record first quarter performance was the result of continued good operating gains by both Consumer Foods and Restaurants. He cited package food unit volume growth of 11 percent in Consumer Foods, growth in established restaurant units and continued rapid new unit expansion, as well as excellent expense control throughout the company as key performance factors. "We expect 1991 to be another year of record sales, earnings and earnings per share," he said.

Prior to the annual meeting, the board of directors approved a quarterly dividend payment of 64 cents per share, payable Nov. 1, 1990, to shareholders of record Oct. 10. The 64-cent rate was established with the Aug. 1 payment and represented a 16 percent increase. This ensures a 26th consecutive year of dividend growth.

The board also voted a 100 percent stock dividend. Stockholders of record Oct. 10 will receive one additional share of General Mills stock for each share then owned. The additional shares will be distributed to shareholders beginning Nov. 7, one week later than the cash dividend payment. Future dividend payments will be consistent with the company's existing policy of maintaining a dividend payout of approximately 50 percent of earnings.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - J.E. Robert Companies (JER) today assumed control of the $2.4 billion in University Federal Savings Association assets awarded by the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC). The contract to manage and dispose of the assets is the largest awarded to date by the RTC.

Under the terms of the agreement, J.E. Robert will undertake a multimillion-dollar contract over three years to manage and dispose of assets with an approximate book value of $2.4 billion. SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has announced the settlement of a lawsuit against Bohemia Inc., Eugene, Ore., citing the construction and operation of two wood-fired boilers at its Placer County, Calif. facility without proper federal permits.

Under terms of the consent decree lodged Sept. 14, 1990 in Sacramento in the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of California, the company will correct violations of the federal Clean Air Act at its Lincoln, Calif. lumber mill, and pay a penalty of $350,000.

"This is a record-breaking penalty for the western United States, which should act as a deterrent to potential violators," said Daniel W. McGovern, regional administrator of EPA's western regional office.

Bohemia had failed to obtain a prevention of significant deterioration (PSD) permit, required by EPA to maintain air quality in Placer County. Bohemia will correct this violation by applying for the proper permit.

In addition, Bohemia failed to install emission controls called for under federal PSD regulations. Bohemia has agreed to install an electrostatic precipitator to control particulate emissions, and an ammonia injection system for the proper control of nitrogen oxide and carbon monoxide emissions.

"By complying with the requirements of the law, Bohemia will contribute to the maintenance of cleaner air in Placer County," McGovern said.

WHITE PLAINS, NY (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - American Savings Bank (NYSE: ASB) today announced that it has recovered $15.6 million in settlement of a significant New York City non-performing construction loan.

The recovery resulted from the recent sale of a 46-story, commercial and residential building at 135 W. 52nd Street. The building had received a $65 million construction loan from a consortium of banks in 1984. American Savings Bank's participation in the loan was 38.5 percent, or $25 million. The loan became non-performing in November 1987.

On Aug. 23, 1990, the building was sold at bankruptcy court auction to the highest bidder, Euro-American Lodging Corp., for $50 million. American Savings Bank's $15.6 million recovery was after pro-rata participation expenses related to liens, attorneys' fees, taxes and other bankruptcy proceeding fees. WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - IBM (NYSE: IBM) today reaffirmed its relationship with Microsoft (NASDAQ: MSFT) and extended its licensing arrangements for DOS, Windows and OS/2. Also highlighted were a series of steps being taken to improve the efficiency and productivity of development efforts for DOS and OS/2.

Although both IBM and Microsoft will define requirements for these products, each company's development efforts will primarily focus on certain products, which will be licensed to the other company. In most cases, development efforts will be centralized in one location.

Concentrating development activities in single-site locations will increase overall development responsiveness, reduce development cycles and enable streamlined migration and growth alternatives for users of DOS, Windows and OS/2.

"Today's announcement clarifies the roles of both companies toward providing a range of operating platforms to meet the varied requirements of desktop customers," said James A. Cannavino, IBM vice president and general manager, Personal Systems. "By focusing IBM's development efforts in this manner, we are better able to achieve this goal."

In order to improve the efficiency of development efforts, IBM will have the primary role for developing 16-bit and 32-bit OS/2, with Microsoft making development contributions. Microsoft continues to develop Windows and will be the primary developer for DOS. Both companies intend to contribute to the development of a 32-bit version of OS/2 that is portable to other computer instruction sets, such as RISC (Reduced Instruction Set Computing). Microsoft will have the primary role of developing this portable version, with IBM making development contributions. All of these products will be cross-licensed by both companies.

IBM also reaffirmed its intention to reduce the entry requirements for OS/2 to 2 MB, to converge LAN Manager and LAN Server and to make the functions of OS/2 EE and LAN Server available to all IBM and OEM OS/2 users. In addition, IBM will begin delivering limited shipments of a 32-bit version of OS/2 to selected accounts in 1990, and the product will be generally available in 1991.

MINNEAPOLIS (SEPT. 17) - The Board of Directors of Analysts International Corporation (NASDAQ: ANLY) today voted to increase the company's regular quarterly dividend to 14 cents per share, payable Nov. 15, 1990, to shareholders of record on Oct. 31, 1990. "We continue to expect that fiscal 1991 will produce record revenues and earnings," Lang said. "Results for the first two months of the year, however were lower than expected in most locations, and indicate that our first quarter earnings will be approximately the same as last year. ROCKVILLE, MD. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Sage Software, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SGSI), today announced the general availability of application development libraries containing high-level graphical objects designed to speed application programming under Microsoft Windows 3.0 and OS/2 Presentation Manager (PM) environments.

The two packages, called Sage Control Pak/W and Sage Control Pak/PM, provide developers with object-oriented, message-handling, reusable class libraries for building simple or complex user interfaces. The libraries can be quickly customized or run "right out of the box." Both packages also permit programmers to enhance the standard dialog controls (push buttons, radio buttons, minimizing/maximizing buttons or scroll bars) offered by Windows.

The Sage Control Paks shave weeks or even months off application development schedules, making development teams more productive, reducing the cost of bringing Windows 3.0 and PM applications to market. Written in Microsoft C, the Sage Control Paks are best suited for developing applications in either C or C++, but can be used in compiled form with any Windows compatible compiler.

Under Windows there is a special class of "child windows" called dialog controls (so named because they respond to control inputs from a mouse or keyboard). These child windows are designed for use within dialog boxes, scroll bars and other similar interface controls.

By varying the Sage Control Pak dialog manipulators, programmers can produce their own unique set of graphical controls to provide either a distinctive look for their Windows application or to maintain aesthetic consistency among applications. Control Pak/PM contains three modifiable controls -- arrow, palette and picture. Control Pak/W contains these three, plus three more -- ruler, slider and toolbox.

Sage Software, Inc. develops and markets software development tools that accelerate development while reducing costs and risks. The company focuses on providing these tools for the MS-DOS, OS/2, LAN and MVS environments. Sage has over 10,000 company sites and over 75,000 developers using its products. Corporate headquarters are at 3200 Tower Oaks Blvd., Rockville, MD 20852.

MCLEAN, VA (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - Vie de France Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: VDEF) announced today the results of its fourth quarter and fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

A major milestone was achieved as record sales exceeding $100 million were recorded for the year. Sales for 1990 reached $102,008,000, up 9 percent from $93,367,000 in the prior year. The company significantly reduced its pretax loss for the year to $4,287,000, which represented a 28 percent improvement over the prior year's $5,956,000. However, the decrease in the company's net loss was not as significant, as the company has fully utilized its income tax loss carryback availability, and therefore had less of a tax benefit to offset current operating losses. As a result of the reduction of the income tax benefit, the net loss for the year improved only slightly, to $3,097,000 (29 cents per share) versus $3,206,000 (30 cents per share) in 1989.

The 1990 results reflected a significantly reduced loss from operations. For the year, the operating loss was reduced by 60 percent, to $1,728,000 from $4,287,000 in the prior year. This substantial improvement was due principally to improved control over labor and ingredient costs, particularly in the company's bakery division.

For the quarter, the company's sales increased 16 percent to $25,491,000 from $21,931,000 in the fourth quarter of the previous year. Net loss for the quarter was $1,902,000 (18 cents per share) which compares with a net loss of $1,141,000 (11 cents per share) during the same period last year. As with the annual results, the quarterly pretax loss compares more favorably with the prior year, but the income tax loss benefit was significantly reduced for the quarter as well.

Jean-Louis Vilgrain, chairman, reported that the loss for the year resided primarily in the Restaurant Division. The Culinary Division also experienced start-up costs associated with its sous-vide plant which opened in April. The Bakery Division returned to profitability and improved its pretax profit contribution by nearly $3 million which is the result of previously announced plant modernization and consolidation programs, sales increases and lower operating costs. The pretax loss reported from restaurants improved by nearly $300,000 with the operating loss reduced by nearly $1 million. The costs associated with bringing on the Culinary sous-vide plant and related expenses had a material negative impact on the reported results as that division experienced considerably higher costs than anticipated.

Vilgrain went on to state that as a company, Vie de France funded $12.5 million in new capital spending for bakery modernization, the new sous-vide plant, and completion of the construction of new restaurants. The company's cash flow remains strong, with cash from operations reported at over $4 million for the year.

Vilgrain stated that 1990 was a major transition year for Vie de France and while profits have not yet been realized, a solid bridge to the future has been built as a result of several strategic decisions made during the year. A midyear reorganization which merged the operating subsidiaries into one company allowed several duplicate functions to be folded into a single corporate group. This change in organization has made the company a leaner, more effective operation. These changes in midyear, along with a 20 percent staff reduction announced in July, are expected to save the company in excess of $1 million annually.

With a new restaurant management group, the emphasis was changed to an operations focus, company-owned restaurant construction was curtailed, and new marketing programs were installed. These changes, along with the recently announced agreement between Vie de France and the Host Division of Marriott Corporation to begin franchising the Vie de France Express Cafe concept (modeled after the company's successful National Airport unit), will begin to improve the Restaurant Division results in the future. It is anticipated that Vie de France will have further opportunities for additional franchises in Marriott's 46 airports and over 100 travel plazas on the nation's highway systems. The strategy to sell existing units outside of Washington and Chicago continues, and there are now prospective buyers interested in stores in Southern California, Texas and Florida.

Consistent with the strategy of continued bakery modernization and consolidation, it was decided to convert the company's Boston bakery facility to a distribution center, and to close its Houston depot facility effective Sept. 30. These changes are designed to immediately enhance the Bakery Division's profits as it focuses on par-baked and frozen dough sales in Boston and begins shipping to Houston-area customers directly from other regional Vie de France facilities.

Now that its sous-vide plant has commenced operations, the Culinary Division has enjoyed tremendous response to its line by major national hotel chains, restaurants and distributors. The sous-vide product line was launched in May of this year at the National Restaurant Association Show in Chicago to unprecedented public and media response. Vilgrain stated that this product line will continue to operate at a loss for several months until the sales increase sufficiently to cover costs. He added, however, that management is thrilled with the response to this foodservice idea of the '90s which fills the requirement that most operators face of reducing restaurant costs in equipment, labor and portion control.

Finally, Vilgrain stated that with the major expansion program nearly finished they are concentrating on reducing the company's debt burden. The company recently raised $6 million through a rights offering of common stock that was over subscribed. Most of the proceeds have already been applied toward debt repayment. As a minimum, approximately $7 million in debt will be repaid this next fiscal year, which will have an immediate positive impact on earnings. In June, Vie de France sold its 50 percent interest in its joint venture operation with California Pizza Kitchen; the anticipated sale of other existing restaurants will also help to reduce debt.

The company's focus on improved operations, combined with debt reduction, is expected to enable Vie de France to continue the trend of earnings improvement during the next fiscal year.

LANDOVER, MD. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE -Safeway Inc.'s (NYSE: SWY) Eastern Division announced that on Sept. 19 it will unveil four automated checkout lanes at its Greenway Center store in Greenbelt, Md.

Safeway is the first grocer in the Mid-Atlantic to offer customers the opportunity to scan their own groceries on the user-friendly CheckRobot automated checkout machines.

Safeway has added the four automated lanes to the 12 conventional lanes at the Greenbelt store. The automated lanes will have Safeway employees bagging the groceries and when the customer is through scanning he or she will take a receipt from the checkout machine and go to one of two cashier booths installed nearby to pay for the groceries.

Don Gates, Safeway's Eastern Division senior vice president, said: "We are anxious to see how our customers respond to the opportunity to scan their own groceries. In other parts of the country where these automated checkout machines have been tested they have won the hearts of many shoppers.

"Whenever new technology offers us the opportunity to enhance our customers' shopping experience we have to take a serious look at it," said Gates. "We expect the addition of these automated checkout lanes to allow us to move more customers through the checkout process at one time."

Gates noted that many people by their nature prefer to do things themselves and these automated checkout machines (ACMs) allow such people the choice to scan their own groceries at their own pace. "Some people simply enjoy using new technology and will be attracted to the ACMs for that reason," said Gates. CheckRobot Inc. has found that in other markets where these machines have been tested they have proven very popular with children. Many parents have said it gives their children something to look forward to and makes the whole shopping trip more enjoyable.

"We are constantly looking for ways to better serve our customers and if these ACMs can speed up the checkout process at our Greenbelt store we will definitely consider putting them in other stores," said Gates.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - GE Plastics and Nailite International joined forces with a local building company and community volunteers to renovate the La Familia Counseling Center in Sacramento.

The Sept. 13 renovation was organized around the introduction of a new roofing system by Nailite International, a leading supplier of building products. The roof covering and accessories are made of NORYL(R) resin, a high-performance engineering thermoplastic manufactured by GE Plastics.

The renovation also gave contractors an opportunity to work with the new system. Each 21.5-inch by 42.5-inch thermoplastic part replaces 13 individual cedar shakes, eliminating the time-consuming task of installing one shingle at a time.

Reroofing La Familia, originally a single-family residence, required just 560 Nailite parts and 2,240 nails vs. 7,280 shakes and 14,560 nails.

GE Plastics coordinated the renovation project. Company spokesman Joel Hutt said GE has completed a number of similar volunteer renovations. Last year, GE Plastics employees rehabilitated six facilities, including YMCAs, Boys' Clubs, and homeless shelters across the country. The idea for this project, according to Hutt, was to complete the test market introduction of the new Nailite roofing system, and simultaneously help a deserving community group.

Nailite donated all roofing materials and provided on-site supervision and technical expertise. The thermoplastic roofing system represents a major research and development investment by Nailite. It was initially tested on GE Plastics' Living Environments concept house which opened in October 1989. Located near GE Plastics' headquarters in Pittsfield, Mass., the 3,000-square-foot house was designed to showcase the benefits of using high-performance engineering plastics in the building and construction market. Thirty percent of the house, including the Nailite roof covering, incorporates engineering plastic.

MANCHESTER, ENGLAND (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - United Airlines' proposed daily non-stop service linking Manchester Airport with Washington, D.C.'s Dulles International Airport would provide the greatest economic benefit to northern England, according to the U.S. airline's chairman and president, Stephen M. Wolf.

During a two-day visit to Manchester, Wolf said he is confident U.S.

regulators will select United to serve the route once the licensing process is complete. "We believe United offers the strongest case and would provide the best service of any applicant," Wolf said.

"In four short years United has developed Dulles into a major hub which will have more than 130 daily flights to 35 destinations by next summer. United is seeking to join in the development effort already under way to establish Manchester as one of Europe's premier hub airports."

The carrier said passengers and cargo shippers in Manchester will benefit from having a carrier with the global size and scope of United to provide a competitive service to and from the United States.

A large number of major companies in northern England have strong links with business and industry in the Washington, D.C., area. In addition, more than 360 companies in this region are actively involved in trade with the United States.

United has applied to serve the route with Boeing 767-200 aircraft configured in three classes. The flights will operate non-stop to Dulles and continue to Los Angeles.

United has a fleet of 450 aircraft and serves 156 cities in its U.S. domestic and international route networks. Earlier this year, United launched service linking Frankfurt with both Chicago and Washington, D.C., and Paris with Chicago.

Wolf said, "The success of our Pacific network where we have become the number one carrier and our newly and successfully launched European services have demonstrated yet again United's ability to compete and to build traffic between key business and leisure travel centers. We look forward to bringing United's brand of service to Manchester."

During his visit to Manchester, Wolf is meeting with airport officials and hosting a dinner for civic and business leaders. His stay coincides with a visit by the Washington Airports Authority and the Washington Airports Task Force who traveled to Manchester on a fact-finding mission. United already has strong support for its Manchester application from Washington, D.C., parties.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 17) PR NEWSWIRE - "With record energy use by business and industry across the Southeast, our financial performance has continued to improve. But our earnings through the first eight months of this year remain somewhat below the results we reported for the same period in 1989," Southern Company President Edward L. Addison said today.

The Southern Company (NYSE: SO) is the parent firm of five electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, Mississippi Power, and Savannah Electric. The Southern Company's common stock is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

Addison announced that net income for the first eight months of this year was $632 million or $2.00 per share -- down $11 million or 4 cents per share from the corresponding period in 1989.

For the 12 months ending Aug. 31, earnings totaled $835 million or $2.64 per share -- off $55 million or 18 cents per share from the the comparable 12 months a year ago. Earnings for the 12 months ending July 31, were $2.58 per share.

Discussing recent rate developments, Addison said the Mississippi Public Service Commission has approved two rate schedules designed to restore Mississippi Power's rates and revenues to the levels that had been set under the state's Performance Evaluation Plan. The plan -- in place since 1986 -- allowed quarterly adjustments in electric rates based on Mississippi Power's financial condition and the company's performance in key areas. That plan was ruled invalid in April by the Mississippi Supreme Court. Mississippi Power has asked the court to reconsider its decision.

The Mississippi legislature passed legislation in June to correct the technicality on which the Supreme Court based its ruling, and the governor has signed the new measure into law.

At the request of the Mississippi Public Service Commission, Mississippi Power has submitted a new performance evaluation plan for review. The commission will hold hearings on the proposal later this year.

Addison also reported that last month the Georgia Court of Appeals upheld a 1987 ruling by the state public service commission disallowing a portion of Georgia Power's investment in unit 1 of Plant Vogtle. Georgia Power has asked the state supreme court to hear the case.

If the disallowance is not overturned by the courts, The Southern Company will have to take an additional charge against earnings -- now estimated at some $190 million after taxes for both Vogtle units.

France considers at least three others to be working for Iraqi intelligence.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - The Boston Red Sox couldn't get a break just when they needed one the most.

The American League East leaders failed to convert on several opportunities in Sunday's 4-2 loss to the Chicago White Sox, dropping a four-game series in the Windy City.

''I wish I could say I was wrong, but this is the one series I feared in the last month,'' Red Sox Manager Joe Morgan said. ''We don't play well here and we never get any breaks. I'll be glad to get out of here. We're going to have a lot of fun from here to the end.''

Boston has lost seven of its last ten games and matched its longest losing streak since suffering four losses July 21-24. Chicago last swept a four-game series against Boston in April 1962.

In a mirrored performance, the second place Toronto Blue Jays have won eight of their last 10 to pull to within one game. With their 6-5 victory Sunday night, the Blue Jays posted their third straight win over Baltimore.

Boston's bad luck began in the second. With two out, Lance Johnson robbed Mike Marshall of a home run by reaching above the center field fence to knock his drive back into play. Marshall, who went 3 for 4 to snap an 0-for-20 skid, wound up with a triple but was stranded at third when Tony Pena grounded out.

The White Sox came back to score two runs in their half of the inning on an RBI single and double.

''Have you ever seen so many cheap hits in all your life?'' Morgan asked. ''I think they manufacture them here.''

Trailing 4-1 in the ninth, the Red Sox managed one run off Chicago relief ace Bobby Thigpen, a two-out RBI single to Pena. But with the bases loaded, Jody Reed lined a pitch back to the mound to end the game and give Thigpen his 51st save.

''It's never easy for us, but it sure is sweet when it's over,'' White Sox Manager Jeff Torborg said. ''After the way we played on the last road trip (1-6), it's great to come back here and sweep.''

Chicago starter Eric King, 10-4, is 2-0 in three starts since being activated from the disabled list on Sept. 3. He scattered five hits, walked two and gave up one run.

Dana Kiecker, 6-9, gave up four runs over five-plus innings. He had not given up more than three earned runs in his previous 10 road starts.

In other American League action, Detroit dropped New York 5-2, Kansas City downed Cleveland 9-6, Milwaukee tripped Texas 5-3, Seattle beat California 5-3 Oakland edged Minnesota 5-4 in 11 innings, and Toronto shaded Baltimore 6-5.

In the National League it was: Philadelphia 8, New York 3; Montreal 4, Pittsburgh 1; San Diego 9, Atlanta 4; Cincinnati 9, Los Angeles 5; Chicago 8, St. Louis 4; and Houston 3, San Francisco 2.

Tigers 5, Yankees 2

At Detroit, Cecil Fielder hit his major league-leading 47th home run and Alan Trammell delivered three run-scoring singles, pacing the Tigers. Yankees starter Chuck Cary, 5-10, was carried from the field on a stretcher after colliding with first baseman Steve Balboni while the two were chasing Darnell Coles' pop foul in the fourth.

Royals 9, Indians 6

At Kansas City, Mo., Kevin Seitzer, George Brett, Bill Pecota and Bo Jackson each homered, with Jackson's breaking a seventh-inning tie, boosting the Royals. Jackson's towering shot into the left-field seats was his 25th of the season and beat Efrain Valdez, 4-6. Jeff Montgomery improved to 6-3.

Brewers 5, Rangers 3

At Arlington, Texas, Dave Parker doubled home the go-ahead run in the third inning and rookie reliever Julio Machado worked his way out of a ninth-inning jam to guide Milwaukee. Robinson, 11-3, has won seven decisions in nine starts. Scott Chiamparino, 0-1, took the loss.

Mariners 5, Angels 2

At Anaheim, Calif., pinch hitter Ken Griffey Jr. delivered his 21st home run of the season, a three-run blast with one out in the ninth, to carry Seattle. Bill Swift improved to 6-4. Mike Jackson hurled a scoreless ninth for his third save. Bryan Harvey, 3-4, took the loss.

Athletics 5, Twins 4 (11 innings)

At Oakland, Calif., Walt Weiss smacked a two-out RBI single in the 11th lifting the A's. With two outs, Mark McGwire doubled and Terry Steinbach was intentionally walked by loser Juan Berenguer, 8-4, before Weiss connected on his line-drive single to right. Dennis Eckersley, 4- 2, went 1 1-3 innings to get the win.

Blue Jays 6, Orioles 5

At Toronto, George Bell rapped an RBI single in the ninth to give the Blue Jays the win, pulling them within one game of the first-place Boston Red Sox in the AL East. Tom Henke, 2-2, allowed two runs, one hit and a walk in two innings. Joe Price, 3-4, walked Tony Fernandez, who scored on Bell's single.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - If Fyodor Dostoevesky was still alive, Pittsburgh's loss to Montreal Sunday might have served as inspiration for ''Crime and Punishment.''

Four Expos pitchers combined on a one-hitter and Otis Nixon's triple highlighted a two-run sixth inning to help Montreal complete a season domination of Pittsburgh - 13-5 - with a 4-1 victory over the Pirates.

''We spoiled three excellent pitching performances in this series,'' said Pittsburgh Manager Jim Leyland. ''I think that is a crime.''

The Pirates lost their fifth straight, including the three to Montreal.

''We are back in the running,'' Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. ''We can make this a three-team race.''

Pirates shortstop Jay Bell, who collected Pittsburgh's only hit Sunday, said despite the punishment, the team will prevail.

''This is our fourth five-game losing streak of the season,'' Bell said. ''Each time we came out of it. We are still in first place. We are the team to beat and we are going to win this thing.''

''I tip my hat to the Expos' pitchers,'' Leyland said. ''Guys stuck the bat where the sun don't shine. This time of the year, Montreal is back in the hunt. If we took two out of three they would be done.''

Pittsburgh remains a half-game in front of New York, which lost 8-3 to Philadelphia. Montreal is six games behind the Pirates.

The Expos got help from former Pirate Scott Ruskin, 3-2, who worked 1 2-3 innings of relief for the victory. Steve Frey got four outs for his eighth save. Randy Tomlin, 3-2, took the loss.

In other National League games, Philadelphia routed New York 8-3, San Diego pounded Atlanta 9-4, Cincinnati came from behind to beat Los Angeles 9-5 and Houston edged San Francisco 3-2.

In the American League, it was: Chicago 4, Boston 2; Oakland 5, Minnesota 4; Detroit 5, New York 2; Kansas City 9, Cleveland 6; Milwaukee 5, Texas 3; Seattle 5, California 2; and Toronto 6, Baltimore 5.

Phillies 8, New York 3

At New York, Darren Daulton highlighted a 14-hit attack with a two- run homer and an RBI single and John Kruk added two triples, helping Philadelphia keep the Mets in second place. Jose DeJesus, 6-7, defeated New York for the third straight time this year. David Cone, 12-9, pitching on three days' rest, lasted just four innings.

Reds 9, Dodgers 5

At Cincinnati, Chris Sabo keyed a six-run fifth inning with a two-run homer and Hal Morris and Bill Doran smacked two-run doubles, lifting the Reds. Scott Scudder, 4-5, blanked the Dodgers for three innings in relief to get the win. Los Angeles starter Mike Morgan, 10-14, who hasn't won in a month, was rocked for seven hits and six runs over four innings.

Astros 3, Giants 2

At Houston, Glenn Davis singled home Gerald Young with one out in the ninth, lifting the Astros. Juan Agosto improved to 8-7. Don Robinson fell to 10-6.

Padres 9, Braves 4

At Atlanta, third baseman Jim Presley's team record three errors opened the gates for a seven-run second inning that gave San Diego the victory. With Atlanta leading 1-0, the Padres capitalized on Presley's miscues to hang the loss on Steve Avery, 3-9. Dennis Rasmussen, 11-13, was the winner.

Cubs 8, Cardinals 4

At St. Louis, Mo., Damon Berryhill belted three of Chicago's seven doubles, scored twice and drove in a run and Greg Smith added three RBI to lead the Cubs. Berryhill doubled in his first three at-bats, helping make a winner of Jose Nunez, 3-6. Mike Bielecki earned his first save of the season, pitching four innings. PASADENA, Calif. (SEPT. 17) UPI - ''L.A. Law,'' the last bastion of button-down collars and a TV haven for idealism, won its third Emmy for best drama series in the 42nd Annual Emmy Awards.

''L.A. Law'' skimmed past ''Quantum Leap,'' ''thirtysomething,'' ''China Beach'' and most notably the acclaimed but quirky ''Twin Peaks'' to win the category it dominated in 1987 and 1989.

Contrary to heavy speculation in the weeks leading to Sunday's ceremony, ''Twin Peaks'' - David Lynch's dark, steamy ABC drama series - was shut out in all the categories presented Sunday night, and took only two technical awards presented Saturday night, despite having the most nominations - 14.

''Murphy Brown,'' the CBS comedy series set in a network newsroom and, its star Candice Bergen took prizes for best comedy series and actress.

It was the first comedy series Emmy for the 2-year-old show, which had to surpass perennial winner ''Cheers'' as well as ''Designing Women'' on CBS, ''The Golden Girls'' on NBC and ''The Wonder Years'' on ABC.

It took nine nominations over nine years, but Ted Danson, who plays Sam Malone on ''Cheers,'' finally won for best actor in a comedy TV series.

His co-star and co-award presenter, Kirstie Alley, earlier had ribbed Danson about his poor track record, likening it to taking a tease to the drive-in theater and being continually frustrated.

''The Simpsons,'' Fox Broadcasting's oddball animated family, presented the best comedy actor category during the program, broadcast on Fox from the Pasadena Civic Auditorium.

Underachiever Bart Simpson tried repeatedly to enter his name into the list of nominees, then tore up the envelope containing the winner's name. Father Homer suggested they pick a name, any name.

''Does anybody remember one?'' he whispered to his panicked family.

Bergen, who plays the title role in ''Murphy Brown,'' won her second Emmy in a row.

''Delta (Burke) is going to be waiting for me in the parking lot,'' she said, referring to a fellow nominee.

Peter Falk, whose trench-coated, rumpled detective ''Columbo'' began in 1971 on NBC and resurfaced on ABC, won his fifth Emmy - fourth for the Columbo role - for best actor in a drama series.

''It's my birthday,'' he told the audience. ''This morning I got three shirts and a dozen golf balls, and tonight ... it's a good country.''

Patricia Wettig, who plays cancer-stricken Nancy Weston on ''thirtysomething '' won her second Emmy for best actress in a drama series.

''I feel so lucky to be given an award for something I so love doing, '' Wettig said.

No single show dominated the awards. The winner of the most statuettes was ''The Tracey Ullman Show,'' which is no longer in production.

The academy awarded Ullman's writing team and its star for best performance in a variety or music show only months after Fox canceled it because of low ratings.

''Maybe I should have taken that two minutes in the middle of 'The Simpsons ''' said the star of the show that introduced the animated family to Fox viewers in vignettes between sketches. ''I breast-fed those little devils.''

''Caroline?,'' a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation on CBS, tied with ''The Incident,'' an AT&T Presents special, for best drama or comedy special.

Jimmy Smits, with his fourth nomination, won his first Emmy for the best supporting actor in a drama series as Victor Sifuentes in ''L.A. Law,'' beating a field that included Richard Dysart and Larry Drake, two of his co-stars.

Alex Rocco, who played a Hollywood agent on the short-lived series ''The Famous Teddy Z,'' won for best supporting actor in a comedy series.

Bebe Neuwirth, psychologist Lillith Crane of ''Cheers,'' won the best supporting actress in a comedy series.

''In Living Color,'' the new nothing-is-sacred variety show on Fox, won the prize for best variety, music or comedy series.

Two directors, Scott Winant of ''thirtysomething'' and Thomas Carter of ''Equal Justice,'' both on ABC, tied for the drama series directing award, shutting out David Lynch of ''Twin Peaks.''

The award for best directing of a comedy series went to Michael Dinner for ''The Wonder Years.''

Veteran stage and screen actor Hume Cronyn won the Emmy for best actor in a mini-series or special for ''Age-old Friends'' on HBO, and Barbara Hershey won the actress award in the same category for ''A Killing in a Small Town'' on CBS.

Comedian Billy Crystal, who wrote his HBO special ''Billy Crystal: Midnight Train to Moscow,'' and the team of writers from ''The Tracey Ullman Show'' tied in the best writing of a variety or music program.

The choreography award went to Paula Abdul, Michael Darrin and Dean Barlow for the ''17th Annual Academy of Music Awards.''

Among the 32 statuettes bestowed Sunday night was the coveted Governor's Award given to Leonard H. Goldenson, the retired chairman of ABC who now heads the executive committee of the network's parent company, Capital Cities-ABC Inc.

ABC led the network pack with 22 awards over the two nights, followed by NBC with 18, CBS with 14, Fox and PBS with 9 and HBO with 8.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (SEPT. 17) UPI - Financial aid to Egypt, Turkey and Jordan topped the agenda at a meeting set for Monday of European Community foreign ministers amid concern a split over tactics may delay final approval.

Aid to the three countries hardest hit by the Persian Gulf crisis was approved in principle by the foreign ministers at a Sept. 7 meeting in Rome, but a precise amount was not set.

Last Wednesday, the EC executive commission proposed an aid package worth $1.95 billion. However, several countries led by Britain argue the EC should not set an exact figure until negotiations can take place with other donors, including oil-rich Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates.

By publicizing an aid formula, and the EC's share in it, the Community could limit the overall contributions from other nations, Britain contends.

''As there is not yet a consensus on what other Western and Arab countries will contribute, an EC figure would seem to be premature,'' said a Foreign Ministry spokesman for Belgium, which agrees with the British position.

Italy, which holds the rotating EC presidency, wanted the foreign ministers to approve a precise aid figure Monday to show Europe's commitment to the U.S.-led opposition to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The weekend announcement that West Germany will contribute nearly $2 billion toward the gulf effort could further complicate the EC foreign ministers' debate. U.S. officials had been most critical of what they perceived as German and Japanese stinginess. Friday, Japan said it was increasing its overall gulf contribution from $1 billion to $4 billion.

EC diplomats concede that a delay in approving an aid package could send the wrong signal to the United States, which has increasingly pressured European allies to contribute more.

''We think it's important to send a clear political message right away by setting aid figures,'' said an official of the EC Commission.

Another aid package, $58.5 million for humanitarian relief to gulf refugess, was expected to be easily approved by the foreign ministers.

Also on the agenda were relations with Israel, the status of talks between the EC and the six-nation European Free Trade Association and trans-Atlantic relations.

The foreign ministers were to also discuss logistics for extending an aid program for Poland and Hungary to four other countries - Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and East Germany.

That program, launched last year by 24 wealthy nations, is administered by the EC executive commission. Extension of aid to the four other countries was approved by the 24 foreign ministers in July.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - Iraqis massed in the streets of their nation and chanted in anger over a televised message by President Bush warning them they cannot win a war in the Persian Gulf and that Saddam Hussein must pull out of Kuwait, a report said.

The Iraqi state-owned news agency said, ''Millions of Iraqi masses this evening took to the streets and public squares throughout Iraq to express their surging anger and condemnation'' of Bush's message from the White House Sunday.

The Iraqis chanted anti-American slogans to protest ''the falsifications and hollow arrogance that characterized his words,'' the news agency said.

Standing in front of his desk in the Oval Office, an American flag in the background, Bush told the Iraqi people of the high price they will pay, in terms of political isolation and economic deprivation, for the occupation of Kuwait.

''Perhaps your leaders do not appreciate the strength of the forces united against them,'' Bush said in a broadcast with Arabic subtitles. ''Let me say clearly there is no way Iraq can win. Ultimately, Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait.''

With the U.S.-led multinational force in the Persian Gulf region and Washington's allies showing solidarity in their response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Bush said Iraq stands ''isolated and alone.''

The U.N. Security Council Sunday unanimously condemned Iraq for sending troops into foreign diplomatic compounds in Kuwait as well as rounding up foreign nationals, and considered further punitive actions, including a possible air blockade against Iraq.

The resolution followed Iraqi troops storming the diplomatic compounds of France, Canada, Belgium and the Netherlands in Kuwait last week and the brief detention of their personnel. The whereabouts of three French civilians taken during the raids Friday are not known.

France, enforcing retaliatory measures, rounded up at least 29 Iraqi nationals for immediate expulsion. Italy gave the Iraqi military attache and his staff 10 days to leave the country.

While U.S. officials had no idea how widely Bush's eight-minute broadcast to the Iraqi people was seen in Iraq, White House spokesman Bill Harlow said U.S. diplomats in Baghdad reported the taped message appeared to have aired on Iraqi TV without censorship.

Harlow also said ''the president's words must have struck home, given the lengths to which the Iraqis went to attempt to discredit them.''

Immediately after Bush's speech, Iraqi TV broadcast a more than 20- minute rebuttal in which Miqdad Muradi, Saddam Hussein's spokesman, denounced Bush's speech as full of ''claims and lies'' and appealed to the Iraqi people to stand up against the U.S. president.

''Bush believes that the whole world is ready for a new world order - a world in which the U.S. is in control. For he wants to be the leader of the world. As he is leader of the U.S., he is also dictator of the whole world,'' Muradi said.

In his message, Bush avoided attacks on Saddam himself and reassured the Iraqi people that, ''We have no quarrel with the people of Iraq.''

''I've said many time and I will repeat right now: Our only object is to oppose the invasion ordered by Saddam Hussein.''

Reminding the Iraqi people of their eight-year war with Iran that ended in 1988, Bush said ''Now, once again, Iraq finds itself on the brink of war. Once again, the same Iraqi leadership has miscalculated. Once again, the Iraqi people face tragedy.

''Today, opposed by world opinion, Iraq stands isolated and alone,'' he said, cautioning, ''I do not believe that you, the people of Iraq, want war.''

MANILA, Philippines (SEPT. 17) UPI - Calling opponents of U.S. bases in the Philippines ''small groups of noisy people,'' Defense Secretary Fidel V. Ramos said Monday the country needed the installations, but he defended a gradual phaseout until the end of the century as beneficial to both sides.

Ramos discussed the issue in an exclusive interview as the second round of U.S.-Philippine talks was scheduled to start Tuesday to discuss renewal of a 1947 agreement scheduled to lapse Sept. 16, 1991.

U.S. government sources have reportedly said the United States was willing to agree to a phaseout of the bases over a five- to 10-year term. A number of Philippine legislators and other public figures have demanded the end of a U.S. military presence.

''A gradual phaseout gives both countries time to adjust to a new situation,'' said Ramos, a 1950 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

Despite his defense of a phaseout, Ramos did say the bases were needed. He said surveys showed Filipinos favored retention as well as extension of the bases agreement, and called opponents ''small groups of noisy people.'' The defense secretary, however, conceded difficulty might arise in getting the Philippine Senate to ratify a new agreement.

Ramos said Filipinos should not create ''new problems'' with a demand for the sudden elimination of the bases.

''More time is needed, be it just short of the 21st century - not a sudden stroke without planning.

''The gradual phaseout is a termination plan, not an extension plan,'' he said in his office at the Department of National Defense in Camp Aguinaldo in neighboring Quezon City.

Even with the United States and the Soviet Union ''embracing each other,'' said Ramos, the bases were necessary in a world becoming increasingly multi-polar.

He said Philippines neighbors were keeping their military ties elsewhere.

''The Commonwealth countries are still tied up with mother United Kingdom,'' he said. ''The world is a global village. We cannot be isolated from our friends.''

Ramos said changes in Eastern Europe and in the Middle East as well as internal events such as the July earthquake had made the climate in the Philippines more favorable to the presence of U.S. bases.

He said a number of options existed for the future of the bases, including joint U.S.-Philippine military use, Philippines civilian use, joint U.S.-Philippine civilian use, joint Philippine-foreign use.

''A lot of time is needed to make any of these a reality,'' he said.

He said he wanted from the United States for use of the bases a compensation package that included enough surplus equipment to equip a fourth engineering battalion in northern Luzon to assist in clearing areas damaged in the July earthquake and building roads and bridges.

BEIJING (SEPT. 17) UPI - Authorities have warned government employees to avoid foreign reporters and to beware of possible foreign saboteurs bent on disrupting this month's Asian Games ''everywhere and anywhere,'' Chinese sources say.

The latest calls for vigilance are part of a mounting security campaign to ensure the smooth production of China's first international sports meet opening in Beijing Sept. 22.

In a meeting earlier this month, senior Communist Party official Li Tieying gave officials from central government units strict orders to stay away from foreign reporters during the 16-day Asian Games.

''Absolutely no unauthorized contact with foreign reporters is allowed, including even casual encounters,'' Li said, according to a government official who attended the Sept. 5 meeting.

More than 3,000 foreign journalists will be in the capital to cover the quadrennial sports meet, and China is anxious to present a harmonious facade in the wake of last year's tumultuous democracy protests and their violent suppression June 4, 1989.

''The government is very nervous about having so many reporters here at a time when China is so unstable,'' the official said, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

Li, a member of China's ruling Politburo and the Minister of Education, also instructed cadres to wear ''clean, attractive clothing,'' avoid street disputes, and to ''be enthusiastic about sports events'' during the Games.

Official paranoia over any possible threats to the Games escalated with a new police warning to beware of foreign saboteurs allegedly dispatched to the capital on a mission to mar the event.

''Hostile forces and enemies in exile have sent people to disrupt the Asian Games with sabotage and explosives,'' the Beijing Public Security Bureau said in an internal notice issued to government work units Sept. 12.

''These forces include anti-Communist and anti-government groups and individuals who plan to sabotage the Games not only at sports venues, but everywhere and anywhere,'' the warning said, according to a source who read the notice.

Officials have stated repeatedly and without elaboration that ''hostile elements at home and abroad'' may try to sabotage the event, but the recent warning implied that such groups have actually been detected.

Deputy Director of Security for the Asian Games Wang Dingfeng said Friday that the government would deploy large numbers of security officials to prevent any disturbances by ''criminal elements'' plotting sabotage.

Chinese sources close to the Beijing Military Region say at least one recent theft of ammunition has been reported from an army depot outside Beijing. They had no details on the type of ammunition stolen.

A party official who heard the latest warning speculated that security authorities are exaggerating in order to intimidate possible troublemakers.

''They're probably just saying that to keep everyone on guard,'' the official said.

Special warnings also have been issued to students, who led the 1989 protests and have since been subjected to a series of punitive educational policies.

Students at prestigious Beijing University, a center of last year's unrest, have reportedly been warned by department heads to ''obey discipline'' and avoid disrupting a Sept. 18 Asian Games torch parade that will pass through the western university district.

Authorities are apparently fearful that the spectacle of a procession near the university will evoke memories of the spontaneous pro-democracy marches that began on Beijing university campuses last spring and spread nationwide.

DETROIT (SEPT. 17) UPI - The United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. announced a tentative agreement early Monday on a new three-year labor pact for about 310,000 active and indefinitely idled workers containing gains in job security and pensions.

The tentative agreement included a 3 percent wage increase in the first year plus 3 percent lump sum payments in the second and third years.

The union and nation's top automaker gave word of the agreement at GM's Detroit headquarters just after 2:30 a.m., following about 41 hours of nonstop bargaining that began about 9 a.m. Saturday. The two sides had agreed to extend indefinitely the deadline of the existing contract past the Friday midnight deadline.

''We have been tremendously successful in this set of negotiations,'' UAW President Owen Bieber said, but declined to be specific about details of the pact until GM workers ratify it, most probably by Sept. 30. ''We had many difficult things to face, many of them none of our doing.''

UAW Vice President Stephen P. Yokich, chief negotiator for the union's GM Dept., said ''we had a rough road to hoe on some issues'' but said he was pleased with the agreement.

GM Chairman Robert C. Stempel said in a statement that the tentative contract would ''provide the basis for a new level of trust'' and help the carmaker continue to improve its market share profitably.

No details of the tentative pact were immediately available, pending a morning board meeting and approval by the union's 400-member GM Bargaining Council Monday in Dearborn, Mich., which must be done before a ratification vote by workers.

The council will most likely closely scrutinize the tentative agreement, because under the current contract, GM managed to lop off about 45,000 jobs by calling several plants ''indefinitely idled'' instead of closed, skirting what was thought to be a moratorium on all plant closings.

GM Vice President Alfred S. Warren, Jr., the automaker's chief bargainer, ignored questions about whether GM might have to close more plants, instead boldly predicting the automaker would raise sales and create more jobs.

''Our eyes are riveted on the sky,'' Warren said. ''We are looking to expand our industry. We're looking to increase our market share and we're looking to add employees to our ranks.''

Still, industry analysts say GM, which has seen its share of the U.S. auto market shrink nearly 10 points to about 36 percent during the last decade, must reduce its workforce by about 60,000 workers during the next three years and close more plants to get production in line with demand.

It is believed that the extended bargaining focused on resolving the traditionally tough ''money'' issues, notably the union's top priority of achieving enhanced job security and in particular, the fate of about 30,000 laid-off workers at GM.

If ratified, the union will use its agreement with GM as a pattern for new contracts at rival carmakers Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., whose agreements also were to expire at Friday midnight. While Bieber said the GM contract ''can be fitted very well'' to those carmakers, what remains to be seen is if those two carmakers, especially third- ranked Chrysler, will agree to it.

Meanwhile, nearly 13,000 Canadian Auto Workers members were to walk the picket lines Monday at Ford Motor Co. of Canada's nine Ontario plants and one parts depot. The CAW struck Ford Canada after their Friday midnight deadline expired without the two sides reaching an agreement.

Bargaining resumed Sunday at the subcommittee level with the two sides were still far apart on key economic issues.

CAW President Robert White warned Sunday he would recess negotiations ''for a week or 10 days'' if there is no new offer by Ford Canada by Tuesday on economic issues like wages, cost-of-living adjustments and job security.

''We're not going to sit around here and negotiate with ourselves,'' White said, adding he did not know whether Ford had been waiting for GM and the UAW to reach agreement first.

A prolonged walkout at Ford Canada's facilities could affect Ford's U.S. operations within about 10 days to two weeks. Hardest hit may be Ford assembly plants in Michigan, Chicago and Atlanta that depend on V6 engines made at Ford's Windsor plant for cars like the Taurus, Sable and Continental.

Bargaining was expected to resume at 10 a.m. EDT Monday. Company spokesman Jim Hartford said the two sides were still far apart on the major issues of wages and paid time off.

''We are a considerable distance apart, but dialogue continues,'' Hartford said.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - Fall-like weather arrived in the Northeast and mid-Atlantic states Monday as temperatures dropped below freezing in some areas, while clear, pleasant weather covered the West and South and rain hit Texas.

Flash flood warnings were in effect throughout south central Texas, and local authorities reported several small roads under water following persistent thunderstorms along the San Saba River.

The warnings were in effect south of San Angelo and the Sutton County sheriff's office said four farm-to-market roads were closed because of high water and a fifth was expected to be closed before the waters receded.

The Northeast and Middle Atlantic states shivered as cool weather followed a cold front that passed through the region Sunday bringing violent thunderstorms that downed tree limbs and dumped hail along the coast.

The National Weather Service posted frost advisories and warnings in the Southern Tier and Catskill regions of New York and northwest Pennsylvania as temperatures dropped into the 30s in most of the area and as low as 25 in the northern mountains of western Pennsylvania.

The West enjoyed pleasant weather and even the normally cold and windy Candlestick Park in San Francisco was warm and sunny Sunday.

The mercury reached the 95-degree mark in Las Vegas Sunday as a moderate cool front moved into the area from the Pacific Northwest. Overnight lows Monday were in the high 60s.

Developing high pressure in the eastern Pacific will bring sunny skies to western Washington Monday afternoon after morning fog and low cloudiness. A cold front moved across Montana with variably cloudy skies and cool overnight air.

High pressure gave much of the South beautiful weather - generally fair with mild temperatures, but the heat lingered in some areas.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 17) UPI - An earthquake measuring 1.9 on the Richter scale rolled through the downtown area early Monday, but most residents slept through the mild temblor, authorities said.

The quake measuring 1.9 on the Richter scale hit the area at 1:03 a.m., said Douglas Smith, a spokesman for the Caltech Seismology Laboratory.

The epicenter was 4 miles north of downtown Los Angeles.

Police said they got no calls asking about the temblor and officers didn't even feel the shaker.

''I've felt heavier trucks go by,'' said Smith, who lives in 9 miles north of downtown in Pasadena.

''I missed the whole thing.''

BEIJING (SEPT. 17) UPI - Vietnam's prime minister and Communist Party leader held secret talks with Chinese officials early this month that led to a breakthrough agreement toward a peace settlement by Cambodia's warring factions, foreign diplomats said Monday.

The talks were the first among the two nations' leaders since Hanoi and Beijing fell out more than a decade ago. Vietnam invaded Cambodia in late 1978 and Vietnam and China fought a brief border war the following year.

Western and Asian diplomats said Vietnam's Communist Party leader Nguyen Van Linh and Prime Minister Du Muoi, along with former Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, secretly traveled to China for talks on Sept. 3- 4 with Chinese Communist Party leader Jiang Zemin and Premier Li Peng.

The talks were believed to have taken place in Beijing, the diplomats said.

Chinese officials quietly informed some Asian embassies of the meetings during the past week, but have declined to discuss the subject with Western diplomats or reporters.

The meetings preceded by a few days the breakthrough accord in Jakarta, Indonesia, on Sept. 10 among Cambodia's warring factions to accept a U.N. framework for a peace settlement and form a transition national leadership until the plan can be implemented.

''The Vietnam-China talks were mostly on Cambodia,'' a Western diplomat said. ''That's why the Jakarta meeting was a success.''

China is the key supporter of the three-faction resistance fighting the Vietnam-installed Cambodian government. Beijing is also the only major backer of the communist Khmer Rouge, the strongest and most controversial of the resistance groups.

The diplomats said the secret talks led to acceptance by Vietnam and the Phnom Penh government of the peace settlement framework devised by the permanent five members of the U.N. Security Council: the United States, the Soviet Union China, France and Britain.

The factions also agreed to establish an all-party Supreme National Council to work on peace formulas and work with the U.N. in administering Cambodia during a cease-fire and until free elections can be held.

The Cambodian council held its first meeting Monday in Bangkok.

At the secret talks with Chinese leaders, one diplomat said, ''the Vietnamese signed onto the Perm-Five peace plan. The question, is what did they get in return?''

China and Vietnam have edged closer in recent years despite more than a decade of enmity, including border clashes through the mid-1980s and armed clashes as late as 1988 over a disputed island chain, the Spratlys, in the South China Sea.

Chinese and Vietnamese foreign ministry officials have met several times in the past two years. But while Hanoi has sought an improvement in bilateral relations, Beijing has insisted on a Cambodian peace settlement, including a full withdrawal of Vietnamese troops.

Diplomats said one Chinese concession is believed to be that former Vietnamese Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap will visit Beijing, apparently beginning this week, to attend the Asian Games opening next Saturday.

Giap led Vietnamese forces against the French and U.S. armies and formed the military that hurt Chinese troops badly in the 1979 border war.

''We think he will also continue the talks,'' a Western diplomat said.

As another sign of improving bilateral relations, Vietnam's athletic delegation to the Asian Games crossed into China Monday through the so- called ''Friendship Pass'' on the border with China's southern Guangxi province, Chinese state television reported.

The delegation will travel by rail to Beijing. The pass, opened in friendlier times, was closed after the 1979 border war.

PICAYUNE, MS (SEPT. 17) UPI - A rebellious, troubled teenager drove around town drinking beer after allegedly slaying his grandparents and mentally retarded brother and aunt, authorities said.

John Morrell Frierson, 17, was charged with four counts of capital murder and two counts of rape after the attacks, during which he allegedly sexually assaulted his grandmother and aunt, said Pearl River County Sheriff Lorance Lumpkin.

Lumpkin said Frierson, armed with a shotgun and .22-caliber rifle, was arrested without incident Sunday at an apartment complex in Picayune. He was held without bond.

Frierson is charged with shooting and killing his grandfather, Ray Merle Frierson, 61; his grandmother, Molly M. Frierson, 58; his 13-year- old brother Josh Morrell; and 38-year-old Pam Howard, Mrs. Frierson's daughter.

Lumpkin said the grandparents had legally adopted Frierson about 10 years ago after the body of his mother, Debra Morrell, was found dumped in a central Mississippi county. No one was ever charged in her death, he said.

An unidentified daughter found the bodies sprawled inside the family home in the Nicholson community south of Picayune on Mississippi 607 Saturday night after she had failed to reach her mother by telephone. John Frierson also lived at the home.

Investigators speculated Frierson had been out during the night and returned to the family home about 4 a.m., when he went on the killing rampage.

Lumpkin said investigators believe Molly Frierson was shot as she opened the door to a bedroom and that her husband was then killed as he got out of bed. Josh Morrell was fatally wounded when he sat up in his grandparents bed.

Howard was shot in another bedroom with a .22-caliber rifle, Lumpkin said.

''Mr. and Mrs. Frierson probably endured more than the other two because they were shot with two different firearms and beaten,'' Lumpkin said.

Josh Morrel and Howard were mentally retarded, Lumpkin said, adding their handicap could have impeded a possible escape.

Following the murders, Lumpkin said, Frierson allegedly took $200 from his grandparents and out of their car. He picked up a 17-year-old friend and ''they went and bought some beer and spent the course of the day drinking and riding around,'' Lumpkin said.

Lumpkin said Frierson also faces two counts of armed robbery.

The sheriff's office received a tip that led to an apartment where Frierson was arrested without incident.

Lumpkin said the unidentified teenage friend was held for questioning, but no charges have been filed.

The sheriff said John Frierson had abused drugs and alcohol and had been involved in minor criminal activity. ''They just couldn't do anything with him '' Lumpkin said.

AL AZRAQ, JORDAN (SEPT. 17) UPI - There was plenty of water for everyone, but a fight between two Bangladeshis broke out anyway as stranded Asian workers lined up at a water tank.

Dozens of refugees from the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait ran through rows of white tents to see what was happening as a single unarmed Jordanian soldier restored order. After a few minutes, camp leaders brought together the two angry men, blood running down their faces, for a reconciliation.

The fight in the Al Azraq II refugee camp was another sign of the rising frustration among Asian workers who have been waiting up to a month in the desert for a chance to return home.

''If you told them they are leaving in 15 days, then they can manage, '' assistant camp director Ali el Hadid said. ''But if they don't know when theyare leaving, they start asking questions and get nervous.''

Conditions at the two Al Azraq camps set up last week are much better than those at earlier camps hastily built in the neutral zone between the Jordanian and Iraqi borders as tens thousands of workers fleeing Iraq and Kuwait sought refuge in Jordan.

The new Al Azraq camps are located in a broad desert valley about 50 miles from the capital Amman, making deliveries of supplies easier. The tents are laid out in rows to facilitate food distribution. There are tented, covered latrines, piped water and even electric lighting in parts of the sprawling camp, which can expand to hold 20,000 people.

About 8,000 Asians were housed in Azraq I over the weekend with 20 to 50 busloads of new arrivals coming every day. No one left.

Even with the tolerable conditions, the refugees want more food and blankets, but most of all they want some assurance they will be sent home.

''We don't know when we can go home. We came here with the hope of being repatriated,'' said Mohammed Abdul Wadud, 50. ''Our turn must have come by this time.''

Many Bangladeshis complained that their nation's consular officials had not come to see them. Some spent up to a month at the squalid Shalaan I camp before being transferred to Al Azraq.

Increasingly, the workers are becoming impatient with the austerity of camp life. On Saturday, about 500 Bangladeshis held a demonstration demanding food. Relief workers said they explained that the workers had not yet received their food because of the distribution schedule.

A volunteer doctor said no serious health problems had been reported, but that dehydration, colds and diarrhea were the most common complaints.

More than 400,000 refugees have entered Jordan since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. The international effort to repatriate the penniless workers has eased the crisis, leaving about 29,000 in Jordan as thousands depart every day.

Relief workers, however, are worried that tens of thousands more could pour across the Iraqi border at any time and that the rainy winter season may start before the desert camps are emptied.

''The main problem is people are still coming. Though the conditions here are sustainable now, the conditions may not be sustainable in the winter,'' said the Rev. William Taylor, an Anglican priest who is helping run the Mercy Camp.

''Time is very important. The scale of the evacuation problem must be put under control by winter,'' he said.

Already the Red Crescent is passing out more blankets because of the increasingly chilly September nights. During Jordan's winter, it rains frequently and occasionally snows.

In the meantime, the refugees spend hot days washing or remain inside their tents, out of intense sunlight.

''It is better here. We feel secure,'' said Cecil Quimson as he relaxed under a tarp with other Filipino workers. The 34-year-old electrician said officials from the Philippines Embassy had told them they will be repatriated in one or two weeks.

''Even if it is OK here, we want to go,'' he said. ''Our families are worrying too much about us.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 17) UPI - Hotel queen Leona Helmsley took out a full-page ad in The New York Times Monday to berate Iraqi leader Sadam Hussein for calling his hostages ''guests'' and appealing to him to let them go.

''I know something about how one is supposed to treat guests, Mr. Hussein,'' said Helmsle, who is fighting a four-year sentence to federal prison for tax fraud.

''In your bizarre world where detention centers have become hotels and hostages have become guests, I can make one recommendation that I have never made in all the years I have been welcoming people: Mr. Hussein, it is time to check out,'' the ad said.

''In the name of humanity, and on behalf of families who fear for the lives of their loved ones, I ask that you release these hostage at once and confront this conflict of your making with the human shields you now cower behind.''

Helmsley, wife of real estate mogul Harry Helmsley, was convicted in federal court Aug. 30, 1989, on charges of cheating on millions of dollars in income taxes. She was sentenced to four years in prison and fined $7.1 million. Her attorneys are appealing.

PARIS (SEPT. 17) UPI - Defense Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement played down Monday France's decision to send 4,000 troops to the Persian Gulf, saying the deployment was not intended to lock his country ''in the logic of war.''

''The policy of France, as the president of the republic recalled, remains the embargo, to constrain Iraq to return to international law,'' Chevenement said in an interview with the business newspaper ''La Tribune de l'Expansion.''

''It is not a question of locking ourselves in the logic of war but of reinforcing the dissuasion to discourage a new aggression.''

Chevenement consistently has poured cold water on hawkish statements by Foreign Minister Roland Dumas and Prime Minister Michel Rocard, leading to speculation he soon may resign.

Saturday, Chevenement was visiting Saudi Arabia when President Francois Mitterrand convened an emergency meeting of his inner cabinet and decided to send 4,000 troops to the gulf and expel several Iraqis in response to Iraqi troops violating the immunity of the French Ambassador's residence in Kuwait.

The troops seized the French military attache and three civilians, but freed the military attache soon after. The whereabouts of the three civilians was unknown.

In all, 29 Iraqis left France Sunday night for Jordan following expulsion orders. Of these, 18 were members of the Iraqi military including four pilots, eight technicians and three intelligence service agents.

Iraqi Ambassador Abdul Razzak al Hashimi attended the departure of the 29 from Charles de Gaulle Airport. He said the French government action was hasty and claimed there had been no violation of the Ambassador's residence in Kuwait.

The Iraqi envoy also said that 11 Iraqi diplomats declared undesirable or persona non grata under the package announced by Mitterrand Saturday would leave France Friday.

Chevenement told ''La Tribune de l'Expansion'' that 1,000 vehicles including 210 tanks and 48 helicopters would accompany the French force being sent to the gulf.

A shipping company in Marseille has rented a car ferry, the ''Corse'' to the government as of Thursday, to help ship men and vehicles. It is capable of carrying 2,262 passengers and 700 vehicles.

Defense Ministry sources said Gen. Michel Roquejeoffre, head of France's Rapid Action Force, is expected to lead the French contingent being deployed in Saudi Arabia.

A delegation of leaders of French Moslems will travel to Baghdad Wednesday to try and obtain the release of more of about 400 French citizens trapped in Kuwait and Iraq, a spokesman for the National Federation of Repatriated French of Islamic Faith said Monday.

The delegation will be led by Hachem Bounini, president of the pressure group, who received an invitation from the Iraqi ambassador to make the visit.

French Radio France Info reported four elderly or sick French hostages received permission from Iraqi authorities to leave Baghdad Monday after an appeal to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein by former Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - The United Auto Workers union has what it looked for all summer, a tentative agreement with General Motors that is to become the pattern in talks with Ford and Chrysler. The 310-thousand active and indefinitely idled workers at G-M still have to vote on the pact. It includes a three percent wage increase in the first year and three percent lump-sum payments in the second and third years.

Hints made over the past months have become reality with Lech Walesa's announcement that he will run for president of Poland. The Solidarity union leader has been dissatisfied with the pace of reforms that have swept Poland this year, ending 45 years of a communist monopoly.

Former President Reagan told a Soviet Parliament committee today that he is impressed with the reforms that have made Moscow into a valued partner in world affairs. Reagan talked to the Soviet Parliament international affairs committee. He says he is amazed by the changes made since he last visited the Soviet Union for a summit in May 1988. Reagan also advised patience during the transition period to a market economy in the Soviet Union.

Flames still roar out of control on the 393-foot ''M-V Jupiter'' gasoline tanker, which exploded yesterday on the Saginaw River near Bay City, Michigan. The blast injured 11 crew members and a 12th is missing and presumed dead. Coast Guard officials say the fire will be allowed to burn down some today and that NO fuel spilled into the river from the double-hulled vessel. Special equipment to battle the fire is being flown to the scene from Texas.

Fall showed up over the weekend in the Midwest, and people in the East woke up to that fact this morning. Overnight temperatures dropped below freezing in many areas, and frost advisories were posted for parts of Pennsylvania and New York's Catskill Mountains. The cool weather followed passage of a cold front that rolled towards the Atlantic in a reminder that summer is all but over.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (SEPT. 17) UPI - The leaders of Cambodia's four battling factions failed to reach agreement Monday at the first meeting of a new Supreme National Council created to bring peace to their nation, officials said.

The talks will continue Tuesday afternoon, a senior Thai official said.

''We have some problems. We will continue discussions tomorrow,'' Prime Minister Hun Sen said after 3 1/2 hours of talks with leaders of the three resistance factions that have been fighting his Vietnam-backed government.

Other participants in the talks filed out of the Cambodian Embassy in Bangkok, refurbished for the talks after 15 years of disuse, without speaking to more than 100 waiting reporters.

Thai sources said the meeting stumbled over the key questions of electing a chairman for the new 12-man council and selecting a delegation to represent Cambodia at the U.N. General Assembly meeting due to start in New York on Tuesday.

The resistance has proposed that overall resistance leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk be elected to chair the council as a 13th member.

Hun Sen, however, has said Sihanouk - who was not at the meeting - should take the place of one of the existing resistance members of the council so representation will remain evenly divided between the resistance and the government.

The meeting included leaders of all four groups, which have been fighting among each other for at least 11 years. Some of the rivalries go back to the 1960s.

Among those facing Hun Sen were Khieu Samphan, nominal leader of the Khmer Rouge Communist guerillas who were ousted from power by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion; Son Sann, leader of the non-Communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front; and Prince Norodom Ranariddh, military commander of the forces loyal to his father, Sihanouk.

The council was created to embody Cambodia's national sovereignty during the implementation of a U.N. peace plan under which a U.N. authority will disarm troops, control key ministries and hold national elections.

All sides and their main backers - China for the rebels and Vietnam for the government - have endorsed the plan, which was worked out by the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council. There remain differences, however, on details of implementing the plan.

Before Monday's meeting, there had been indications that a compromise would be found to settle at least some differences over the leadership and the operation of the council.

''We should not allow the matter of the chairman of the Supreme National Council to block the settlement of other issues on the agenda,'' Hun Sen said before the meeting.

Problems, however, became apparent after two hours of discussion when the resistance leaders left the meeting to confer among themselves and with Thai officials.

Hun Sen told reporters that the selection of the Cambodian U.N. delegation was the most pressing issue.

The U.N. General Assembly has continued to recognize the resistance coalition as the legitimate government, even though the Vietnamese- installed regime has controlled most of Cambodia's population for more than a decade.

The resistance, however, has made steady military advances deep inside the country since the withdrawal of at least the bulk of Vietnamese troops in September of last year.

BUCHAREST, ROMANIA (SEPT. 17) UPI - Romania's key Black Sea port of Constanta ground to a halt Monday as more than 25,000 seamen and dock workers went on strike in the biggest walkout since the December revolution.

Members of the city's Seamen's Union and Drivers' Syndicate put down their tools at 8 a.m. to demand the removal of managers they say are blocking the implementation of reforms ordered by the government.

Union officials said the strike involves about 85 percent of the work force and has virtually shut down the port at Constanta, which accounts for about 60 percent of Romania's import and export traffic.

A union of Danube river workers met in Bucharest Monday to decide whether to join the strike, already the largest since the overthrow of dictator Nicolae Ceausescu on Dec. 22.

One of the Constanta unions, the Drivers, signed an agreement with the goverment earlier this year on a moratorium on strikes. But union officials explained the accord was rendered invalid when the government broke its promise not to raise gasoline prices.

A statement spelling out the workers' demands said the strike was called ''because the administrators and other departments are not observing the government's decisions.''

The union called for the resignation of managers who were ''trying to compromise the government's program'' by refusing to pay bonuses to reward productivity, by ignoring new safety rules and by failing to recognize the new independent trade unions.

''We didn't want to go on strike but there has been no concrete offer to meet our demands,'' said Seamen's union lawyer Adrian Tanase.

Last week, several thousand workers went on strike briefly at a tractor assembly plant in the central city of Brasov. The walkout ended after Prime Minister Petre Roman intervened personally.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - Business inventories jumped 0.7 percent in July while sales declined 0.5 percent, the Commerce Department said Monday, in yet another sign of a faltering domestic economy.

Private economists expected a 0.5 percent increase in the nation's stockpile of unsold goods as consumers spend less money in anticipation of a recession.

In June, business inventories fell a revised 0.5 percent while sales gained a revised 0.6 percent for the month, according to the data compiled by the department's Census Bureau.

July inventories totaled $801.9 billion vs. $796.5 billion in June, while July sales totaled $539.5 billion vs. $542.4 billion.

Manufacturers' inventories advanced 0.7 percent in July after falling 0.5 percent in June, while retailers' inventories surged 0.8 percent in July after dipping by 0.1 percent in June.

The Commerce Department noted that the July inventory of automobile dealers climbed 2.5 percent over June's fleet of unsold vehicles.

Merchant wholesalers, meanwhile, reported a 0.5 percent jump in July inventories after a 1 percent drop in June.

Manufacturers' sales were off 0.8 percent in July after edging up 0.3 percent in June, but retailers reported a 0.4 percent advance in sales in July after a hefty 1.1 percent June gain.

Merchant wholesalers said their July sales plummeted by 1 percent in July after increasing 0.8 percent in June.

The Commerce Department also said that the closely watched inventory- to-sales ratio, which tracks the time it takes to sell goods, increased to 1.49 in July from 1.47 in June.

All the data were adjusted for seasonal factors and reflect the state of the economy prior to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent surge in oil and petroleum prices.

DEARBORN, MI (SEPT. 17) UPI - Nearly 800 Arab-Americans from the Detroit and Chicago areas met to denounce U.S. intervention in the Persian Gulf and urge an Arab-led diplomatic solution to the crisis.

Arab-Americans from Iraq, Syria, Israel, Jordan, Lebanon and Yemen heard a series of impassioned calls from religious and political leaders during the Sunday meeting at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

''There are alternatives to war. The Arab countries are capable of providing a solution to this problem,'' said Paul Vincent, an Iraqi- American attorney and member of the newly organized American Arab Peace Committee.

Imam Mohammad Karoub, religious director of the Federation of Islamic Associates in the United States and Canada, called on Muslims, Christians and Jews to work toward peace in the troubled region.

''Today we have an ideal golden opportunity to act for the cause of peace ... if we will join together in community. Today at this hour we can do something that may affect the course of man,'' Karoub said.

Former Illinois Rep. Paul Findley blamed the pro-Israel lobby for the U.S. intervention in the region.

''Remind people Israel is the real troublemaker in the Middle East, not Saddam Hussein,'' Findley said.

Metropolitan Detroit has the nation's largest Arab community, numbering nearly 300,000.

TORONTO (SEPT. 17) UPI - Cineplex Odeon Corp. said Monday it ''terminated'' its agreement to sell 38 theaters in the northwest United States to Plitt Amusement Co. Inc. of Los Angeles.

Cineplex said both parties agreed to kill the $31.75 million deal and that ''the matter was settled on amicable terms.''

The deal, first announced in mid-June, included the sale of movie screens in Minnesota, Idaho, Utah, Washington and Oregon. In mid-August, the deal's original closing date of July 31 was extended indefinitely.

At the same time, Cineplex said it would ''pursue all available legal remedies'' against Plitt if the sale was not completed.

Cineplex spokeswoman Jo Mira Clodman said the failed sale should be looked at ''in the context of everything'' else the company has done over the past eight or nine months to reduce its debt.

Cineplex has sold off numerous theaters and non-core businesses as part of a plan to restructure the company. The company currently operates 1,680 screens in 415 locations in Canada and the United States.

Clodman said the object of the asset sales was to restructure the company and althought the sale to Plitt fell through, ''there's a variety of ways that we can get there.''

Cineplex's long-term debt at the end of the second quarter was $479.4 million.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - Factories continued turning out goods in July, but many ended up on backroom storage racks instead of being sold to consumers. The Commerce Department reports that sales dropped one-half of one percent in July while business inventories increased by seven-tenths of one percent.

The first meeting of a new Supreme National Council set to find peace for Cambodia has ended without any agreement. The talks are scheduled to resume tomorrow in Bangkok, Thailand. The sessions include the three resistance groups that have been fighting the Vietnamese-backed government of Cambodia.

FREETOWN, SIERRA LEONE (SEPT. 17) UPI - Refugees evacuated from the Liberian capital of Monrovia Monday told of children starving to death on the streets of the city and a cholera epidemic sweeping through the stranded population.

As more refugees were evacuated from Monrovia by U.S. Marine helicopters, they described how starving people, too weak to stand, would lie down on the streets to die.

Rebel rockets flew overhead and fires burned out of control in the city center the refugees said.

Two rebel factions have been fighting for nine months to topple Liberian President Samuel Doe. Last week he was killed by the forces of Prince Johnson. Fighting has continued between Johnson, rival rebel leader Charles Taylor, the remnants of Liberian government troops, and West African troops dispatched to Monrovia to restore peace.

''I watched children and old people walking slowly along the roads around the embassy district and other parts of the city,'' said one refugee who called himself Joseph. ''They just walked and then they would stop and sit or lie down. And then they wouldn't be able to stand because they were too hungry, and they would begin to die.''

''I will go back because it is my home,'' he said. ''We have all been waiting for months for the fighting to end. But we had to leave because it is just going on and on.''

More than 500,000 Liberians have fled their country since Dec. 24, according to the Red Cross.

Recent heavy rains have provided drinking water for the 80,000 people who have not been able to flee the city after months of street battles and brutal killings by all sides in the conflict.

But on dry days, a plastic bag filled with one pint of water is sold for $10, in a city where nobody has worked or earned money for months, and where all banks closed more than two months ago.

While a few can afford the $300 the U.S. Embassy charges for evacuation, most are stranded.

''Even in the American Embassy compound as we were boarding the helicopter I didn't feel safe, because there was heavy shelling around the embassy district by the Doe troops still in the presidential mansion,'' said Emmanuel Eian from the Ivory Coast.

As many as five new cases of cholera are being discovered each day, in a city where only one doctor is working. The Belgian aid agency Doctors Without Borders planned to send in medical supplies this week, although heavy fighting means that hundreds of people in the east of the city are out of their reach.

''The main problem with taking in food supplies is that it is difficult to guarantee that it will be transported to the people who really need it,'' said one aid worker, who refused to be named.

Up to 60,000 people have gathered near the Monrovian port in the hope of finding food, while up to 20,000 are still in the city center, most too afraid to even leave their homes in search of food because of heavy fighting, evacuees said.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 17) UPI - Former President Ronald Reagan, who once dubbed the Soviet Union an ''evil empire,'' told a Soviet Parliament committee Monday he was impressed with the reforms that have made Moscow a valued partner in world affairs.

Reagan told the Supreme Soviet's international affairs committee he was amazed at the rapid changes in the country since he was last in Moscow for a summit meeting with President Mikhail Gorbachev in May 1988.

''Nowadays, if Rip Van Winkle were to fall asleep in the Soviet Union, he would only have time for a very short nap before finding that everything had changed,'' Reagan told the Parliament deputies after explaining the folk tale of the man who slept for 20 years and woke to find a different world.

''There have been so many changes in those two years and four months (since my last visit) that I am beginning to understand how Rip Van Winkle must have felt.''

During Reagan's two terms in office, he oversaw a major U.S. military buildup he said was necessary to counter the threat from the Soviet Union, which in 1983 he called an ''evil empire.'' He then watched as Gorbachev's glasnost and perestroika reforms led to the warmest Soviet- American relations in decades and allowed the disintegration of the East Bloc.

Reagan and Gorbachev held five summit meetings, the first in 1985 when Gorbachev was newly in power, and Reagan said Monday he hoped the Soviet and American peoples would develop a "bond of friendship" like the two leaders had.

After the meeting with the Supreme Soviet committee, Reagan had separate private meetings with Gorbachev and Supreme Soviet Chairman Anatoly Lukyanov.

Gorbachev and Reagan greeted each other warmly, embracing and repeatedly grasping each others forearms before reporters and photographers were ushered out of the room.

''I'm sure you must have sensed by now during your stay here in this country that we and people in Soviet society hold you in tremendous esteem and respect '' Gorbachev said.

The comment from Gorbachev echoed the praise Reagan heard earlier at the Supreme Soviet.

''Your presidency began with a vision of our country as one that was covered with thunderclouds, a country that was a source of trouble to the whole world '' foreign affairs committee chairman and Politburo member Aleksander Dzasokhov said in his introduction of Reagan. ''It is all the more important therefore that you...are witnessing a major revolutionary process.''

Reagan, speaking from a podium in front of large portraits of Karl Marx and Vladimir Lenin, said he realized reforms like the move to a market economy being debated in the Supreme Soviet were causing an uproar in the Soviet Union and he advised patience during the transition period.

''These are yeasty times, times of ferment,'' Reagan said. ''Freedom can bring out passions between groups of people that may boil over. When they do, cool and calm decisions are called for.

''We have found, in our country, that when people have the right to make decisions as close to home as possible, they usually make the right decisions.''

Reagan praised the changes that have suddenly put the United States and the Soviet Union on the same side in international issues, particularly the international condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

"I have said before that we did not mistrust each other because we were armed. Rather we were armed because we mistrusted each other,'' Reagan said. ''Well, our mistrust has given way to what might be called cautious friendship.''

Reagan compared the disputes between the Soviet central government and rebellious republics that want more power and even independence to the time leading to the American Civil War.

''It was a wrenching and terrible war, but when it was over we found that the fundamental principles and rights upon which our union had been founded were clearer and stronger than ever,'' Reagan said. '' ... I am confident you will find your way through this period of uncertainty, for with your reforms you have embarked on the right course, the democratic course.''

He said even more democratic and economic reforms were necessary, but told the committee Soviet citizens must be patient with the move to a market economy.

''In some ways, political changes will seem easier than economic ones. At least they will seem to yield results more quickly,'' Reagan said. ''Major economic reforms, on the other hand, show results less quickly.

''Like a large ocean liner, an economy cannot make a 180 degree turn with the speed of a motor boat. To go from a so-called command economy, as you have had for several decades, to a fully functioning market economy takes time and perseverance.

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND (SEPT. 17) UPI - A police officer kidnapped by the outlawed Irish Republican Army in Northern Ireland was feared dead after a body was found near the Irish border Monday, the Royal Ulster Constabulary said.

The missing officer, Constable Louis Robinson, 42, had been kidnapped by armed and masked men at a bogus security checkpoint near the border crossing at Killeen, County Armagh Saturday night.

Three prison officers who were with Robinson on a fishing trip in the Irish Republic escaped uninjured, and two others were later released after being questioned and severely beaten.

Early Monday, the IRA claimed it had kidnapped Robinson and had executed him after interrogation.

An RUC spokesman said he could not confirm the body found near the border village of Belleeks was the dead officer. Security forces at the scene had not been able to remove the body as they feared it may be boobytrapped.

Police sources have revealed that according to statements from the prison officers who escaped, the IRA knew Robinson had been on a weeklong fishing trip in County Kerry.

The gunmen at the bogus checkpoint demanded to know which of the six men in the white Mercedes van was Louis Robinson.

One RUC source said, ''It is now clear the IRA had been tipped off and that Constable Robinson had no hope of being shown any mercy, even though he had been on sick leave for three years suffering from severe depression.''

In the Irish Republic, police questioned two men arrested on the southern side of the border near the scene of the kidnapping Saturday night.

KATMANDU, NEPAL (SEPT. 17) UPI - More than 10,000 demonstrators took to the streets of the Nepalese capital Monday, insisting that King Birendra take the remaining step to multi-party democracy by accepting limits on his own power.

The demonstration came five months after a seven-week series of similar protests and worker strikes forced Birendra to end his monarchy's 29-year ban on opposition political parties.

Birendra also had authorized a committee dominated by opposition parties to write a new proposed constitution, but he balked last week when it returned with a draft that would allow Nepalese citizens to vote the monarchy out of power.

Demonstrators consisting mostly of youth snaked through the narrow streets of Katmandu Monday, double-file and spaced about a yard apart, for nearly 45 minutes.

The protesters remained peaceful and in a festive mood, but raised clenched fists and shouted slogans that included, ''Beware of a conspiracy to change the constitution,'' and, ''Be alert against any palace intrigue.''

The march was organized by two communist parties in the ruling seven- party United Left Front, which demanded the king implement the proposed constitution immediately without any changes.

Police estimated the crowd size at 12,000 people.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - A Pentagon spokesman says Defense Secretary Cheney fired Air Force Chief of Staff Michael Dugan today. NO reason was given for the dismissal. But defense officials who asked NOT to be named say it apparently came because of an interview in which Dugan said Pentagon bombing plans specifically target Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The interview followed a tour of Saudi Arabia in which Dugan discussed possible war plans by the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Dugan had been appointed to the post in July. He is the first member of the Joint Chiefs to be fired since 1949. .

Foreign ministers representing the 12 European Community members are discussing the possibility of a common stand in response to Iraq's raids on foreign ambassadorial residences in Kuwait last week. Britain, Belgium, Italy and France already have crafted individual responses to the raids. The U-N Security Council condemned the raids yesterday.

CHICAGO (SEPT. 17) UPI - Grain futures recovered from their opening weakness and were mostly higher at midmorning on the Chicago Board of Trade, but soybeans gave up their early gains and were lower across the board.

The reversal in soybeans was attributed in part to the downtown in soybean meal prices. Meal turned lower on profit-taking and the lack of demand.

Corn was fractionally higher on short-covering, although gains trimmed by the weakness in the soy complex.

Both corn and soybeans had underlying support from the coldest temperatures of the season during the weekend, although the areas of frost were some distance away from the major corn and soybean growing regions.

Cooler weather and a chance of rain are predicted the rest of the week.

Wheat futures rallied as buying interest picked up, but gains were tempered by the continued lack of export busines.

Country movement was light during the weekend.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.33 3/4 up 1; Dec 2.24 1/2 up 1/2; Mar 2.34 1/4 up 1/2.

Soybeans Sep 6.17 1/4 off 7 1/4; Nov 6.28 3/4 off 6; Jan 6.43 3/4 off 5 1/2; Mar 6.56 1/2 off 6 1/2.

DALLAS (SEPT. 17) UPI - A petroleum engineer has been reunited with a Jordanian national who helped him escape from Kuwait by dressing in an Arab robe and headdress and pretend he was deaf and mute.

Jimmy Hawkins, 30, of Dallas returned home a week ago and Sunday night he was at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport to greet Nizar, the man he credits with saving his life. Nizar, 21, declines to give his last name out of fear for his family in Kuwait.

''It's a miracle we got out,'' Hawkins said, hugging his friend as the two spent their first moments together on American soil.

''There was a whole lot of praying. Nizar is a Muslim and I'm a Christian but we figured we had one God and we were asking Him to do the same thing for us.''

Nizar came to Hawkins's Kuwait apartment about a month ago during the siege. He introduced himself as an acquaintance of several of Hawkins's American friends who had fled at the first sign of trouble.

Although Nizar said he had an ''obligation'' to help the friend of his friends what the grocery clerk did for the American, risking his life on a daily basis, far exceeded simple obligation.

Nizar stayed at Hawkins's apartment, returning home one evening with a bullet wound in a shoulder when he and other resistance fighters exchanged gunfire with Iraqi soldiers.

When the Iraqi soldiers searched Hawkins's building, forcing him to hide in the ceiling for over a week, Nizar smuggled him food and pretended to be an Iraqi sympathizer.

''He cooked for the soldiers and played double agent, living downstairs with them,'' Hawkins said. ''If they had even known he was bringing me food, he would have been shot on sight.''

The two then began their plans for fleeing Kuwait.

It was a difficult decision for Nizar, who although a Jordanian national, was born and reared in Kuwait and has family ties there. Speaking in broken English, he promised to help his new friend.

Making their way for the Jordanian border, Hawkins dressed in Arab robe and headdress and pretended to be deaf and mute, with Nizar acting as his voice and ears.

''It was all his idea,'' Hawkins said. ''He said, 'We can do this,' and I said 'This guy is crazy.'''

Shortly into their journey, the two were arrested. Nizar bribed a lieutenant by offering to give him his car for some food and their freedom.

While they were waiting for their release, the two were given a choice jail spot on the roof of the police station. And when they were given only one blanket to ward off the night chill, they rolled up together.

At the Jordanian border, Hawkins's fake drivers license aroused suspicion and he was not allowed to pass. So he dressed in dark clothing and crossed the desert on foot at night, agreeing to meet his friend on the other side.

The Jordanian police picked up Hawkins and he immediately asked them to find his friend. They were reunited the next morning.

The reunion was brief, Hawkins said, because the American Embassy wanted him out fast, knowing Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would not want the story out of his ''phenomenal escape.'' On Sept. 9, Hawkins was reunited with his family in Dallas.

But Hawkins did not forget his friend. Immediately, he began making plans to bring Nizar to Dallas. A fund-raiser on a radio station brought in the necessary money for plane fare. The American Embassy provided a one-month visa.

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 17) UPI - Ships enforcing a U.N.-ordered embargo against Iraq have intercepted at least 1,000 vessels since the operation began in the Persian Gulf and Arabian and Red seas more than one month ago, the U.S. Navy said Monday.

A statement said the 1,000th interception took place Saturday, when the USS O'Brien hailed a Bahamian-registered merchant tanker named Damion, whioh was allowed to proceed after proving that it was shipping oil from Saudi Arabia to Bangladesh.

The Navy said 65 merchant vessels had been boarded and five diverted or ordered to return to their port of origin since the imposition of an aquatic noose around Iraq was ordered on Aug. 12.

It said about 40 intercepts and four boardings have been conducted daily by U.S. vessels and warships from 13 other allied navies.

U.N. Security Council Resolution 661, which authorized the embargo, is aimed at compelling Baghdad to withdraw from Kuwait by denying it all trade, except for lifesaving food and medicine.

The government of Saddam Hussein has moved to outflank the blockade by trying to rebuild cross-border relations with Iran, its foe in the eight-year Persian Gulf War, which ended in 1988.

JAKARTA, Indonesia (SEPT. 17) UPI - Indonesia has hiked the price of its September oil exported to Japan in September $8.84 a barrel from the previous month in the wake of world oil market that has been tightened by the Persian Gulf crisis, Mines and Energy Minister Ginandjar Kartasamita said Monday.

Ginandjar said Indonesia has raised the price of its September shipments to $28.03 a barrel, compared to the $19.19 a barrel price for August shipments.

Ginandjar said late last week the oil prices in the world market would continue to rise and would reach $40 a barrel by the winter unless industrialized countries release oil from their strategic reserves.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - Federal prosecutors said Monday they will not retry Mayor Marion Barry on 12 charges that led to a mistrial in his drug and perjury case and asked for a speedy sentencing on the one cocaine possession charge on which the mayor was convicted.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson set sentencing for Oct. 26 and said he would hold an Oct. 19 hearing on issues arising from a pre-sentencing report.

Jackson ordered Barry, the three-term Democratic mayor whose term ends Jan. 2, to report to his probation officer Tuesday morning.

Barry, who is running for at-large council seat in the district despite his scandal, told reporters he was ''obviously relieved at this phase of the legal proceedings'' but declined further comment on the advice of defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Judith Retchin did not explain in court why the government decided not to seek a retrial on the 12 charges of perjury, conspiracy and cocaine possession on which a jury Aug. 10 failed to agree, causing a mistrial on those 12 counts.

The jury convicted Barry, who was videotaped smoking crack in an FBI sting, of a single misdemeanor cocaine possession count and acquitted him of another.

U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens told reporters outside the courthouse a new trial ''would achieve little more than what was already accomplished. He likely will face little or no more punishment under federal sentencing guidelines.''

Barry faces up to a year in jail for the one misdemeanor conviction, although federal sentencing guidelines recommend a sentence of six months or less for a first-time offender.

Had he been convicted on all 14 counts against him, Barry could have faced 26 years in prison and $1.85 million in fines, although Stephens said a heavy sentence was unlikely.

Stephens said Barry's conduct as ''the chief executive of this city and the leader of the anti-drug fight ... (is) deeply etched'' in the community. ''Now it is time he faced punishment for his illegal conduct.''

Stephens would not disclose whether he would recommend jail time for Barry in a sentencing report. He said the government sought prompt sentencing for Barry because it was ''appropriate for this case.''

''The decision (not to retry Barry) was reached after evaluating all the evidence,'' he said.

The result of this decision may well have some impact on the city to heal itself,'' Stephens said, adding that was not a factor in his reasoning.

''The government did present a significant pattern over a substantial period of time of illegal narcotics use,'' he said. ''Now citizens can evaluate the truth for themselves.''

Stephens still could ask Jackson to send Barryto jail for the one misdemeanor drug possession charge on which he was found guilty. Under federal sentencing guidelines, a jail term for a first-time cocaine possession offense such as Barry's is unusual.

Still, under those rules, Jackson could send Barry to jail or a federal halfway house for up to six months. He could also restrict Barry's freedom by ordering him to spend each weekend in jail for the next six months.

Jackson could also depart from federal sentencing guidelines and send Barry to jail for as long as a year, although the mayor would have the right to appeal any sentence longer than six months.

Ten government witnesses during the trial said Barry used cocaine or obtained cocaine in homes, hotels, boats and government offices in the district, Atlanta, the Virgin Islands and the Bahamas since 1983.

Law enforcement officials in the Virgin Islands have said they would not bring charges against Barry there. Barry could have faced possible misdemeanor counts of cocaine possession based on testimony presented at the trial in Washington.

Prosecutors called Barry a ''general'' in the city's war on drugs who turned traitor, heading an anti-drug battle in public while abusing cocaine and marijuana in private.

The verdict and mistrial came nearly seven months after Barry was lured to the downtown Vista International Hotel by former model Rasheeda Moore and arrested in an FBI sting operation for smoking crack.

Last week Barry said people were ''very tired'' of his case and that Sharon Pratt Dixon, a newcomer who beat out four political veterans and in the Democratic mayoral primary, represented change.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - The Air Force is looking for its second Chief of Staff since July. General Michael Dugan, a decorated Vietnam veteran, was fired from the position this morning by Defense Secretary Cheney. There's NO official reason for the dismissal, but the word at the Pentagon is that Dugan was fired because of interviews in which he discussed possible war plans by the Joint Chiefs of Staff against Iraq- naming President Saddam Hussein as a bombing target.

The United Auto Workers and General Motors announced a tentative agreement early today on a new three-year contract for 310-thousand workers, both active and idled. The tentative pact contains gains in job security and pensions and calls for a three percent wage increase in the first year, plus three percent lump-sum payments in the second and third years. The pre-dawn agreement followed about 41 hours of non-stop bargaining.

Federal prosecutors say they won't re-try Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry on 12 charges that led to a mistrial in his drug and perjury case. But they asked for a speedy sentencing on the one cocaine possession charge for which Barry was convicted. U-S District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson set sentencing for October 26th. Barry's third term as mayor ends on January 2nd.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - T. Boone Pickens' United Shareholders Association launched a campaign Monday against 50 major corporations it has accused of violating shareholder rights.

The corporate takeover specialist's group, which claims 64,000 members, said all of the firms are incorporated in states with ''anti- shareholder'' laws, 44 have poison pill anti-takeover plans and 40 have lucrative ''golden parachute'' severance packages for senior management.

Pickens' organization also said 40 firms have boards with staggered terms of office, preventing shareholders from replacing a majority of the board in any single year, while 47 have no confidential proxy voting.

''Proposals on these issues will be introduced by USA members for shareholder votes at the 1991 annual meetings of the companies,'' according to the group, which is holding its annual meeting in the nation's capital.

In a similar effort last year, the organization said it scored victories for shareholder rights at a number of corporations. But a number of the companies on the latest list were also targeted in 1989.

The 50 firms are: Allied-Signal, Morristown, N.J.; Amax, Inc., New York; American Ship Building, Tampa, Fla.; Armco, Parsippany, N.J.; Avon Products, New York; Baxter International, Deerfield, Ill.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (SEPT. 17) UPI - A Cabinet minister demanded the dismissal Monday of U.S. Ambassador to Pakistan Robert Oakley, who allegedly criticized Pakistan's handling of the dismissal of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto.

Home Minister Zahid Sarfraz said Oakley delivered an address at the Asia Society in Washington last week in which the ambassador criticized the one-sided accountability process being conducted in Pakistan since the Aug. 6 dismissal of the 20-month-old Bhutto government.

Oakley reportedly asked the current Pakistani caretaker government to make the accountability process more impartial by examining corruption during the 1985-88 period during which many of the people now in power were serving in the leadership.

The home minister said Oakley should be replaced for interfering in the internal affairs of Pakistan.

Since her dismissal, Bhutto - the first elected woman prime minister of a Moslem country - and three of her former Cabinet members have become a target of corruption charges. Three former ministers of her Cabinet have also been arrested on criminal charges.

In addition, her husband faces some two dozen criminal charges.

If found guilty, Bhutto would be disqualified from contesting forthcoming elections.

The home minister also alleged Monday that Bhutto's husband was already married when he wed her in December 1987 and she was not aware of this fact.

When asked why he was disclosing a very private matter relating to the deposed prime minister, the home minister said he was just trying to show how naive Bhutto was.

As evidence of the allegations, presented to reporters documents of bank loans obtained by the family of her husband, Asif Ali Zardari, between early 1977 and 1982, all of which contained the name and signature of Aroona Asif Ali, described as Zardari's wife.

The minister said he did not know the present status of this marriage nor could he produce a marriage certificate to prove his assertion.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - June Betts is a victim of Alzheimer's disease and a victim of the state of Ohio.

Alzheimer's, an incurable, wasting mental illness, robbed Betts of her job teaching children with Down's syndrome and cerebral palsy how to talk. Ohio denied her disability retirement benefits because she was over 60.

Ohio's public employees retirement system, following its mandate, awarded her a standard age-and-service pension of $158.50 a month.

If she had been two years younger, under 60, she would have received $355 a month in disability retirement benefits.

Or, as her daughter Carolyn Betts said last week, ''For my mother, the difference between getting disability benefits and not getting them is a matter of a few months in a nice room in a nursing home instead of a charity bed at taxpayers' expense.''

June Betts couldn't fight Alzheimer's disease, but she did fight the two-tier disability system on grounds it amounts to illegal age discrimination.

The Hamilton County, Ohio, woman won in the lower courts. But the Supreme Court, in a 7-2 decision, said age discrimination laws apply to hiring and firing, wages and salaries, other fringe benefits, and terms and conditions of employment but are silent on employee benefit plans.

Ironically, the Supreme Court returned the specific Betts complaint to the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals, which ruled in her favor. Betts, now 66, is in a nursing home.

But the high court's ruling left others in Betts' situation vulnerable and the Senate began considering legislation Monday to make certain the double standard is eliminated by federal law.

The bill, applying to both public and private employers, has 50 sponsors but faces stern opposition from some Republicans that threatens its chances of approval by Congress before adjournment in October. Republicans also say that senior advisers will recommend President Bush veto the bill.

Known as the Older Workers Benefits Protection Act, the bill would amend the 1967 Age Discrimination in Employment Act in two major areas:

-The bill makes it clear that discrimination on the basis of age in virtually all forms of employee benefits is unlawful.

-It ensures that older workers are not coerced or manipulated into waiving their rights to seek legal relief.

The bill requires employers to extend equal benefits, or to incur equal costs, on behalf of all employees, with exceptions for defined benefit pension plans and for severance pay unrelated to age. The burden of proof is on the employer.

Even with the legislation, it would still be legal for some benefits to be different for older workers. For instance, if a $100 employer contribution to group term life insurance buys $50,000 coverage for an employee at age 35 and only $25,000 for a 60-year-old worker, that would be legal.

Or, in the case of long-term disability, an employer may avoid increased costs for older employees by reducing the level or duration of benefits for older workers.

But companies that use a ''benefit package'' approach could not reduce or eliminate benefits that older workers want, such as group health insurance, and can never include pension or retirement benefits.

The Congressional Budget Office said it could not estimate the costs to the states that have programs similiar to the one in Ohio.

Ohio, however, prepared estimates of providing equal benefits to all state employees and predicted it would cost an additional $40 million a year. New York estimated it would cost the Empire State $8 million.

There was no estimate available of the cost to private companies.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, calls the Supreme Court decision a ''blatant case of age discrimination in the work force'' and said the bill seeks to meet ''each and every objection.''

But most Republicans on the Labor and Human Resources Committee, which is handling the bill, said even with changes made, the legislation is badly flawed.

In a minority report, the GOP members said, ''This bill, although intended to prevent discrimination based on age, would outlaw, restrict or discourage the use of numerous legitimate plan arrangements, designs and features.

''We are concerned that, rather than protect older workers, this will result in a lessening of retirement benefit security for all employees, including older workers.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Monday that it was ''very helpful'' for President Bush to get his message to the Iraqi people ''about the unanimity of the world'' against the invasion of Kuwait and the role of the United States.

The government of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein kept its word by airing a videotaped message Sunday in which Bush portrayed Iraq as aligned against the world and its people as unwitting victims of the Aug. 2 invasion of its oil-rich neighbor.

''We think it's important to be able to convey to the people about the unanimity against them and specifically about the role of the United States,'' Fitzwater told reporters. ''We think it's very helpful.''

It was the latest shot in a war of nerves manifested in televised images, a personalized message that not only sought to plant seeds of dissent in the minds of the Iraqi people but to send a sharp warning to Saddam.

Weighing a wide range of military options, Bush vowed that Saddam's use of Western hostages as human shields against possible U.S. attack ''will not affect my ability to make tough decisions.''

While U.S. officials had no idea how widely it was seen, the audience limited by the availability of televisions in Iraq, they were satisfied that even if it does not cause the Iraqi people to rise up against him, the broadcast stepped up the pressure on Saddam.

It was followed by a lengthy Iraqi rebuttal that denounced Bush's ''claims and lies'' and ''scandalous contradictions,'' prompting White House spokesman Bill Harlow to remark that ''the president's words must have struck home, given the lengths to which the Iraqis went to attempt to discredit them.''

Bush twice referred to the prospect of war in describing the storm clouds over the Persian Gulf, where the United States and more than two dozen other countries have joined to militarily contain and possibly repel Saddam.

''Perhaps your leaders do not appreciate the strength of the forces united against them,'' Bush said. ''Let me say clearly: There is no way Iraq can win. Ultimately, Iraq must withdraw from Kuwait.''

Standing in front of his desk in the Oval Office, an American flag in the background, Bush asserted the occupation of Kuwait ''is helping no one and is now hurting you, the Iraqi people'' by cutting Iraq's foreign trade - including a crucial $20 billion a year in oil exports - to a mere trickle.

''The pain you now experience is a direct result of the path your leadership has chosen,'' he said. ''When Iraq returns to the path of peace, when Iraqi troops withdraw from Kuwait, when that country's rightful government is restored, when all foreigners held against their will are released, then and then alone will the world end the sanctions.''

As if to underscore his claim that ''Iraq stands isolated and alone,'' Bush pulled a sheet of paper from his pocket, donned reading glasses and quoted Saddam's own words to a group of Arab lawyers in November 1988 that ''an Arab country does not have the right to occupy another Arab country.''

There was no evidence the speech had any effect on Saddam. And although Bush has said he would not mind seeing Saddam ousted by his own people, the relative absence of an organized and effective political opposition in Iraq makes that unlikely, with or without the kind of public encouragement implied by Bush in his eight minutes of air time on Iraqi TV.

For that reason, U.S. officials acknowledge the crisis will not be resolved through peaceful overtures to the Iraqi people, but only a sober realization by Saddam that he underestimated the financial, political and military costs of his decision to invade Kuwait.

DHAHRAN, SAUDI ARABIA (SEPT. 17) UPI - Painstaking identity checks designed to screen out Iraqi infiltrators Monday slowed to a trickle the flow of refugees through occupied Kuwait's newly reopened border with Saudi Arabia.

Residents and officials contacted by telephone said the main border crossing at al-Khafji remained clogged with well-heeled prospective Kuwaiti emigres, who had driven - mostly in luxury cars - down their oil-rich emirate's main freeway to Saudi Arabia and were awaiting processing.

Authorities estimated more than 5,000 refugees had entered the kingdom since Iraqi border guards on Saturday inexplicably opened the frontier. But the departures slowed Monday, with officials saying only 50 vehicles had been allowed through by Iraqi guards.

Many of those who were allowed to cross the border Monday were sobbing women, who said the Iraqis were forbidding men between 17 and 45 from leaving, residents said.

Saudi officials said the bottleneck at the border was caused by an effort to screen the refugees to establish their credentials.

Saudi and U.S. military officials are concerned that Iraqi soldiers, who have been stripping refugees of all identification before they leave Kuwait, were rendering Kuwaitis stateless to allow Iraqis to infiltrate Saudi Arabia posing as refugees.

The Iraqi government has given no explanation for opening the border, which had been sealed shortly after its troops invaded the emirate on Aug. 2.

Many refugees believe Baghdad is plotting to empty the oil-rich nation of its 1.7 million residents and to colonize it with Iraqis and Palestinians.

Others believe Iraqi President Saddam Hussein might be trying to spread havoc in Saudi Arabia, which already has been pressed to find temporary accomodation for more than 200,000 Kuwaitis who left just after the invasion or clandestinely by crossing the desert while the border was still closed.

Saddam ''knows how many Kuwaitis have left Kuwait,'' a Saudi official said. ''Maybe he has got people here, telling him what is going on.''

At the offices of the Dammam municipality, the main urban area of Eastern Province, Kuwaiti refugees clustered around checking to see if their names had been included on new accomodation lists.

''Frankly, we do not know what to do,'' said one overworked senior official, shaking his head as he pondered the new wave of arrivals. ''These numbers are too high to deal with. Riyadh is also full. Jeddah is also the same.''

The official, who requested anonymity, said about 80,000 Kuwaitis were now in the province. Workers were hastily finishing public housing projects for emergency shelter, and some arrivals may be placed in tents inside a stadium, he said.

''Either you think they are going to be here a long time, or a short time,'' the official said. ''We don't know which way to think. You can't build a house in such a short time, and you can't let them live on the streets.''

Hotels are fully booked, and some new arrivals moved on to Riyadh, about 250 miles away, because of the shortage of shelter in Eastern Province.

Refugees all gave bleak portrayals of life under Iraqi rule, which they said had become more draconian in recent days, with Saddam's armies staging fierce reprisals against any hint of resistance.

One Kuwaiti said the Iraqis would attack any neighborhood cited in reports by the British Broadcasting Corp. or the Voice of America radio networks as being locations of anti-Iraqi actions.

''They are squeezing (the resistance),'' he said. ''One officer said, 'Once I hear any bullets from this area, I will destroy the area.'''

The tactics of retaliation, which include summary executions and the obliteration of houses adjacent to places used by Kuwaiti fighters, had led to some people calling on the resistance to stop.

''Their mothers say, 'If you want to resist, go outside, go away from here,''' the refugee said.

But despite the hard-line tactics, the refugees believed the Iraqi troops had little confidence of their chances against the massive multinational force assembling in Saudi Arabia, which should soon be capable of staging an offensive to expel Saddam's forces from the country.

The Iraqis ''are completely destroyed these days, once they heard about the troops (in Saudi Arabia),'' a Kuwaiti said. ''They are saying, 'What was our mistake. Why is our leader doing this?'''

(SEPT. 17) UPI - Home-heating oil prices are headed up - way up - this winter unless there is a swift, peaceful end to the military standoff in the Persian Gulf, energy analysts say.

Worse, a shooting war would mean out-of-sight prices and very likely serious strains on supplies.

But there's no agreement among oil specialists on what the upper price limit might be.

Although there are too many variables and too much doubt for anyone to make a firm prediction, some analysts are estimating prices could reach as much as $1.50 a gallon for heating oil, a distillate that doubles as diesel fuel, even if there's no fighting. With war, that might be a minimum.

Heating oil prices in early January had risen as high as $1.41 a gallon in New York and $1.51 a gallon in Massachusetts following last winter's record December cold snap.

The stage was set for a rapid rise in prices because of the relatively low level of heating oil inventories, which stood at 119.8 million barrels at this time last year. But the nation's heating oil stocks now are at a five-year high of 131.7 million barrels and provide a bigger buffer against wild price swings.

The U.S.-inspired embargo against Iraq and Kuwait has removed more than 4 million barrels of crude a day from world markets. Not all of that oil flow has yet been replaced by increases from other producers and some analysts believe it never will be. With less oil available, they say, prices inevitably will be bid up.

''If everything goes right, we should be able to get through without any serious supply problems,'' said Kevin Lindemer, an oil analyst at Cambridge Energy Research Associates in Cambridge, Mass. ''But it's going to mean higher prices, I'm sure of that, unless there's a resolution to the gulf crisis.''

Pessimists expect spot shortages of oil even without an outbreak of hostilities, but that does not mean homeowners will be without heat.

They warn that especially frigid weather in the Northeast, where two- thirds of the nation's more than 12 million households that heat with fuel oil are located, could strain supplies.

Even more than two-thirds of the fuel is burned in the nine Northeastern states that include New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania because the weather is colder there than in other areas where heating oil is used, the Department of Energy said.

Some unforseen problem such as storm damage, an accident or sabotage at one of the country's approximately 140 oil refineries, which are operating at capacity, could cause real problems.

Pressure also is building on the federal government to tap into its Strategic Petroleum Reserve - a massive pool of oil stored in salt domes in Louisiana and Texas - to moderate the rise in prices.

The Bush administration had resisted that suggestion, saying the reserves - designed to protect the country from a major disruption of foreign oil supplies - were not needed yet.

Only last week, however, Energy Secretary James Watkins conceded such measures may be necessary.

And a New York heating-oil dealer has begun a petition-writing campaign that he hopes will become a nationwide groundswell to persuade Bush to open up the reserve and force oil companies to roll back wholesale oil prices.

Meanwhile, there are signs consumers are seeking alternatives.

In August, Boston Gas Co., New England's biggest distributor of natural gas, had twice as many requests for hookups for consumers switching from oil heat to gas as it did in August 1989 ''for obvious reasons,'' said Frank Arricale, a spokesman for the company.

Even wood burning, a fad in the late '70s that has slowed dramatically since, is showing signs of life.

Alan Blake, an editor at Hearth and Home magazine, a trade journal based in Guilford, N.H., said the wood stove industry suddenly is ''seeing a dramatic increase in interest.'' Just in the last two weeks, he said, customers have come alive.

''When oil hit $30 a barrel, they started buying,'' Blake said.

Meanwhile, some consumers staying with oil already are dipping into the country's current oil inventory cushion with earlier-than-usual purchases, the home-heating market's equivalent of topping off your gas tank.

One retail oil distibutor, George Kehm, owner of Kehm Oil Co. in Oakdale, Penn., said his customers reacted quickly to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

''As soon as this hit, we went crazy,'' Kehm said. ''We probably got 1,500 orders right away,'' compared with about 150 normally at that time of year.

CAIRO, EGYPT (SEPT. 17) UPI - The Persian Gulf crisis has once again pitted Moslem against Moslem and altered alliances within the Arab world as rival Islamic theologians scramble to exploit religion for nationalism.

Analysts see historical parallels in medieval Europe, where Christian states battled each other in the name of God and religion.

In Cairo - known as the city of 1,000 mosques - the muezzin's Friday sermon blasted from loudspeakers around the metropolis bears a different message to that emanating from the mosques of Baghdad, Amman and even Shiite Tehran.

''Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has betrayed you because he has betrayed the values and principles of Islam,'' cried an Egyptian muezzin on a recent Friday morning.

At another Cairo mosque, the message is reinforced: ''Saddam is a traitor and a defector from the faith.''

But the sermons from clergymen in Iraq, Jordan, Iran and Lebanon call for the punishment of Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Syria for allowing ''infidel'' Western troops on Saudi soil sacred to Moslems.

A number of Moslem radicals have rallied to Saddam's banner, even though Baghdad during the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war was a bulwark against the spread of late Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini's unique brand of Islamic fundamentalism.

After his tanks rolled into Moslem neighbor Kuwait Saddam astutely played down his secular Baathist Arab nationalist political roots and declared himself the defender of the Islamic faith.

The Iraqi leader's fiery but hollow religious message to topple ''corrupt'' Saudi leaders was most enthusiastically welcomed in Qom, the spiritual powerbase of the Iranian revolution - a revolution which very nearly destroyed the Iraqi leader.

Khomeini's successor Ayatollah Ali Khamenei swung behind Saddam and called last week for a Jihad or holy war against U.S. forces in the Gulf, despite reservations from Iran's pragmatic President Hojatoleslam Ali-Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani.

Radical Iranian newspapers conveniently forgot the one million casualties of the Iran-Iraq war and began a pro-Saddam propaganda campaign of their own. Paradoxically, this was sweet music to the isolated Iraqi leader's ears at a time when many Moslem states dismissed him as the butcher of Baghdad.

''Not so long ago Gulf Arab states such as Saudi Arabia backed Iraq to the hilt as the defender of the Arab Moslem nation's eastern flank against the Persians ... now we see the prospect looming of an unholy alliance between Iraq and Iran,'' said Mark A. Long, a London-based writer on Mideast affairs.

Both sides in the conflict have scrambled to ensure divine blessing for their political positions. Sheikh Metwalli el Sharawi, a noted Egyptian Islamic scholar, slammed Saddam as an aggressor and justified the presence of U.S.-led forces in the Gulf.

''The Prophet Mohammed asked an infidel called Al Motaam ibn Edie to help him enter Mecca,'' Metwalli said. ''Prophet Mohammed also borrowed weapons from Safwan ibn Omaya, a non-believer, when he was in need. Those who condemn the interference of infidel countries should ask themselves who paved the way for their interference.''

Metwalli also rejected Saddam's claim to be redistributing Kuwait's oil wealth to the poor, and his offer to give free oil to developing countries.

''Saddam controlled considerable (oil) wealth in Iraq but he wasted it ... why didn't he distribute his own country's wealth to the Iraqi people,'' asked the Egyptian religious leader.

Saudi King Fahd, who four years ago adopted the title of Custodian of the two holy Mosques, last week hosted a World Islamic Conference in the sacred Moslem city of Mecca to justify his decision to call in foreign troops.

''Ironically, the Saudi ruling family's future is for the moment secured not by Arab and Islamic forces, but by the Americans,'' Long said. ''But Fahd may have unleashed a stronger nightmare than either Iran or Iraq - a united Iraqi-Iranian front.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 17) UPI - Newspaper Guild members at the New York Post Monday prepared to vote on pay cuts and layoffs demanded by the owner of the ailing tabloid to keep it alive.

Members were scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. to vote on the offer that includes a four-day work week - the equivalent of a 20 percent pay cut - a 12 percent cut in benefits, and the loss of more than 40 jobs.

The job reductions would be achieved by laying off seven non- permanent workers and offering voluntary buy-outs to about 36 others. Overall, Guild concessions would save $5 million annually.

Owner Peter Kalikow has said he was prepared to fold the paper Tuesday if the 325-member union, which includes reporters, editors, photographers and advertising and clerical employees, voted against the proposal.

Guild members have adamantly voted down wage cuts in the past. The Post Guild Executive Commitee rejected the deal Friday night in eleventh-hour negotiations, but allowed it to be presented to the membership. Kalikow agreed to wait for the vote.

Friday night's bargaining brought sweeping concessions from the paper's other nine unions. The agreements were expected to save the paper more than $20 million annually and preserve about 900 jobs.

The deal included giving unionized employees 20 percent ownership of the company and a seat on the board of directors.

The other unions, including the pressmen and drivers, achieved most of their reductions by agreeing to job cuts and other savings proposed by management.

The outcome of Monday's vote could also determine the fate of another financially troubled New York tabloid, the Daily News, where a bitter labor-management standoff has raged all year. News management has said it will seek similar cuts from the union.

The News, meanwhile, reported Sunday that although the drivers' union gave up more than 92 positions at the Post during negotiations, those remaining reportedly will get raises of about $100 a week.

Monday's vote was due to take place at the Guild's headquarters on West 44th Street, New York City.

NEW ORLEANS (SEPT. 17) UPI - New Orleans teachers went on strike Monday in a salary-and-benefit dispute with the school board, which attempted to keep classes operating with administrators, non-union teachers and substitutes.

School board officials said there was no money available to meet union demands for the system's 4,000 teachers, as well as teacher aides and clerical workers.

United Teachers of New Orleans President Nat Lacour blamed school Board inflexibility for the strike.

Teachers began picketing the schools at 6 a.m., carrying signs saying, ''No Raise, No Work,'' and ''UTNO on Strike.''

About half of the staff showed up for work at Abramson High School, where Principal Joe Pecoraro said instruction would continue.

''Of course, it's not going to be the same instruction as when you have all certified staff here,'' he said, ''but we definitely will have instruction.''

Some parents complained of a breakdown in discipline and a lack of instruction.

In an emergency meeting, the school board adopted an 11-point resolution that included a cut-off of pay to teachers while on strike, and a threat they could also lose future contributions for health insurance premiums.

''We cannot give what we do not have,'' said Frank Fudesco, an associate superintendent and the board's chief negotiator.

Union officials predicted students would be assembled to watch movies, and teachers who crossed the picket lines would be little more than baby-sitters.

The teachers had voted at the start of school two weeks ago to postpone a strike in hopes of reaching an agreement with the school board. They also had dropped demands for a $45 million package that included a 10 percent pay raise in favor of pressing for increased salaries and health insurance benefits for teacher aides and clerical workers.

In the face of what they said was school board intransigence, the teachers reverted to their original demand for 10 percent pay raises in each year of a three-year contract.

''It's a strike over economic justice,'' Lacour told a cheering crowd Sunday night.

On Saturday, the union made a counterproposal for $1 million to improve the employees' health benefits fund, and agreed to wait until later in the year to seek raises for the aides and clerical workers.

However, the school board refused to budge from its earlier proposal of $600,000 for the health benefits. After the strike began, the board reduced the offer to $300,000.

Teachers' salaries range from $19,455 for beginners to $35,111 for teachers with doctoral degrees and 25 years of experience.

Teacher aides earn about $11,00 a year, while clerical workers' salaries range up to $16,800.

The state gave teachers a 7 percent pay raise this year, but aides and clerical workers were not included in the increase.

The school board has raised teachers' salaries twice since 1983, but Lacour said the increases have been eroded by rising health insurance and retirement costs.

AMMAN, JORDAN (SEPT. 17) UPI - A pro-Iraq conference of Arab organizations ended in Jordan Monday with a call for strikes on American targets if the United States attacks Iraq.

In a final communique, the conference denounced Western invention in the Gulf and demanded an Arab solution to the crisis caused by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The conference declared that the first objective of a newly formed national committee was ''to strike against American interests everywhere and by all means, at the same moment an American military attack is launched against Iraq.''

Representatives of more than 120 parties and organizations from eight Arab countries attended the conference. Also present were two leaders of radical PLO factions, who were expelled from Jordan two decades ago. Egyptian representatives were not permitted to leave their country to attend.

The communique expressed support for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's proposal linking the Persian Gulf crisis to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

''The conference supports the convening of an international peace conference to address all the unresolved conflicts in the region, including the gulf crisis, the Middle East conflict and the Lebanese problem,'' it said.

Palestinian nationalism and its role in the Gulf crisis were major themes at the symposium. Outside the Royal Cultural Center where the meeting was held a banner proclaimed ''A victory for Iraq is a victory for Palestine.''

Several hundred demonstrators, mostly students, packed the cultural center and stood outside while the lengthy communique was read in Arabic. Chanting ''Do it with chemicals, Saddam,'' and Palestinian slogans, they waved Palestinian and Iraqi flags as well as pictures of the Iraqi president, PLO chairman Yasser Arafat and King Hussein.

Attending the meeting were George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, and Naif Hawatmeh, head of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The two leaders of radical PLO factions met separately Sunday night with King Hussein, spokesman for the two men said.

The meetings represented a significant reconciliation between the PLO leaders and the king, Palestinian sources said. Habash and Hawatmeh fled Jordan during the civil war which erupted in September 1970 and led to the expulsion of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas and leaders from the country.

The king's talks with the PLO leaders were another sign of the shifting political alliances in the Middle East since the Iraqi invasion.

Hussein, who in the past was seen as one of the most pro-Western Arab leaders, has increasing been associated with radical Arab figures.

While calling for an Iraqi withdrawal of Kuwait, Hussein has remained a staunch ally of Iraq. He has pressed for an Arab solution to the Gulf crisis and the withdrawal of Western troops.

Habash and Hawatmeh were permitted to re-enter Jordan Friday for the conference.

The official Jordan media did not mention Hussein's meetings with the PLO leaders.

BAY CITY, MI (SEPT. 17) UPI - Firefighters used water and chemical foam Monday in an effort to extinguish a fire aboard a gasoline tanker that exploded in the Saginaw River, injuring 11 crew members and leaving a 12th presumed dead.

The water and 8,000 gallons of A-fff foam, which is used to smother chemical- and petroleum-based fires, was pumped from the Bramble, a 180- foot Coast Guard buoytender, onto the 393-foot M.V. Jupiter.

A crew from a Texas firm that specializes in dousing chemical fires then planned to board the burning vessel, said Petty Officer Frank Jennings, a Coast Guard spokesman at District Nine headquarters in Cleveland.

Jennings said the crew would begin at the bow and work back to the stern in an attempt to have the roaring inferno out by the end of the day.

''That's the plan. They're going to give it their best shot,'' Jennings said.

As a precaution, the state Department of Natural Resources set huge floating booms downriver to catch any gasoline leaks from the double- hulled ship and Gov. James J. Blanchard declared a state of emergency after touring the area Sunday.

Eleven crew members were injured and a 12th was missing and presumed dead after the Jupiter exploded about 8:30 a.m. Sunday while unloading fuel at the Total Petroleum dock near Bay City.

The tanker contained 54,000 barrels - about 2.3 million gallons - of refined unleaded gasoline it had taken from a Sunoco terminal in Sarnia, Ontario.

About 20,000 barrels were still on board when the Jupiter's deck blew off in an explosion felt miles away, sending crewmen leaping into the water, witnesses said.

Thick, black smoke could be seen 50 miles away.

Police and fire officials said the explosion and fire began after another ship the 645-foot freighter Buffalo, passed the Jupiter as it was moored to the Total pier, pumping gasoline into shore-based storage tanks.

Investigators believe the Buffalo's wake caused the Jupiter to rock uncontrollably and become untethered from the pier. They said the resulting explosion may have been caused by a spark or other source.

The Coast Guard said a Chicago Coast Guard captain will head an inquiry into the explosion. Since the Jupiter was unloading in a no-wake zone, the DNR and Coast Guard are studying violations of state and federal laws.

Several smaller explosions occurred Sunday and early Monday as the tanker continued to burn out of control, said Petty Officer Stephen Attaway of Coast Guard Group Detroit.

''It certainly hasn't gotten any worse,'' Attaway said Monday morning. ''The ship is still afloat. We do have three containment booms around it in case we get any release of gasline. That hasn't happened.''

Only six of the 18 crewmen were unscathed. All but three of the 11 injured were released after treatment at Bay Medical Center. Attaway said the search for the missing 12th crewman, Tom Sexton, 46, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, was suspended Monday.

''We searched the area thoroughly. There is no evidence he did survive,'' he said.

Family members said they were told Sexton jumped from the burning vessel and tried to swim to safety but never reached the shore.

Emergency equipment from Boots & Coots Inc., a Beaumont, Texas, firm that specializes in fighting tanker fires, arrived Monday morning.

Officials at first feared the burning tanker would break loose because it was attached to the dock by just a thin cable but the Coast Guard lassoed the Jupiter's anchor and secured it to a 209-ton bulldozer.

Residents along the river were put on alert but no one was evacuated.

Built in 1976, the Jupiter is owned by Cleveland Tankers of Cleveland, a subsidiary of Ashland Oil Co. of Kentucky, said Ashland spokesman Roger Schrum.

The vessel has a double hull. Gasoline is stored in six compartments that hold about 9,000 barrels each. Each barrel contains 42 gallons of gasoline.

AUSTIN, Texas (SEPT. 17) UPI - The nation's thrift industry as a whole lost $3.64 billion in this year's first quarter, but 68 percent of thrift institutions were profitable in the period, a financial consulting firm said Monday.

Of a total of 2,860 institutions, 1,946 were in the black in the first quarter according to a report issued by Alex Sheshunoff & Co.

Profitable savings and loan institutions earned $1.2 billion, but these profits were wiped out by the remaining 32 percent of the institutions - which lost a total of $4.9 billion.

''Contrary to what the indsutry totals might suggest, many S&Ls are strong, profitable institutions,'' said Alex Sheshunoff, president of the consulting firm.

However, he said that many thrifts are operating in either overbuilt or overpriced real estate markets and that a few have been weakened further by investments in risky assets such as junk bonds.

Thrifts in 17 states reported positive earnings, led by Washington state with $30 million, Ohio $27 million and Illinois $21 million.

Thrifts in six states - Texas, Arizona, California, Kansas, New York and New Jersey - accounted for three-fourths of the industry's quarterly loss.

The industry loss further reduced its tangible capital, falling $4.17 billion, or 41 percent, in the first quarter.

According to Sheshunoff, that left the industry with a first-quarter tangible-capital-to-assets ratio of 0.48 percent - significantly beneath the minimum of 1.5 percent required by new federal rules.

Of all thrifts, 1,896 thrifts with $654.6 billion in assets ended the first quarter with a tangible-capital ratio of 3 percent or more. But as with profits, the adequately capitalized institutions were overshadowed by the several undercapitalized thrifts.

''Many of the 496 S&Ls with negative tangible capital and $271.6 billion in total assets seem destined for a number of fates, ranging from new private owners to being eternally run by the government,'' Sheshunoff said.

In the asset category, the total assets of all institutions fell by 2.3 percent to $1.25 trillion as of March 31, from $1.28 trillion at the end of 1989.

Sheshunoff said assets declined mainly because the thrifts sold assets to improve their capital-to-asset ratios and the regulators disposed of assets of some troubled thrifts.

Repossessed assets continued to increase during the quarter, but the rate of increase remained dramatically decelerated from previous years, the report said.

Consisting mainly of foreclosed real estate, repossessed assets rose 4.7 percent to $35.5 billion during the first quarter, from $33.9 billion in 1989. By comparison, repossessed assets grew an average of 17.2 percent annually between 1985 and 1989.

The Southwest continued to lead the country in non-performing loans, with $5 billion, or 10.2 percent of the gross loans, in the first quarter.

Sheshunoff also said real estate values are going through a classic boom and bust as the nation experiences a ''rolling'' real estate recession - one moving from one region to another.

''The nation is now witnessing in the Northeast a repeat episode of the troubles of the Southwest - a real life demonstration of what can happen when the speculative real estate bubble bursts,'' he said.

He said that thrifts in the future will need to deal with the challenges of credit risk arising from deteriorating real estate values, interest rate risk posed by holding fixed-rate mortgages and controlling overhead expenses as interest spreads shrink.

''Proof of the thrift industry's essential viability is amply demonstrated by the fact that 1,946 S&Ls are profitable today,'' he said. ''But its chance for survival as a separately regulated industry rests in the hands of regulators charged with cleaning up the mess left by those who never should have been in the industry to begin with.''

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - The House, moving to avoid another multi-billion dollar bailout for the financial industry, voted Monday to have banks pay higher premiums for the insurance fund that protects bank depositors.

The bill, passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate, would allow the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. to raise the premiums to whatever level is needed to keep the insurance fund solvent.

The action came in response to an increasing number of bank failures that has caused the bank insurance fund to suffer losses every year since 1983. The insurance funds administered by the FDIC pay depositors up to $100,000 for accounts held in banks that go out of business.

Sponsors of the bill stressed the need to keep the fund solvent and avoid the situation that occurred in the savings and loan industry, where the failure of thousands of firms drained the insurance fund, making it necessary to use taxpayer funds to cover the losses.

Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, chairman of the House Banking Committee, told the House the condition of the bank fund ''will almost certainly continue to deteriorate as the bank industry's condition declines along with the economy.''

''Clearly, the bank insurance fund will go the way of the (thrifts' fund) unless quick action is taken to shore up the fund,'' Gonzalez said.

FDIC Chairman William Seidman recently told committee members the insurance fund ''is under considerable stress.''

Rep. Chalmers Wylie, R-Ohio, ranking Republican member of the committee, said higher premiums are ''essential for maintaining a healthy balance'' in the bank insurance fund.

''There is a critical difference between what we are doing now and what happened so far as the savings and loan crisis is concerned,'' Wylie said. ''On this occasion we are practicing an ounce of prevention before a pound of cure is needed. ... If we are to avoid a repeat of the savings and loan disaster we must practice aggressive oversight when danger appears on the horizon.''

Gonzalez and others have introduced bills to accomplish a comprehensive overhaul of the bank insurance system, but it is not expected that Congress will have time to deal with the issue before adjourning for the year. Gonzalez said it was ''prudent to move this (premiums increase) bill separately and expeditiously.''

EL ZARZAL, Honduras (SEPT. 17) UPI - Floodwaters swept away a schoolbus trying to cross a river in eastern Honduras, drowning at least 26 people including the American driver and many kindergarden-age children, authorities said Monday.

Local police and rescue workers said the accident occured Sunday afternoon when the bus tried to cross the Choluteca River about 30 miles east of the capital. The bus was carrying school children on a day trip.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Mark Jacob told United Press International in a telephone interview that unconfirmed reports said there were 38 people, mostly children, aboard the bus.

''There are conflicting reports,'' Jacob said. ''At least 26 people are reported dead.''

Authorities in the nearby town of El Zarzal, 27 miles east of Tegucigalpa, said rescue workers and police continued the search Monday for more bodies. They said 26 bodies have been recovered.

The American woman was was identified by local authorities as Dorotea Hutch, 50, the head of a Honduran kindergarden. News reports said her body had been recovered.

''At this point, I am unable to confirm the death of the American woman because of the Privacy Act,'' Jacob said.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (SEPT. 17) UPI - Nine months after their country was invaded by U.S. troops, many Panamanians support the U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia but say Washington must avoid a full-scale war with Iraq.

In recent interviews, Panamanians said an invasion of Iraq would be far more costly than the invasion of Panama last December, when U.S. troops ousted dictator Manuel Noriega and installed a civilian government.

''I am in total agreement that the United States has troops in Saudi Arabia to protect the other Arab countries,'' said Remiy Franceschi, 62, a retired farmer. He added, however, that he would not support a U.S. invasion of Iraq.

''The United States could destroy all of Iraq within one week,'' Franceschi said. ''But there would be millions killed. It would not be worth it.''

Hundreds of civilians were killed in the invasion of Panama while the neighborhood surrounding Noriega's headquarters was leveled. Many Panamanians supported the invasion but now complain that the United States has not sent enough aid to help rebuild the country.

After Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, the United States led an economic blockade against Iraq and sent thousands of troops to neighboring Saudi Arabia.

U.S. economic sanctions and troop maneuvers were also used to pressure Noriega before the invasion. But - while Noriega commanded a corrupt, disorganized army of 12,000 that U.S. troops overcame in about six hours - Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein has one of the best-equipped armies in the Middle East and stockpiles of chemical weapons.

''I do not think that the United States will invade (Iraq) because there would be so much human suffering,'' said one Panamanian, who would not give his name. ''I don't think President Bush would go through with it.''

Noriega was an unpopular dictator, but Panamanians said Iraqi support for Saddam may be much stronger.

''These people (the Iraqis) are ready to die. For them, to die fighting is to die for Allah,'' said Marco Antonio Rivero, an industrial engineer.

Rivero added that a U.S. war with Iraq could cause Arab nations to rally around Saddam.

''Iraq is not a very big threat to the United States, but - once the Arab people unite - it could become very serious,'' he said.

Rigoberto Rodriquez, 50, an unemployed Panamanian, said he doubts Iraq wants to get into a war with the United States.

''(Saddam) is very intelligent. He is not going to get into a world war,'' he said.

Carlos Tyril, who works at the Panama Canal, said the United States may invade Iraq if the crisis continues and U.S. hostages in Kuwait are not released.

''Those people need help. I think the United States should do something about it. They should try to do more negotiations but, if nothing results, they will have to make their own decision,'' Tyril said. ''For freedom, somebody has to die.''

A woman who would not give her name added: ''If the gringos want to go and die that is their problem.''

AMMAN, Jordan (SEPT. 17) UPI - The Palestine Liberation Organization said Monday they felt optimistic about an Arab solution to the Persian Gulf crisis because of a positive response from Saudi Arabia and Iraq on the outline of a PLO proposal.

Political adviser to PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat Bassam Abu Sharif told United Press International that Arafat's outline proposal for a political settlement within the Arab framework received positive response from Arab leaders, but that ''details can be worked out.''

''The PLO now feels optimistic that an Arab political solution is possible and that the ground for such a solution had been drawn as an outline. The response to Arafat's proposals from several Arab countries, including Iraq and Saudi Arabia, were not negative,'' Abu Sharif said during a short visit to Amman.

Arafat's proposal included linking the entire Middle East problem - the Palestinian-Israeli, Arab-Israeli conflict - with the gulf crisis, as well as giving self-determination to the Kuwaitis.

''Dealing with the Middle East problem and the Gulf crisis even- handedly with the implementation of Security Council resolutions does not necessarily mean simultaneously,'' Abu Sharif said, adding that the resolutions must be dealt with consecutively.

Arafat, who is currently in Iraq, met with Morocco's King Hassan last week where they discussed the proposal, after which the King sent envoys to Iraq and Saudi Arabia. Abu Sharif said the chairman has been in touch with most of the Arab leaders and continues to send envoys to Saudi Arabia.

Abu Sharif described the PLO's outline of the proposal as ''basically what President Saddam Hussein had proposed in his initiative and in his letter to Presidents Bush and Gorbachev.''

He said that Saddam had talked about the even-handed dealing with the Security Council resolutions concerning the Middle East. ''This is the key to the solution,'' he commented.

Abu Sharif said the PLO stopped short of condemning Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2 because ''condemnation only complicates matters.'' He added that the PLO wanted solutions and not resolutions.

The PLO official referred to the United States using the veto seven times in the Security Council condemning Israeli practices against Palestinians under the pretext that condemning would complicate the situation.

He accuse the West of criticizing the PLO because it would not support the Weestern military build-up in the gulf.

Abu Sharif denied that the PLO was divided in its position on the gulf crisis, saying all factions were against foreign military presence and intervention in the region.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 17) UPI - Hotel Investors Corp. and Hotel Investors Trust said Monday that they have received a $61.5 million cash offer for the companies from investor group First West Capital Corp.

The companies, whose shares are traded on a paired basis on the New York Stock Exchange, said that the $5-a-share offer would be subject to several conditions, including cooperation with lenders and completion of the deal by the end of the year.

Hotel Investors, which has investments or management interests in more than 30 hotels, has been trying to sell its assets for more than a year.

The companies had previously announced a definitive agreement to sell interests in 27 hotels to Japanese investors Park Plaza Inc. but spokeswoman Mary Hubbard said that the agreement has been suspended pending review of the new offer.

The companies said they have postponed their annual meeting until Oct. 12.

The companies posted a loss of $2.2 million for the first six months of this year on revenues of $59.6 million. They lost $60.5 million last year mostly as a result of writedowns in the values of properties.

Hotel Invetsors stock was up $1 a share to $3.875 in early afternoon trading Monday on the New York Stock Exchange.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (SEPT. 17) UPI - Two families stepped forward Monday with separate winning tickets to claim shares in a Florida Lotto jackpot of $106.5 million, the second largest lottery grand prize in U.S. history.

Scott and Kathy Smith, a brother and sister from Longwood, said they had formed a family partnership to share any winnings among a total of 12 family members.

Richard J. Piasecki Sr., a former autoworker who retired to New Smyrna last year, said he and his wife Jeanne will share their newfound wealth with their son, Richard Jr., and daughter, Mary Jo Bednarski.

Lottery officials were still awaiting word from the holders of the remaining four winning tickets.

Each winning ticket is worth $17.75 million in 20 annual installments. The Pieseckis and Smiths both were handed their first installment checks of $887,500 during a news conference at Lottery headquarters.

The newly rich appeared undaunted at having to share the jackpot.

''Who needs $106 million?'' said Pat Landry, the Smith's mother, who is getting a share of the family's loot.

Lottery computers indicate the remaining winning tickets were sold in Coconut Creek, Venice, Miami and Winter Haven.

Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said the lottery has arranged free air fare to bring winners to Tallahassee to have their tickets validated and to claim their winnings.

The winning numbers chosen in the Saturday night drawing were 5, 6, 21, 34, 35 and 45.

The jackpot was second only to the $115.6 million Pennsylvania Lottery jackpot split by 14 winners in April 1989.

The Piaseckis had no immediate plans to spend their new wealth, but did plan to go car shopping and to move up from the rented mobile home they live in.

''I'll learn to live a life I'm not used to,'' said Richard Sr., 58, who took early retirement after Chrysler closed the Kenosha, Wis., American Motors plant where he worked.

The Smiths planned to keep their jobs and carefully invest their winnings. Scott, 35, operates his own accounting firm, and Kathy, 34, is a registered nurse working for an obstetrics practice in Orlando.

The junior Piasecki, 30, said he was likely to quit his job as a printing pressman, and so did his sister, Mary Jo, 34, who looked into the news cameras and said, ''This is my notice.''

Ironically, Jeanne Piasekci said she used to fuss at her husband for investing in lottery tickets.

''I don't believe in gambling,'' she said.

Did her good luck change her mind?

''Life's a chance, I guess.''

The jackpot was somewhat higher than the $105 million lottery officials estimated Sunday. Sales for the week were a record $109.1 million. The jackpot amount, which includes rollovers from four previous weekly drawings, is less than the total sales amount because of overhead costs and prizes paid to those who matched three, four and five numbers.

Of the proceeds, about $40 million is earmarked for the state's schools.

That windfall was expected to dampen the impact in the classroom of a $544 million slump in state tax collections, which is forcing 5 percent cutbacks in state spending this year.

In addition to the grand prize winners, there were 1,581 tickets sold that matched five numbers to win $4,488 each, 96,000 that matched four numbers to win $108 and 1.8 million that matched three numbers to win $5.50.

The previous jackpot record for Florida was $58.32 million, split by five winners April 7, 1989.

The estimate for next week's jackpot was $9 million.

Lotto players pick six numbers between 1 and 49. The odds of any one ticket matching all six numbers are about one in 14 million.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - The 12-nation European Community said Monday it will expel all Iraqi military attaches in EC capitals in retaliation for Baghdad's raids on embassies in occupied Kuwait and the Pentagon fired the Air Force's top general for saying Saddam Hussein would be in U.S. bombsights if war erupts in the Persian Gulf.

In Brussels, the EC's 12 foreign ministers agreed to expel all Iraqi military attaches in EC nations and restrict the movements of other Iraqi diplomats.

Some countries, including Britain and Belgium, adopted the retaliatory measures Monday and others were expected to quickly follow. France and Italy took steps over the weekend.

The action was a response to last week's violation by Iraqi troops of French, Dutch, Belgian and Canadian diplomatic facilities in occupied Kuwait. Five diplomats, including an American, were detained briefly and three French civilians were taken captive.

France had been the first to retaliate, saying Saturday it was expelling military attaches and suspected Iraqi intelligence agents and ordering 4,000 more troops to Saudi Arabia. They will join the 9,000 French who are already part of the multinational force building in the desert kingdom in response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney fired the Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Michael Dugan, for saying publicly that revised Pentagon bombing plans specifically target Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Dugan, in an interview published Sunday, said the Joint Chiefs of Staff had concluded that U.S. military air power - including a bombing mission against Baghdad that specifically targets Saddam - is the only effective option to force Iraqi forces from Kuwait if war erupts.

''The cutting edge would be in downtown Baghdad,'' Dugan was quoted as saying. ''This (bombing) would not be nibbling at the edges. If I want to hurt you, it would be at home, not out in the woods someplace.''

Saddam is a ''one-man show'' in Iraq, Dugan was quoted as saying. ''If and when we choose violence, he ought to be at the focus of our efforts.''

Dugan, appointed to his post in July, is the first member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to be fired since 1949, the Pentagon said.

''Relieving him is not a pleasant task, but I felt it was a necessary one,'' Cheney said of Dugan, 53, a decorated Vietnam War veteran.

Noting that conduct of U.S. security policy is a ''very delicate task,'' Cheney said Dugan's remarks to reporters did not ''reveal an adequate understanding of what is expected of him.''

''There are certain things that we never talk about'' at the Pentagon, Cheyney said.

''We never discuss operational matters, such as the selection of specific targets for potential air strikes,'' Cheney continued. ''We never talk about the targeting of specific individuals who are officials in other governments. That's a violation of the executive order (against assassinations).''

In other developments Monday:

-The U.S. Navy said warships have intercepted 1,000 vessels since enforcement of the U.N.-ordered economic embargo of Iraq and Kuwait began more than one month ago. The Navy said 65 merchant vessels had been boarded and five diverted or ordered to return to their port of origin.

-In Saudi Arabia, painstaking identity checks designed to screen out Iraqi infiltrators slowed the flow of refugees through occupied Kuwait's newly reopened border with Saudi Arabia. Saudi authorities estimated more than 5,000 refugees had entered the kingdom since Iraqi border guards on Saturday inexplicably opened the frontier. But the departures slowed Monday, with officials saying only 50 vehicles had been allowed through. The bottleneck was caused by an effort to screen the refugees to establish their credentials, Saudi officials said. Saudi and U.S. military officials are concerned that Iraqi soldiers, who have been stripping refugees of all identification before they leave Kuwait, were rendering Kuwaitis stateless to allow Iraqis to infiltrate Saudi Arabia posing as refugees.

-State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said 249 American evacuees arrived in the U.S. Saturday, another 160 arrived Sunday, making a total of 1,308 people evacuated so far. Another 1,280 Americans remain in Kuwait, and 170 are in Iraq. Another 747 flight is scheduled for this Wednesday (arriving Raleigh-Durham Thursday) and at least one more after that.

Two more Americans were picked up by Iraqis over the weekend, bringing to 82 the number of detainees.

PARIS (SEPT. 17) UPI - General Motors Corp. said Monday that it will invest over $1 billion in its European automotive parts division during the next four to five years in an effort to strengthen its position as a supplier to the European car industry.

The investments in General Motors' European division, Automotive Components Group Europe, will total $285 million in 1990 alone, according to division President Mark McCabe. He said that the bulk of the planned investments would go to enhance ACG's manufacturing facilities.

''In a typical year, ACG has invested less than $100 million in Europe,'' Fred Bellar, Director of Planning and Finance, said at a Paris press luncheon.

General Motors has accelerated its participation in the European market in recent years, with company executives saying that the European market for automobiles and options such as power steering, air conditioning, and automatic transmissions shows more promise than the North American market.

''We consider the European Community the most important market in the world,'' said ACG marketing director Graham Bell. ''It is moving faster than the States.''

General Motors would not disclose how much of the projected $1 billion investment would come from European profits or be subsidized by G.M. operations in the United States.

''We currently import 10 percent of our products from the U.S,'' McCabe said. ''We don't want to have long supply lines and don't want to chase the dollar around.''

ACG, which operates 49 factories in Europe, supplies all the major automobile firms on the continent including its competitors Ford, Honda, Toyota, and Nissan.

While G.M. and its European Opel division make up 60 percent of ACG's $2.4 billion in sales, the firm sells such products as wiring harnesses, transmissions, brake components, air conditioners, and windshield wipers to 21 European manufacturers.

Increasing the sales of options such as power steering, automatic transmission and air conditioning is behind ACG's European strategy, but the popularity of features taken for granted in America lags behind in Europe, according to company officials.

''Europe is about 10 years behind on the options growth chart,'' said Bellar.

REDWOOD CITY, CA (SEPT. 17) UPI - A public defender conceded Monday that Ramon Salcido killed seven people but said the former winery worker was under a ''psychotic depression'' at the time of the 1989 rampage.

Marteen Miller made the admission in his opening statement before a San Mateo County Superior Court jury of eight women and four men at the trial of Salcido on seven counts of first-degree murder.

Sonoma County Assistant District Attorney Peter Bumerts, seeking the death penalty, said he would use Salcido's own confession - made to sheriff's deputies en route back from Mexico where he was arrested - to show the slayings were premeditated.

Salcido, 29, was charged with killing his wife Angela, 24, in their Boyes Springs home; daughters 4-year-old Sofia and 1-year-old Teresa at a remote dump site; his mother-in-law, Marian Richards, 42; her daughters, Ruth, 12, and 8-year-old Maria, in Cotati; and Grand Cru winery co-worker Tracy Toovey, 35, on April 14, 1989. He was arrested several days later in Mexico.

Salcido's 2-year-old daughter, Carmina, survived the knife attack that killed Sofia and Teresa.

Miller told the jury that the confession would show that Salcido was in a ''psychotic depression'' at the time of the killings. He also said that psychiatrists who have examined his client agree ''he is severely mentally ill.''

The Sonoma County lawyer said he would present during the trial psychiatrists who would testify that Salcido ''went into a psychotic depression'' before the slayings.

Miller said Salcido has the mind of a 2-year-old and ''the world was him.'' He added he loved his children ''only as an extension of himself.''

Bumerts, speaking of the confession, said, ''You will hear Ramon Salcido, in his own words, describe with exquisite specificity how he decided to kill his daughters because he was angry with his wife.''

The prosecutor said Salcido went on an alcohol-cocaine binge the night before the killings.

Bumerts said when Salcido got home, his wife was gone and he became angry so he took his daughters to the dump site and slashed them. Then, Bumerts said, Salcido went to the Richards home where he waited until her husband left for work and then killed her and the two girls. Bumerts said Salcido was angry with Mrs. Richards because she knew Sofia had not been fathered by him.

Salcido then contacted his wife by telephone at their home, went there and killed her, Bumerts said. Salcido proceeded to the winery where he killed Toovey because he felt the victim was trying to get him fired.

Salcido talked with his family in Mexico by phone, and then drove there to meet with his mother, Miller said.

The trial was moved to San Mateo County from Santa Rosa because of heavy pre-trial publicity.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - In an effort to achieve historical balance, the House voted Monday to establish a memorial to the victors at one of the most famous battlegrounds in the United States, the Little Bighorn.

Since 1881, a monument has stood at the site Custer's Last Stand to honor the men of the 7th Cavalry who died in a battle against overwhelming numbers of Indians in 1876, but there is no monument to the Indians.

The bill, approved by voice vote and sent to the Senate, would authorize a monument ''to commemorate the Indians who fought to preserve their land and culture at the battle of the Little Bighorn,'' said Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn.

''While many know of Custer's Last Stand, far fewer know of the circumstance or events that led to the momentous encounter at Little Bighorn,'' Vento told the House. ''For a time the story only centered on the daring and flamboyancy of Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer, who led his men into the fateful battle that proved to be the high water mark in the Plains Indians' struggle.''

Looking back on the battle in the hills around the Little Bighorn River, ''we can see sacrifice and bravery on both sides,'' he said.

The new memorial ''is meant to give recognition to Indians who fought there, just as the existing 7th Cavalry monument recognizes U.S. Army participants.''

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., said the new memorial ''will at last give recognition to the fallen Indian warriors in the most famous battle ever fought in the Indian wars.''

Rhodes called the Montana battle, in which some 225 Army soldiers and scouts died, ''a spectacular triumph of the American Indian and one that for too long has not been properly recognized. This legislation today will begin to restore historical balance to the battle.''

''While many members of the Cheyenne, Sioux and other Indian nations gave their lives defending their families and their traditional lifestyle and their livelihood, nothing stands at the battlefield to commemorate those individuals '' Rhodes said.

The bill would authorize a design competition to select an appropriate memorial to the Indian participants in the battle. It also directs the National Park Service, which maintains the Custer Battlefield National Monument, ''to interpret the events at the park in such a way as to reflect on the total historic importance of it,'' Vento said.

MOSCOW (SEPT. 17) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev Monday proposed a referendum to let the people decide whether land should be privately owned - a move which lead to scrapping the collective farm system.

Organized by the state with brute force in 1929-32, the 40,000 collective and state farms have failed to feed the country, forcing the country to import some 40 million tons of grain a year, including 44 million tons last year.

''The to-be or not-to-be of private ownership of land - this question is the sovereign right of the people to decide. It can be decided only through a referendum,'' Gorbachev said in a recommendation to the Supreme Soviet.

The call perplexed parliament because gradual privatizaton is already part of a radical 500-day economic market plan on which the deputies will vote this fall. The official Tass news agency said the plan will be discussed all week by the lawmakers.

The Russian Federation, largest of the 15 Soviet republics, has already approved its own 500-day plan, and its premier Ivan Silayev told a news conference Monday his republic might not wait for a referendum and might begin unilaterally implementing the drive to a market on Oct. 1.

Gorbachev said abandoning the public ownership of land, one of the cardinal features of socialism, was so vital it could not be left either to the national legislature or the parliaments of the republics.

''It should be decided by the people themselves and should be decided through a referendum,'' Gorbachev said. ''This is a serious problem, too serious to be decided in any auditorium or forum, even so responsible a one as ours.''

Although holding a referendum on the land ownership could delay implementation of the 500-day economic plan to move the Soviet Union to a market economy, approval of the measure in a plebiscite would give public support to the overall reform effort.

It would also give Gorbachev a broad consensus to dismantle the collective farm system, in which the land belongs to the community as a whole in theory but in reality is administered by state officials.

Under the 500-day plan, peasants will be able to buy land but not resell it to individuals. Land could only be transfered back to local authorities, who would in turn resell it.

But Silayev, the Russian premier, told journalists he believed that land sales would eventually be permitted between individuals. It was Silayev's boss, Russian president Boris Yeltsin, who initiated the move towards a radical economic reform.

The Supreme Soviet debate brought together the three chief economists in the county, Leonid Abalkin, Stanislav Shatalin and Abel Aganbegyan, all who have advised Gorbachev during the perestroika era.

Abalkin, whose plan for a gradual transition to a market was beat back last June, said under the 500-day plan, ''25 percent of the collective and state farms possessing 35 percent of the agricultural lands will go bankrupt.''

But the government career of Abalkin, the minister of economic reform and adviser to Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov, may be near over.

Sunday, tens of thousands of Soviet citizens braved a pelting rain to march through Moscow and demand the resignation of Ryzhkov and his government, blaming him for chronic shortages from cigarettes to bread.

In further bad economic news, the city council of Sverdlovsk, home town of Yeltsin in the Urals and thus a barometer of thinking in the Russian republic, warned it would stop fulfilling state orders for goods because its region had not been receiving supplies of meat, sugar and tobacco.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - With approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee appearing increasingly likely, Supreme Court nominee David Souter spent his 51st birthday side-stepping more abortion questions Monday and defending his views about court activism on social issues.

The federal appeals court judge from New Hampshire, engaging in his third day of questioning before the panel, was expected to finish his testimony Monday.

Souter, nominated by President Bush to replace retiring liberal Justice William Brennan, again refused to answer questions relating to his personal views on abortion, having said such an answer would be inappropriate because of the likelihood he would have to rule on an abortion challenge if he is confirmed.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., asked Souter what would be the practical effect if the Supreme Court overturned the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision guaranteeing legal abortions.

''The issue would become a legislative judgment in every state,'' Souter said. ''I think that it's safe to say that those legislative judgments would not be uniform. There would be, I'd dare say, a considerable variety in scope of protection afforded or not afforded (for abortion).''

Souter also said a succesful challenge to Roe vs. Wade would call into question several earlier Supreme Court rulings, such as a martial privacy case.

The committee chairman, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., opened Monday's session on a light note, telling Souter: ''We are convened today to celebrate Judge Souter's birthday. Happy birthday, judge.'' Biden added that Souter told him ''whether or not he had a happy birthday was up to me. And I told him, ''No, that occurs in about two or three weeks (with ''or three weeks (with

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., who was considered a potential swing vote entering the hearings, told Souter, ''I believe you will be confirmed.'' Several Republican committee members have expressed confidence the nominee will be endorsed by the committee, although Biden cautioned, ''Some of us still haven't made up our minds.''

Several senators questioned Souter on statements he made Friday that a decision-making ''vacuum'' by the legislative and executive branches of government by necessity put divisive issues such as abortion on the agenda of the Supreme Court.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., told Souter that view represents ''a very expansive interpretation'' of judicial authority that contributes toward making the Supreme Court a ''super legislature'' that steps beyond judicial bounds. The high court has been criticized by some for activism in recent decades.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said Souter's view is ''dangerously close to acting like a politician'' rather than a judge, with Souter retorting, ''The last thing in the world I would want to be taken for is a politician.''

Souter said it is ''a darn tough line to draw'' between judicial restraint and activism. ''I wish I had a neat formula for it.''

Under questioning by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Souter said he made a mistake in 1977 when serving as New Hampshire attorney general in not vigorously opposing a $70,000 contribution by operators of the Seabrook power plant to help defray law enforcement costs incurred during a large demonstration at the site. Souter said the contribution gave the appearance of impropriety.

''We learn as we go along,'' Souter said.

Souter said he supports the constitutionality of the use of sobriety check points by police to catch drunken drivers, a practice upheld by the court during its most recent session. Souter called the check points a ''comparatively minor'' intrusion and not ''sort of the thin end of the wedge for watering down very important Fourth Amendment protections'' against unreasonable search and seizure.

Souter also said he does not agree that the death penalty in all cases is ''cruel and unusual punishment.''

CAIRO, EGYPT (SEPT. 17) UPI - A spokesman for Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said Monday that Iraq tried to buy Egypt's silence ''at any price'' before it invaded Kuwait, but that Mubarak rejected the offer.

Press Secretary Mohammed Abdulmoneium did not elaborate on the proposal, but his comments seemed to confirm Arab news reports that Iraq offered Egypt oil and money to look the other way before it invaded the tiny, oil-rich emirate of Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Instead, Egypt has been a staunch supporter of U.S.-led efforts to counter Iraqi aggression and is one of three Arab countries, along with Syria and Morocco, to send soldiers to serve in the Western-dominated multinational military force in the Persian Gulf.

Abdulmoneium said in a statement that Mubarak had explained Monday to Egyptian troops bound for Saudi Arabia the circumstances leading up to the invasion of Kuwait, ''stressing all of the steps which were taken before the invasion with the aim of neutralizing Egypt and buying its silence at any price.''

''But Egypt could not stand against right,'' Abdulmoneium quoted Mubarak as telling the soldiers, according to a report from the semi- official Middle East News Agency.

He could not be reached later for further comment.

Mubarak was also quoted as telling the Egyptian soldiers preparing to go to Saudi Arabia that he regretted sending Arab troops to an Arab country, but defended the decision against criticism by Iraq.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 17) UPI - The American Stock Exchange announced Monday it will begin trading put and call options on an index of blue-chip Japanese stocks, part of the exchange's efforts to expand into a global marketplace.

The Japan Index, developed by the Amex, measures the aggregate performance of 210 leading stocks on the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

The index, calculated before the opening of Amex trading, is based on the closing prices of the component Japanese stocks.

The new options, to be regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission, will be denominated in U.S. dollars, the exchange said.

Trading begins Sept. 25, pending SEC approval.

''Since the Japan Index measures the performance of core stocks that span a number of industry groups throughout the Japanese economy, the options on the index offer a uniquely effective means of hedging risk and increasing yields in Japanese equity holdings,'' said James Jones, chairman of the Amex.

''The new Japanese Index options are evidence of the exchange's strong commitment to globalization and to taking the lead in developing products that create new opportunities for individual and institutional investors,'' Jones said.

The exchange has signed an agreement with the Economic Development Corporation of Honolulu to develop a securities trading facility in Hawaii, also part of the Amex's globalization strategy, the exchange also announced.

Launch of the options trading coincides with four products based on Japanese issues that are slated to begin the same day in Chicago.

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange is starting futures contracts on the Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues and options on the futures contracts, both to be traded in U.S. dollars.

The Chicago Board of Trade is listing futures contracts on the broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Composite Index, or TOPIX, and options on those futures contracts, to be traded in yen.

Japan's Ministry of Finance had been concerned that such products would contribute to volatility on the Tokyo exchange, an Amex spokeswoman said.

''If those four products go forward in Chicago, we're going to go forward also '' the exchange chairman said in announcing the options trading launch.

''I think there's still a sense they would like none of them to go forward,'' he added.

Japan's Finance Ministry had asked the Amex to place a moratorium on issuing additional Nikkei warrants, which the Amex began in January, the spokeswoman said.

The exchange has complied, in part because there haven't been any other issues the spokeswoman said. The exchange also has studied the matter and did not consider that the practice adds to market volatility in Tokyo, she said.

The exchange will seek joint-venture agreements with Asian and U.S. firms before proceeding with operation of a Hawaiian facility, the exchange said.

The success of a Hawaii-based facility would depend upon attracting investor flow from Japan and other Pacific Rim nations, the exchange said.

The Japan Index options have elicited strong interest from retail customers, said Steven Bloom, the Amex assistant vice president for new products.

''Our target audience are American retail customers, American institutions and surprisingly enough, we're getting more interest from Japanese investors who see this can offer a hedge and compete with Japanese products,'' Bloom said.

Typical customers will be ''generally upscale, sophisticated people who can bear risk,'' said Howard Baker, senior vice president of the exchange's options division.

The options feature eight near- and long-term expirations, with expiration dates set from one month to as long as three years in advance, the exchange said.

PRAGUE (SEPT. 17) UPI - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Monday said she supported Czechoslovakia's eventual entry into the European Community and other Western institutions, but cautioned deeper reform in the former East Bloc nation is still needed.

Thatcher, in Prague on a three-day visit, also threw her support behind a Czechoslovak-led initiative to expand the role of the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe and congratulated the Czechoslovaks on having overthrown 42 years of communist rule in last November's peaceful ''velvet revolution.''

But she said the legal system and the country's pervasive communist- era bureaucracy must be reformed and massive privatization of state-run industry must occur before Czechoslovakia could expect full membership in the European Community.

Czechoslovakia has embarked on an ambitious program of economic reform, and most prices will be freed and most small businesses privatized beginning January 1991, government officials have said.

Thatcher said that only then could lower level economic links with British industry begin to work.

President Vaclav Havel, who attended a news conference with Thatcher, said he understood the concerns foreign businessmen had when dealing with enthusiastic but bureaucracy-bound Czechoslovak partners.

But Havel said reform was coming quickly. ''I believe we are entering an era no longer of contemplation but of implementation of economic reform,'' Havel said.

Havel also pointed out that Thatcher's visit, which came two days after French president Francois Mitterrand paid his own two-day state visit, was part of an effort by the Czechoslovaks to avoid an overdependence on Germany and Austria for economic development.

Speaking about Germany, Havel said, ''We do not want to be overly dependent on anyone. We have had bad exprience with that. Economic relations should be established in a balanced way,'' Havel said.

Since 1948, Czechoslovakia has effectively been an economic satellite of the Soviet Union, and for centuries before that it traded mainly with Austria and Germany.

Thatcher's proposal to welcome Czechoslovakia and other emerging East European democracies to the European Community is seen by some to be an attempt to further dilute E.C. President Jacques Delors' plans for full economic and monetary union of the 12 EC member states by 1992.

Thatcher is openly hostile to European monetary union, and most recently has proposed scaling down EC plans to create a common currency.

Welcoming additional members into the EC could make the community so unwieldy that member states might seek to weaken its power. Thatcher has long said the EC exerts too much control over internal affairs of member states.

''The European Community, perhaps an enlarged one, is the center of our economic policy, the Atlantic Alliance, Nato, including the United States and Canada is part of our defense policy, but the CSCE is the only forum in which the United States, Europe and the Soviet Union meet in discussion,'' Thatcher said.

''I think it would be beneficial to us all if our foreign minsiters met often, at least twice a year,'' she added.

Thatcher urged the establishment in Prague of a CSCE secretariat for some of these meetings.

For the Czechoslovaks, the biggest news of Thatcher's visit appeared to be the abolition of visas for travel to Britain effective October 1.

According to British consular sources, the embassy in Prague expected to grant about 20,000 visas by the end of 1990.

Enthusiasm for the English people and language is high in Prague, but many young students have been unable to afford the visa fee - equivalent to about one-third of a month's wages in Czechoslovakia.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - Mandatory reporting of AIDS infection ''makes all the sense in the world'' to help Americans stricken by the deadly virus receive proper medical care, a federal health official told the National AIDS Commission Monday.

Dr. James Curran of the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta said he thinks the time has come to start keeping confidential government records listing the names of people infected with the AIDS- causing human immunodeficiency virus or HIV.

AIDS activists have long argued against such mandatory reporting, saying they fear health agencies cannot ensure that the names of HIV- infected people will not leak out and make them targets of discrimination. Such concerns may also prevent people at high risk of HIV infection from coming in for testing, they said.

About 20 states currently require mandatory reporting of the names of HIV-infected people to health officials. However, only a ''handful'' actually are implementing that policy and providing the necessary follow-up care and counseling to HIV-infected people, their sex partners and children, Curran said.

The expense of offering HIV-infected people the proper medical treatment appears to be a major reason that states are dragging their feet in requiring HIV infection to be reported like other infectious diseases, the CDC official said.

Drugs like AZT, which directly fights the AIDS virus, and aersolized pentamidine, which guards against AIDS-related pneumonia, can prolong the lives of people infected with HIV. However, such medications are relatively costly and the decision about when to start them hinges on making sure a person receives regular tests to check the state of their immune system.

''HIV reporting as it exists in the United States is an under- utilized tool for AIDS prevention,'' Curran said, adding ''A mandatory reporting system makes all the sense in the world.''

About 1 million Americans - 100,000 of them women of child-bearing age - are estimated to be infected with HIV. Even if they are not sick, all those people should be closely monitored by doctors, coming in for appointments anywhere from every one to six months, said Curran, who heads the CDC's AIDS effort.

HIV is spread by sexual or blood-to-blood contact, like intravenous drug users sharing needles. It can also be transmitted from an infected woman to her baby. Ten years or more may pass from the time a person is infected with HIV until he or she develops AIDS.

HIV currently appears to be spreading most rapidly among minorities living in inner city areas - people who may not be well served by voluntary, anonymous testing with no government follow-up to ensure proper treatment for those found to be infected, Curran said.

The CDC official also suggested that in localities known to have a high rate of infection, pregnant women might be routinely tested for HIV.

Currently, 1 percent of women delivering babies in some northeastern cities are infected with HIV, and one-third or more of their infants go on to develop AIDS.

''If this were any other disease, there would be mandatory testing,'' Curran said, adding he was ''very frustrated'' by how the medical system currently handles the HIV threat facing thousands of women and their babies.

But Curran told the AIDS Commission, which was formed by Congress to oversee the nations fight against the HIV epidemic, that pressure from AIDS activists and cost-conscious local governments likely would make it tough to implement any widescale system of mandatory reporting, let alone testing.

EAST BERLIN (SEPT. 17) UPI - Bitter disputes over claims of collaboration with the once-dreaded State Security police dominated East Germany's political debate Monday, less than three weeks before the state formally ceases to exist.

Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere said that many of the claims were the result of a disinformation campaign led until January by the now- disbanded special police force, known as Stasi. He said the Stasi had named many people as former collaborators in a bid to destabilize the country.

De Maiziere made the remarks amid allegations that two of his current Cabinet ministers - and four others who have since left the government - had cooperated with the State Security police of the Communist authorities ousted last fall.

The bitter disputes continued to dominate the political debate in East Germany which will cease to exist on Oct. 3 when it accedes to West Germany's Federal Republic.

Defense Minister Rainer Eppelman and former Economics Minister Gerhard Pohl said Monday they would sue an official who until recently was charged with disbanding the Stasi. The official, Werner Fischer, had publicly alleged that the pair had acted as informers for the Stasi.

The West German Spiegel magazine, meanwhile, claimed in its latest edition that Interior Minister Peter-Michael Diestel, who took over Fischer's job, had blocked investigations into the Stasi past of well- known legislators.

And Dieter Hildebrandt, who heads a commission of inquiry into past Stasi activities, Monday insisted that Environment Minister Karl-Hermann Steinberg should resign. Hildebrandt rejected Steinberg's denials of Stasi collaboration as ''crassly contradicting the facts.''

The commission recently claimed that 68 of the East German parliament's 400 deputies had worked for the Stasi, but said it would only reveal names after it has concluded investigations.

Under the former leadership, the Stasi had 85,500 full-time employees and an estimated 500,000 informants, which would mean that nearly one out of every 30 East Germans was collaborating with the State Security police.

East German officials are also debating whether to grant access to the Stasi's secret files on 6 million East German citizens.

''Under no circumstances may individual persons be allowed to receive their files,'' de Maiziere said. ''Then there would be no more neighbors, friends or colleagues - then there would be murder and homocide.''

De Maiziere's East German Christian Democratic Party served as a satellite bloc party to the former ruling Communist party from 1949 to 1989.

Members of the pro-democracy movements which led the peaceful revolution against East German hard-line ruler Erich Honecker last fall want to grant people access to their files.

A citizens group, which has occupied the central archive of the former Stasi building for the past two weeks, called for protecting the files from falling into the hands of other intelligence services and for finding means to allow individuals access to the files.

More than 30,000 East Germans have signed an open letter in support of the group's demands.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - President Bush, brushing off demonstrations in Baghdad against his televised message to the Iraqi people, said Monday ''the truth is a good thing to put into Iraq'' as pressure builds in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Bush discussed several aspects of conflict with Iraq during a news conference, discounting suggestions Iran is moving to help Baghdad and refusing to speculate on how long U.S. troops will be deployed in the region.

The president, whose recorded address was broadcast Sunday on Iraqi television as promised, dismissed the street demonstrations that followed, quipping, ''It got a good exercise for the demonstrators, who had been notified to demonstrate before they even heard what I had to say. So it kept them hustling around, jumping up and up down, screaming about the United States.''

He added, ''If that helped them, you know, vent their frustration, fine.''

But on a serious note, he said he believes his warning that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has driven his people to ''the brink of war'' with the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and subsequent move toward Saudi Arabia will help end the crisis.

''What I do think it will do is send a word, very objectively, to other Arab countries that it isn't Saddam Hussein and the rest of the Arab world against the United States, but it is something quite different,'' Bush said.

''And if two Iraqi citizens heard that, it would be worth the effort, '' he said. ''And who knows? The truth is a good thing, a good thing to put into Iraq. They are getting very little of it know. So I think it was worthwhile.''

Told that French President Francois Mitterrand was pessimistic about the possibility of avoiding a shooting war with Iraq, Bush said, ''I didn't get the feeling that he was giving up on any peaceful solution'' in the contacts they have had over the past two weeks.

At the same time, Bush noted that France has been ''closely related'' to Iraq and wondered what had motivated the Iraqis to send troops into the French Embassy residence last Friday.

As for the possibility of a United Nations-sanctioned air embargo against Iraq the president said Mitterrand ''had talked to this point'' and ''I would be prepared to work with anyone to tie that additional knot in the sanctions.''

Asked about the warming relations between Iraq and Iran, Bush said ''there will be factions'' in Iran hostile to the United States, but ''the important thing is that Iran do what it has said it would do, and that is comply with the sanctions.''

The president also said that Iran ''got almost everything it wanted from Iraq ... and this has not enhanced Saddam Hussein's standing in Iraq.''

''Thousands lost their lives'' in the eight-year Iran-Iraq war, and ''we've had indirect assurances from Iran that they want to see these sanctions complied with,'' Bush said. ''Until I'm shown otherwise, I'm not going to buy in'' that Tehran will renege on its pledge to follow the U.N. sanctions.

Bush said the American people are ''magnificently united'' behind his Persian Gulf military buildup and recalled the same spirit during World War II.

As for a stalemate with U.S. troops based in Saudi Arabia for a long time, Bush said he had read a lot of predictions and ''I don't want to define it. I want those soldiers out as soon as possible.''

He said he also wanted a ''full-court international press on the diplomatic side'' to end the crisis peacefully.

Nonetheless, he said U.S. forces are primed for action and if ''something happened that required combat, the command structure would function would function very, very smoothly.''

In a word to ''the parents of the kids over there,'' Bush declared, ''Should something happen ... we're not going to have to stand around waiting for someone else to decide if there is some provocation.''

Despite the U.S. policy of promoting closer relations with Iraq during its war with Iran, Bush said that even with the ''benefit of hindsight'' he does not believe the United States miscalculated or could have changed Saddam's intentions.

''I think it's a miscalculation by Saddam Hussein,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - The head of the Institute of International Finance has challenged the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund not to lend money to countries that do not make a dent in their increasing debt.

''Major debtors need to restore creditworthiness if the international financial system is to function effectively,'' Horst Schulmann, the institute's managing director, told a recent briefing for reporters.

''The key determinant of creditworthiness is, of course, payments discipline and respecting the sanctity of contracts,'' he said.

The institute, which represents 145 of the world's largest banks, said interest arrears have more than tripled to $22 billion from $7 billion since the spring of 1989.

These arrears have grown despite other positive steps resulting from an IMF-World Bank debt reduction strategy. In the past five years, the face value of bank debt owed by highly indebted middle-income countries has been trimmed by more than $60 billion, Schulmann said.

''However, to conclude that all is well with the current official debt strategy would clearly be wrong,'' he wrote. ''The strategy has encouraged some countries to consider debt reduction an entitlement and to run interest arrears to commercial banks.

Schulmann said the official debt reduction strategy has been hampered by ''a strong element of moral hazard'' and he urged the IMF and World Bank to address the situtation ''as a matter of urgency.''

In a letter to the IMF and World Bank, Schulmann called for greater coordination among creditors who lend to less developed countries to keep arrears in check.

''Toleration of arrears to banks erodes standards of conduct and discipline towards all creditors and destroys the confidence of other would-be investors '' he wrote.

Governors of the IMF and World Bank open their annual meeting Sept. 24 after weekend meetings of the Group of Seven - finance officials from the world's seven wealthiest nations - and the expanded Group of 10 and Group of 24.

''The finance ministers must make it clear this week that the IMF and World Bank will not provide finance to countries until they have stopped adding to arrears and agreed with their creditors to a program to eliminate the arrears within a reasonable time frame,'' Schulmann said.

ROME (SEPT. 17) UPI - Italian Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti suggested Monday that the 12-nation European Community share a single representation at the United Nations as a step towards further European integration.

''To think of unified embassies of the 12 member nations may appear difficult '' Andreotti said. ''But, and I say it as a provocation in the positive sense, one thing can be done - the 12 could be represented as a unitary group at the United Nations.

''If in the U.N. Security Council there were also a seat for the European Community and one for Japan, it would not be bad,'' he said.

Italy currently holds the six-month presidency of the European Community and Andreotti floated his idea in an address to the Institutional Committee of the European Parliament, meeting in Rome.

He also suggested as a ''matter for study'' that the long-established Western European Union (WEU) defense organization could be made ''the first base of a security policy'' for the European Community nations.

He suggested the WEU could be incorporated within the European Community because ''it already exists and is a tried and tested organism which, after disappointments in the past, has given signs of vitality in recent weeks.''

The Italian prime minister said the two ''extraordinary'' events of recent days - German unification and the Persian Gulf crisis - ''do not diminish, but accentuate, the European Community's program aimed at unity.''

(SEPT. 17) UPI - The White House expressed pleasure today at yesterday's broadcast to the Iraqi public of an eight-minute videotaped message by President Bush. Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater termed the airing ''very helpful'' to tell the Iraqi citizenry why U-S forces have been deployed in the Persian Gulf. While Bush did NOT directly challenge Saddam Hussein, he did warn that international pressures will be maintained against Iraq until Kuwait's former government is restored. .

The U-S Navy says at least one-thousand vessels have been intercepted in the Persian Gulf since U-N sanctions were imposed last month. Of that number, the Navy says 65 ships have been boarded and five ordered to return to their port of origin for attempting to violate the embargo. The blockade... known as U-N Security Council Resolution 661... is aimed at forcing Iraq to remove its troops from Kuwait.

Supreme Court nominee David Souter spent his 51st birthday today evading more questions on abortion from the Senate Judiciary Committee. The New Hampshire federal appeals court judge also had to further defend his views about court activism on social issues. This third day of Souter's confirmation hearing is expected to be his last.

Lawmakers appearing before a Senate panel today say drug manufacturers are ''stiffing'' the Medicaid program. They say poor people who are on Medicaid are NOT being offered the same discounts on prescription drugs provided to other customers. The lawmakers say that because Medicaid must pay higher prices for prescription drugs, officials are forced to slash recipients' benefits and re-imbursement rates.

Indians will finally get recognition from the government for their victory on one of the nation's most famous battlegrounds... Little Big Horn. The House voted today to establish a memorial for native Americans in an effort to achieve historical balance. A monument to the U-S Seventh Cavalry has stood at the site of Custer's Last Stand in Montana since 1881. The famed battle took place in 1876.

TORONTO (SEPT. 17) UPI - Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. said Monday it is preparing a second monetary offer for almost 13,000 striking Canadian autoworkers, but the nine struck plants were expected to remain closed at least until the weekend.

Ford's chief negotiator Don McKenzie told reporters, ''We are in the process of developing a second economic offer.'' He said he hoped to present it to the union Tuesday.

But McKenzie said, ''We're still a fair distance apart.'' He added, ''I think that if there isn't progress over the next couple of days, then obviously we've got a major problem.''

CAW president Bob White reacted cautiously to the promise of a second offer, saying the union was awaiting the new proposal ''with great anticipation''.

White also said, ''If tomorrow's proposal does not start to reach seriously towards us in the areas we are apart on, there will not be much point in continuing.

''The earliest that we could talk about ratifying any agreement would be this weekend,'' White said. ''We are not talking about any return to work this week.''

The striking auto workers began manning pickets lines at nine Ford plants at midnight Friday after negotiators failed to agree on a new contract.

Ford Canada operations affected by the strike include car and truck assembly plants in Oakville, engine and castings plants in Windsor, a glass facility in Niagara Falls, an electronics plant in Markham and a parts depot in Bramalea.

A prolonged walkout at Ford Canada's facilities could affect Ford's U.S. operations within two weeks. Hardest hit may be Ford assembly plants in Michigan, Chicago and Atlanta that depend on V6 engines made at Ford's Windsor plant for cars like the Taurus, Sable and Continental.

A settlement reached early Monday between the United Auto Workers and General Motors Corp. wasn't expected to have much of an impact on the Canadian talks, both company and union officials said.

Ford Canada spokesman Jim Hartford said, ''This is a Ford of Canada circumstance. It's a Canadian union. And we're trying to negotiate a 'made in Canada' agreement.''

White said, ''We won't be following or copying or try to jump over anything the UAW has done.''

''We have no intention of reframing our demands based on whatever the U.S. settlement is and the Ford Motor Co. had better not try to reframe their proposals on that settlement,'' White added.

The CAW's agenda in the talks has focused on security against contracting work out and against technological changes, income security, better protection against plant closings and shorter work time.

White said after the union receives the second offer, ''we'll have a good sense of whether or not Ford is serious.''

Last Wednesday, the CAW rejected Ford's first monetary offer. White called it ''totally unacceptable.''

Ford's first offer dealt with wages, income security, cost-of-living allowance and vacation time. No exact details were available.

The CAW, which broke away from the United Auto Workers during the mid-1980s, also represents 36,500 General Motors Canada workers and 11, 300 Chrysler Canada workers at various assembly and parts plants in Ontario and Quebec.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - During a news conference today, President Bush brushed aside the significance of Iraqi demonstrations against his video-taped message broadcast yesterday. Bush said he believes his warning that President Saddam Hussein had driven Iraq to the brink of war would help end the crisis. Bush said- ''the truth is a good thing to put into Iraq.''

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says he'll recommend that President Bush nominate General Merrill McPeak to replace Michael Dugan as the Air Force chief of staff. Cheney fired Dugan today for discussing U-S bombing plans in the Persian Gulf. Dugan released a statement through the Air Force today saying he sincerely regrets any embarrassment that his personal views caused the administration.

Today's long-awaited and crucial fueling of the shuttle Columbia was delayed by bad weather. But NASA launch director Robert Sieck finally gave permission to begin the crucial operation, about one hour behind schedule. NASA officials hope that a new fuel line fitting, three new hydrogen pumps and a new seal will end Columbia's fuel-leak problems. The shuttle is scheduled for blast-off early Tuesday.

The United Auto Workers union's 400-member G-M Bargaining Council will meet again tomorrow to consider a tentative three-year deal reached today between the union and General Motors. The council gathered for five minutes today, but had to adjourn because the members did NOT have copies of the agreement. The pact offers gains in job security and pensions for 310-thousand G-M workers.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - Current evidence does not support claims of dramatic success made for the unconventional cancer treatments used by thousands of stricken Americans, a congressional report said Monday.

In the first comprehensive look at alternative cancer therapies, which range from psychological tactics to coffee enemas to drinking hydrogen peroxide, the Office of Technology Asssessment concluded the successes claimed for such approaches ''are far more extravagant'' than available evidence shows. However the report acknowledged there have been ''some encouraging results'' in the psychological area.

Each year, a ''visible minority'' of U.S. cancer patients, probably numbering in the ''thousands,'' resort to unconventional treatments, defined as therapies that fall outside the bounds of mainstream medicine, the OTA said.

People who resort to such therapies represent a wide cross-section of America, not just a few poortly educated, gullible individuals, as some medical professionals have claimed, the report said.

OTA investigators said they found ''many or most patients using unconventional treatments have run the course of available mainstream treatments either before trying them or along with them.''

The attractiveness of unconventional treatments appears to stem partly from the inadequacy and discomfort of current conventional treatments, such as radiation therapy or chemotherapy, as well as from ''too frequent inattention of mainstream medical practice to issues relating to patients' quality of life '' the 312-page report said.

Cost of unconventional cancer therapy varies widely, but most clinics charge between $5,000 and $40,000 for an average treatment regimen, it said. Insurance generally does not pay for such treatment.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee that requested the report, said he considers the effort to be well balanced.

''No promising treatment for dread diseases can be dismissed before proper evaluation. But the fact that some treatments may help is no excuse for treatments that are at best outright quackery and at worst, actively harmful to patients,'' Dingell said.

Among the best known treatments examined by the congressional investigators were laetrile, vitamin C, the Gerson and Kelley dietary plans, the macrobiotic diet, Revici's ''biologically guided chemotherapy,'' anti-neoplastons, and the Livingston-Wheeler treatment.

One approach, called Immuno-Augmentative Therapy, received special attention at the request of 42 members of Congress who had been contacted by the treatment's developer, Lawrence Burton. Burton, who runs clinics in Mexico, West Germany and the Grand Bahamas, intially agreed to allow the OTA to set up a research plan to determine if the immune therapy was helpful, but later rejected the proposal.

The report called on the National Cancer Institute to seek out more information on a wide range of unconventional treatments, possibly providing money for further scientific evaluations of such therapies and also setting up registries to record reports of serious side effects or documented tumor regression following unconventional treatment.

Cancer institute officials had no comment on the report Monday, saying they had not reviewed it.

Dingell said the federal government should reassess its generally antagonistic stance towards alternate cancer treatments. He noted the OTA found some approaches can have ''physiological and psychological benefits which should not be ignored by physicians.''

In May, Project Cure, a lobbying group for unconventional medical treatments, released a poll showing half of all Americans thinks clinics offering unproven cancer treatments should be allowed to operate even if opposed by medical experts. Michael Evers, president of Project Cure, could not be reached for comment Monday.

The American Cancer Society estimates about 1 million people nationwide will be diagnosed this year as having cancer, and about 30 percent of Americans now living will eventually develop cancer. About 40 percent of people who develop cancer today will be alive five years from now - up from about 20 percent in the 1930s and 33 percent in the 1960s, the society said.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - Another fuel leak is plaguing the shuttle Columbia and America's space program. Columbia's planned Tuesday morning launch was canceled today because of the crippling leak. Sensors in the spacecraft's engine compartment detected the problem only three minutes into the high-speed loading process. Columbia's 10-day astronomy mission is already 111 days late.

President Bush had little to say about today's firing of Air Force Chief of Staff Michael Dugan... except that he strongly supports the secretary of defense. Defense chief Cheney fired Dugan for what Cheney said was ''poor judgment'' in discussing U-S bombing plans in the Persian Gulf. Cheney would NOT discuss the accuracy of Dugan's remarks... citing a Pentagon policy of NOT disclosing possible military action.

Capitol hill lawmakers today O-K'd legislation that would allow U-S forces in the Persian Gulf to send mail home free. The congressional action follows last week's action by the postmaster general to provide the armed forces free delivery. Congress decided upon today's measure in order to show its support of troops taking part in Operation Desert Shield.

Authorities in Bay City, Michigan, say a raging fire aboard a tanker on the Saginaw River is under control and nearly extinguished. Firefighters today used chemical foam to battle the flames on the M-V Jupiter. Yesterday's fire and explosion injured 11 crew members and apparently killed a 12th. Officials say environmental damage from the incident involving the gasoline-laden tanker may be minimal.

There will be NO re-trial for Washington, D-C., Mayor Marion Barry. Federal prosecutors today said they would NOT re-try Barry on the 12 charges that led to a mistrial in his drug and perjury case. Barry expressed relief after hearing of the announcement... but declined further comment. Sentencing on the one cocaine possession charge on which Barry was convicted is set for October 26th.

MIAMI (SEPT. 17) UPI - General Development Corp. said Monday it is seeking bankruptcy court approval to offer homesite buyers discounts of up to 25 percent to encourage them to continue making payments on their contracts.

The company, which has been operating under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection since April, said it submitted its homesite purchaser assurance program Friday to the U.S. bankruptcy court in Miami.

Although the plan was announced previously, the filing included new details on the incentives the company hopes to offer, spokeswoman Nelly Medel said.

''The main thrust of the program is the assurance that all customers who have a contract to purchase a lot ... will receive title to an improved lot once they finish their payments,'' President Thomas Hutchison said in a statement.

General Development estimated the value of those outstanding contracts at $1 billion. About 86,200 people bought land from General Development but have yet to receive a deed to their property.

In July, only about 28 percent of the money owed under the contracts was paid, Medel said. At that collection rate, the company estimates only $280.3 million of the $1 billion owed will be paid.

Of that amount, General Development would get about $126.2 million, she said.

If discounts are offered, however, the company estimates payments would climb to $476.2 million, of which $279.8 million would go to General Development.

Medel said that amount would be enough to cover company costs for delivering developed lots and deeds to its customers.

General Development said it devised the plan after research showed that 40 percent of purchasers would be willing to continue payments if they were assured a deed. An additional 22 percent said they would be willing to continue payments if they were offered some discount.

Under the plan, people who purchased lots in one of the company's nine Florida communities would be offered discounts on the original price of between 5 percent and 25 percent, or up to 30 percent of the remaining principal, General Development said.

Buyers who hold contracts for lots in unimproved portions of the communities will be offered lots in improved areas, the company said. General Development said the swap could save it up to $211 million in development costs.

General Development filed for bankruptcy shortly after the company and its two chief executives were indicted on felony fraud charges in Miami.

Prosecutors contend General Development billed customers by inflating the value of the homes it sold in its communities.

The company agreed to plead guilty to a conspiracy charge in a plea bargain with prosecutors, but a federal judge later tossed out the agreement, saying it was too lenient. The case is scheduled for trial in January.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - U.S. crude oil zoomed to record price levels Monday amid reports the Soviet Union was cutting back deliveries to the West and on continued concern over the situation in the Middle East.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, West Texas Intermediate crude for October delivery ended the day up $1.87 over Friday to $33.63 a barrel, after having breached the Merc's record $32.35 trading price of Aug. 2, 1983. It had previously equaled the record this past Aug. 23.

WTI - which opened at $32.80 a barrel on the Merc and traded as high as $33.80 a barrel during the day - has now risen 56.1 percent from the $21.54-a-barrel level on Aug. 1, the day before Iraq invaded oil-rich Kuwait.

Radnor, Pa.-based Sun Co. also raised its posted price for crude at the wellhead to an eight-year high for WTI of $32.25 a barrel. The last time Sun paid this much for WTI was Dec. 8, 1982, a spokeswoman said. The Sun increase worked out to $1.75 a barrel for WTI and $1.50 for other crudes, she said.

Mary Haskins of PaineWebber Inc. in New York said she had been told the Soviets had denied reports of ordering a maintenance shutdown of the 1 million-barrel-a-day Urals pipeline, but one trading company had told her ''the terms of its contract'' with the Soviets had been cut.

PaineWebber's Michael McDermott said that he has been informed by reliable oil industry sources that some big oil companies were out buying North Sea Brent crude to make up for the loss of Soviet oil and that this drove up the price of Brent crude.

''It was the European strength, and that had a carryover effect into the United States,'' McDermott said.

There has been no Soviet confirmation of delivery problems to Western Europe.

''Why they have a problem I don't know for sure, but it appears they have a problem,'' the trader said.

He said the Soviet problem has placed added stress on a world oil market already strung tight by the Persian Gulf crisis triggered by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the Aug. 6 U.N. embargo of the two nations.

On the European spot market, where crude is bought and sold for cash, Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent shot up $2.90 to $36.30 a barrel. The United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light, the key Middle East crude shipped mainly to the Far East, was up $1.95 to $29.55 a barrel.

Kristofer Maro, the Stamford, Conn.-based U.S. representative of Norway's state-owned Statoil Group, a main producer of Brent, said he knew of no Soviet pipeline problems.

''We know, in general, the Russians are falling behind in their commitments.... There is an increasing market for North Sea crude going beyond my expectations right now,'' he noted.

Maro said Statoil had recently delivered cargoes to Poland, which has traditionally relied on the Soviets to meet its oil needs.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast spot market, WTI for prompt delivery rose $1.90 over Friday's close to $33.65 a barrel.

Unleaded gasoline for October delivery ended the day on the Merc up 1.31 cents at 91.67 cents a gallon, while home heating oil was up 2.52 cents to 85.31 cents a gallon.

The report that the Soviets' Urals pipeline would be down for up to two months for maintenance was circulating among a few traders late Friday.

But it apparently was not widely known enough to affect Friday's market, in which WTI rose 69 cents on the Merc.

On the Middle East situation, the 12-nation European Community said it will expel all Iraqi military attaches in EC capitals in retaliation for Baghdad's raids on embassies in occupied Kuwait, and the Pentagon fired the Air Force's top general for saying Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would be in U.S. bombsights if war erupts in the Persian Gulf.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - There has been NO confirmation from budget negotiators regarding a published report that Republicans and Democrats may be nearing an agreement on a deficit-reduction plan. Democrats had demanded the action in return for capital gains tax cuts.

WOODSTOCK, N.Y. (SEPT. 17) UPI - Funeral services were held Monday for an American businessman who died of a heart attack while being held hostage in Iraq.

James Worthington Jr., 53, was serving as a consultant to Alahi Bank of Kuwait when he was captured by Iraqis and transported to Basra, Iraq, where he died Aug. 27. Iraqi officials said the cause of death was a heart attack.

His body was returned to the United States on Thursday. The private funeral took place at St. Gregory's Episcopal Church in Woodstock.

Some 60 friends and family members attended the funeral services, which included a mixture of religious hymns and patriotic music.

Worthington's flag-draped coffin was buried at a local cemetery.

Rev. David Arnold, a rector at the church, called the funeral service ''a celebration of (Worthington's) life.''

''(The service) has done away with gloom and doom,'' said Arnold.

Worthington ''was recognized by his country in his death, not as a member of the armed forces, but as a servant of the government,'' Arnold said.

Arnold, a longtime resident of Woodstock, had worked for Citibank for 28 years when he left in 1988 to work for the Kuwaiti bank.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - The shuttle is grounded... a general gets fired... and another day of questions for David Souter. Those stories and more, next from U-P-I. .

The European Community today announced its response to Iraq's invasion last week of several foreign embassies in occupied Kuwait.

The 12-member E-C says it will expel all Iraqi military attaches in retaliation for the raids. E-C ministers meeting in Brussels, Belgium, agreed to the response which also calls for restricting the movement of other Iraqi diplomats in Europe.

The ministers delayed a decision on providing financial aid to Middle East countries hit hardest by U-N sanctions against Iraq.

Britain and Belgium adopted the measures today... following the weekend lead of France and Italy. The other E-C member nations were expected to quickly follow.

The flow of refugees into Saudi Arabia today through a recently opened border with occupied Kuwait was slowed as officials painstakingly screened the refugees to halt Iraqi infiltrators.

Oil industry officials in Cyprus say an Iraqi plan to secure food and medicine fell through today. Iraq had offered oil to Iran in exchange for the scarce goods.

Defense Secretary Cheney says today's firing of Air Force Chief of Staff Michael Dugin was difficult but necessary.

Dugin was released from the position he held since July because of comments he made during the weekend regarding potential military targets in the Persian Gulf.

In comments published Sunday, Dugin advocated a massive air strike against Iraq if hostilities erupt in the Middle East. In his words... ''This would NOT be a nibbling at the edges. If I want to hurt you, it would be at home.''

Cheney said he discussed the comments with President Bush and senior Pentagon officials before making his decision. Dugin was dismissed this morning after speaking with Cheney.

Cheney told a Pentagon news conference that the highly decorated Vietnam veteran Dugin had been relieved of his duties because he had shown ''poor judgment'' in making comments about a delicate U-S security policy.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney assured Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens Monday that the United States will ''maintain Israel's qualitative military edge'' despite new arms sales to Arab countries.

Arens met with Cheney for an hour at the Pentagon to discuss American arm sales to Arab nations and a possible increase in the annual $1.8 billion in U.S. military aid to Israel - the largest amount given any nation.

Cheney and Arens ''discussed in general terms Israel's special security needs '' the Pentagon said in a statement. ''The secretary reiterated the U.S. commitment to maintain Israel's qualitative military edge.''

It was not known if Cheney agreed to recommend an increase in military aid for Israel.

Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy and the director-general of the Israeli Defense Ministry, David Ivry, have sought an increase in U.S. military aid during recent meetings with officials in Washington.

Israeli officials are hoping the United States at least will allow them to stretch the $1.8 billion in annual aid by providing the money in one lump sum on the first day of the fiscal year, allowing them to bank the money and reap millions in interest.

At the same time, Israeli officials are concerned about major new U.S. arms sales to Arab countries in the wake of the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the deployment of more than 150,000 U.S. military personnel to Saudi Arabia and elsewhere around the Persian Gulf.

The Pentagon plans to recommend a $20 billion arms package for Saudi Arabia that would include F-15 fighters, about 385 M-1A2 Abrams battle tanks with advanced armor, 48 Apache anti-tank helicopters and 26 Patriot ground-to-air missiles.

A separate arms package including F-15 fighters and battle tanks estimated at $2.2 billion was offered to the Saudis last month.

In addition, Bush asked Congress to forgive Egypt's $7.1 billion U.S. military aid debt in response to Cairo's support for the American military buildup in Saudi Arabia and its willingness to send troops to fight alongside American soldiers.

Cheney noted that international unity, including Arab countries, was crucial to containing Iraq's aggression, the Pentagon said, and he ''expressed his appreciation (to Arens) for Israel's low-profile posture'' so as not to upset Arab nations supporting the United States in the crisis.

Arens was to meet Tuesday with Vice President Dan Quayle.

(SEPT. 17) UPI - There is NO word from NASA if it will try to launch the shuttle Columbia before Wednesday. The vessel had been slated to lift off early tomorrow, but the launch was scrubbed this evening when sensors in the shuttle's engine room detected higher-than-allowable concentrations of explosive hydrogen gas.

The news is yet another in a continuing series of setbacks for the shuttle program. Columbia has tried UNsuccessfully five times to launch since its original May 30th launch date. Leaks in the oft-delayed craft's fuel lines have been responsible for keeping ground-bound.

Engineers are trying to assess if the latest problem can be resolved in the near term. It has been reported that Columbia will be grounded until at least mid-October if it does NOT lift off by Wednesday. The delay would be caused by a scheduled launch of an Air Force Titan-4 rocket later this week and the slated lift off of the shuttle Discovery around October 8th.

Supreme Court nominee David Souter appears closer to winning approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee following a third day of questioning today... his birthday.

Today's session began with a birthday greeting for the 51-year-old New Hampshire jurist and then turned right back to the touchy subject of abortion.

Souter again refused to answer questions relating to his personal view on abortion... saying it would be inappropriate because he may have to rule on an abortion challenge if he's confirmed.

But he did speak on other issues... saying he doesN'T agree that the death penalty in all cases is ''cruel and unusual punishment.'' Souter also defended his views about court activism on social issues.

Iowa Republican Charles Grassley said Souter's views on the issue came- in his words- ''dangerously close to acting like a politician'' rather than a judge.

Souter retorted that there was a fine line between judicial restraint and activism, but the last he would want was to be taken for a politician.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 17) UPI - Israel predicted Monday that 1 million Soviet Jews would arrive by the end of 1992, and one immigration official said the wave would turn the nation into a spiritual, cultural and technological center that would beckon more newcomers from other countries.

''We are now at the beginning of the salvation ... at the beginning of the end of the diaspora,'' said Simcha Dinitz, chairman of the quasi- governmental Jewish Agency involved in promoting immigration to Israel.

Since the start of 1990, an estimated 100,000 Jews have moved to Israel, with more than 92,000 of those from the Soviet Union. In the past, Palestinians have attacked Soviet Jewish immigration to Israel, calling the wave a threat to Palestinian national existence.

But Faisal Husseini, a leading East Jerusalem Palestinian, said the problem was not so much the number of Soviet Jewish immigrants but whether they would displace Palestinians either within Israel's pre-1967 borders or in the Israeli-occupied territories.

''The problem is not how many immigrants will reach this land. The problem is under what condition and where,'' Husseini said, reacting to the prediction of 1 million Soviet Jews by the end of 1992.

''Until now there are more than 120 Palestinian villages which are not recognized by the Israelis. There are thousands of Palestinians who are waiting for a license to build their houses and they have no right to do so,'' Husseini said.

An estimated 700 to 1,000 Soviet Jews arrive in Israel on an average of three flights a day, Israel Radio reported. A total of 200,000 Soviet Jews are expected to arrive by the end of 1990, immigration officials said.

''We are getting great numbers of new immigrants, new citizens,'' Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir told reporters after greeting 190 Soviet Jews who arrived at Ben-Gurion Airport late Monday. ''This is the greatest force imaginable. It is even more important than weapons.''

The prediction of 1 million Soviet Jews by the end of 1992 comes from assessments on the number of Soviet Jews who have received official applications to join relatives, the number of exit permits granted and other material. In addition to the 200,000 predicted for 1990, Israeli immigration officials forecasts a total of 800,000 Soviet Jews will arrive in 1991 and 1992.

Earlier, immigration officials had predicted 1 million Jews in five years, instead of the three-year period now forecast.

''I believe that after the entire Jewry of the Soviet Union has emigrated, which will be in coming years, after that there will be a mass immigration from Latin America, afterwards from Europe and other countries, and towards the end of the century from the United States,'' Dinitz said.

''Because this aliyah (Hebrew for immigration) and other aliyahs will turn Israel into the spiritual, cultural, technological, scientific, educational center to such (an) extent that also the world Jewry living presently in the free world will see Israel as the magnet,'' Dinitz said.

Shamir told the new immigrants he met Monday that he knew they were worried about finding their way in their new country but ''the government of Israel and all its institutions care for you.''

Dinitz said a special committee had been established by the Jewish Agency and Jewish communities worldwide to secure money and other assistance to help Israel cope with new immigrants. Israel's Cabinet also recently agreed on an economic program it hopes will spur growth and help absorb the hundreds of thousands of new immigrants.

JERUSALEM (SEPT. 17) UPI - President Chaim Herzog Monday praised U.S.

President Bush for his leadership in handling the Persian Gulf crisis and said the new cooperation between the superpowers gives Israel hope for a solution.

''We all hail the inspired leadership of President Bush and the United States of America in this crisis,'' Herzog told diplomats during an annual gathering before the upcoming Jewish New Year, which begins Wednesday night.

''All of us, I am certain, find a measure of consolation and optimism in the understanding reached by the superpowers and in the involvement under the United Nations of so many nations,'' Herzog said.

Israel has maintained a low profile during the Gulf crisis while supporting U.N. decisions condemning the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and sanctioning an economic boycott against the country led by Saddam Hussein.

''Above all, together with much of the world, and with special sensitivity, we face the terrifying developments in and around the Gulf and the implications for world order, implications of violence and immorality,'' Herzog said.

In wishing the diplomats a good year, Herzog said he hoped a solution would be found to the crisis and there would be a ''return to peaceful development.'' Egyptian Ambassador to Israel Mohammed Bassiouny said he also hoped that after resolving the Gulf crisis, ''we can start to quickly achieve the comprehensive peace in (the) area so that we may live together in peace and friendship.''

Egypt is the only Arab nation to have signed a peace treaty with Israel.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia (SEPT. 17) UPI - A discarded orange tarpaulin was mistaken for a life raft by a search team scouring the northern Atlantic ocean for a Boeing 727 with 16 aboard that ditched last week, an army official said Monday.

Capt. Robert Curran, of the Rescue Coordination Centre, said officials were heartened Sunday night when a rescue team spotted what they believed was an orange life raft from the plane.

However, a closer inspection Monday by a helicopter team showed it was merely more of the debris tossed overboard by ships plying Atlantic waters.

Curran said nine aircraft and five vessels continued the search Monday and there are no plans to downgrade the effort.

A downgrade could mean the active search would be discontinued aircraft and ships in the area would still be alerted to be on the lookout.

The search zone, about 210 miles southeast of Newfoundland, is about 10,000 square miles. Initially, it was 300,000 square miles.

The search zone was narrowed on the weekend when a Russian trawler crew spotted what it thought was the front half of the plane's fuselage Friday morning. Search teams have not managed to locate the debris.

The search effort has been hampered by high winds and waves, and poor visibility, although the weather was improving.

The missing Peruvian plane issued a mayday call Tuesday about 180 miles southeast of Cape Race, Newfoundland.

Officials had earlier said a decision to scale down the search would depend on weather conditions, the surface area already covered by ships and planes and the survivability of those on board.

The plane, owned by Faucett Airlines of Lima, Peru, a company established in 1928, was equipped with life boats, life vests and emergency locator transmitters.

The plane was on loan to Air Malta for the summer and had been painted white and red, the colors of the European airline, making it difficult to spot from the air.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 17) UPI - Tire manufacturer Continental AG, in a statement released in New York, announced Monday that it had been offered the purchase of the tire manufacturing business of Italian company Pirelli SpA.

''The proposal is aimed at unifying into Continental the world tire activities of both companies,'' the Continental statement said. The Hanover, Germany, based company said Pirelli extended the acquisition offer Sept. 15. No price was mentioned.

The announcement suggested Pirelli, having failed in its 1988 hostile bid to take over U.S. tire maker Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., would like to exit the increasingly competitive international tire business.

Firestone eventually was taken over by Tokyo-based Bridgestone Corp., at the time the world's third-largest tire maker, for $2.65 billion.

''Continental and its advisors are reviewing the proposal to determine if (the acquisition of Pirelli) is in the interest of the corporation,'' said Continental, the world's fourth-largest tire company.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 18) UPI - Standard & Poor's Corp., responding to Philadelphia's failure to find a market for $375 million in notes, Monday drastically downgraded an array of city bonds - knocking some to junk-bond grade.

S&P lowered the city's $1.3 billion worth of general obligation bonds to CCC, a rating that falls below investment grade.

The city's bonds were previously rated BBB- , the lowest investment grade for bonds.

Also lowered to junk-bond status were ratings on bonds issued by the city's redevelopment, parking and industrial development authorities, as were ratingson Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority bonds.

The city's water, sewer and airport revenue bonds also were downgraded along with two gas works issues.

The downgrades came in the wake of Philadelphia's failure last week to make a market for $375 million in short-term loan notes. The city also lost the support of Swiss Bank Corp., which had backed $50 million worth of the notes.

Facing chronic budget problems, Philadephia needs to raise the $375 million or face insolvency in a matter of weeks, city officials have said.

S&P said that ''it is now evident that without access to the market, the city will not only be short of cash to meet routine day-to-day operations'' and thatPhiladelphia will be hard-pressed to meet its current debt service obligations as well.

Two other rating agencies, Moody's and Fitch's, downgraded the city's bonds last week for similar reasons.

Betsy Reveal, Philadelphia's finance director, said the S&P downgrades had been expected, but she called it ''unfortunate'' that the bonds were downgraded so far.

''I do not believe it accurately reflects what the city is prepared to do in terms of repaying bondholders,'' she said. ''We have never defaulted on a debt. ... We never will as long as I have anything to do with it.''

Reveal called on Pennsylvania to fund the city's social-service programs and transit system, and she said the state legislature should clear the way to allow Philadelphia to collect a city sales tax.

''State action has not been forthcoming,'' she said.

Philadelphia has been operating at a deficit since 1988.

There was no word from city officials on whether the bond sale, placed on hold last week after the Swiss bank backed out of the deal, will go off this week.

MONTREAL (SEPT. 18) UPI - The majority of unionized paperworkers on strike at mills in eastern Canada remained off the job Monday after rejecting offers from Abibiti-Price Inc. and Canadian Pacific Forest Products Ltd.

Voting results from about 4,500 workers in 19 locals at nine Abibiti- Price mills in Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland were tabulated during the weekend.

''The company's offer was overwhelmingly rejected by the majority of local unions,'' said John McInnes, the Canadian Paperworkers Union's chief negotiator.

Seven of the nine mills which were closed last Monday after pickets were set up voted against the offer. Workers at two mills in Quebec who never went out on strike voted to accept the offer.

McInnes said in a brief statement that the workers have sent ''a clear message'' to Abibiti-Price. ''Its employees are not prepared to sacrifice any of the benefits or working conditions they now enjoy,'' he added.

McInnes said the stumbling blocks in the negotiations continue to be company demands for the right to operate its mills on Labor Day and New Year's Day and the right to assign various tasks to its tradesmen.

''The general wage increase has been resolved and is not an issue,'' McInnes said.

Meanwhile, workers at Canadian Pacific Forest Products Ltd. also split on whether or not to accept the company's offer. About 1,800 union members in Quebec and New Brunswick, who went on strike last Wednesday, voted to reject the company's offer.

But workers at two other CP Forest Products mills voted to accept the company's offer. Those locals never set up pickets.

Talks between the paperworkers union and the companies broke down last week and set the stage for voting on both companies latest offers.

The union's executive board will meet Tuesday to decide what course of action to take, union spokesman Serge Lord said.

Lord downplayed the split among the union locals, saying paperworkers union president Don Holder told the locals in mid-July that the statutory holiday and trade flexibility issues were ''local issues.''

A settlement reached in early July between Stone-Consolidated Inc. and its 2,350 employees who belong to the paperworkers union was supposed to be the basis for agreements with other companies in eastern Canada.

Under that deal, workers' wages will increase 5.5 percent each year over three years. As a result, base salaries will increase from $13.06 an hour to $15.34 an hour over the course of the contract.

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (SEPT. 17) UPI - Computer software maker Oracle Corp., responding to its first-ever quarterly loss, laid off 400 people - about 10 percent of its domestic workforce - in a major reorganization Monday.

The company, which sells relational database software, said the cuts were madeto bring costs in line with lower growth expectations. Oracle also announced the resignation of its chief financial officer.

Oracle, once a darling of Wall Street, has been hurt, in part, by overly optimistic revenue projections and an industry-wide slowdown in software sales for minicomputers.

Since March 19, the company's stock has plunged from $28.125 a share to close Monday at $6.875 a share, off 62.5 cents. Oracle announced its layoffs and reorganization three hours after the close of the day's stock market trading.

Last week, Oracle said it would report a loss of about 20 cents a share for the first quarter ended Aug. 31. The company also reduced its revenue growth estimate for the current fiscal year to 25 percent, compared with 66 percent last year.

As part of its reorganization, Oracle said Chief Financial Officer Atam Lalchandani had been replaced by Jeffrey Walker, who was promoted to executive vice president and CFO.

Domestic field operations were consolidated under the leadership of Michael Fields, president of Oracle USA, and the number of sales managers were reduced Oracle said.

Until this year, Oracle charted a blazing path to the top ranks of the computer software industry. In the year ended May 31, the company reported revenue of $971 million, up from $584 million in the prior year.

Net income for the year rose 41 percent to $117.4 million, or 86 cents a share from $81.8 million, or 61 cents a share, in the prior year.

ASUNCION, Paraguay (SEPT. 17) UPI - A single engine Cessna 290 loaded with 700 pounds of cocaine was found abondoned at a closed airstrip in northern Paraguay near the Bolivian border, a narcotics chief said Monday.

The cargo, likely processed and packaged by the Colombian Medellin cocaine cartel, was the largest ever seized in Paraguay, with an estimated market value in Asuncion of $2.2 billion, said the chief of the National Narcotics Direction, Sergio Julio Aldana.

''For the form of packaging, the color of the paper and the exactness of the weight, on first analysis (the shipment) probable came from the Medellin Cartel,'' Aldana told United Press International Monday.

Aldana said the Bolivian-registered plane landed Thursday, apparently because of technical problems, at a closed air strip that once belonged to the United Fruit Company, located 18 miles from the Bolivian border.

The plane was abandoned with the key in the ignition, Aldana said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 17) UPI - With approval from the Senate Judiciary Committee appearing likely, Supreme Court nominee David Souter spent his 51st birthday side-stepping more abortion questions Monday and defending his views about court activism on social issues.

The federal appeals court judge from New Hampshire, engaging in his third day of questioning, finished his testimony before the panel with a grueling 9 1/2 hour session.

Souter, nominated by President Bush to replace retiring liberal Justice William Brennan, again refused to answer questions relating to his personal views on abortion, having said such an answer would be inappropriate because of the likelihood he would have to rule on an abortion challenge if he is confirmed.

Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., asked Souter what would be the practical effect if the Supreme Court overturned the landmark 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision guaranteeing legal abortions.

''The issue would become a legislative judgment in every state,'' Souter said. ''I think that it's safe to say that those legislative judgments would not be uniform. There would be, I'd dare say, a considerable variety in scope of protection afforded or not afforded (for abortion).''

Souter also said a successful challenge to Roe vs. Wade would call into question several earlier Supreme Court rulings, such as a marital privacy case involving the right to use contraception that served as the underpinning of the abortion decision.

''Whatever the court does,'' Souter said later, ''someone's life, indeed thousands of lives, will be affected and that fact must be appreciated.''

The committee chairman, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., opened Monday's session on a light note, telling Souter: ''We are convened today to celebrate Judge Souter's birthday. Happy birthday, judge.'' Biden added that Souter told him ''whether or not he had a happy birthday was up to me. And I told him, ''No, that occurs in about two or three weeks (with ''or three weeks (with

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., who was considered a potential swing vote entering the hearings, told Souter, ''I believe you will be confirmed.'' Several Republican committee members have expressed confidence the nominee will be endorsed by the committee, although Biden cautioned, ''Some of us still haven't made up our minds'' and said he had ''gone from leaning against voting for to to leaning for voting for you to leaning against voting for you.''

Souter, the quiet jurist who remained unflappable through his three days before the committee, wrapped up his appearance by thanking Biden for his ''consummate fairness.'' Smiling broadly, after concluding his testimony, he shook hands with Biden and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who had posed the toughest questions to the nominee.

Earlier, several senators questioned Souter on statements he made Friday that a decision-making ''vacuum'' by the legislative and executive branches of government by necessity put divisive issues such as abortion on the agenda of the Supreme Court.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., told Souter that view represents ''a very expansive interpretation'' of judicial authority that contributes toward making the Supreme Court a ''super legislature'' that steps beyond judicial bounds. The high court has been criticized by some for activism in recent decades.

Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said Souter's view is ''dangerously close to acting like a politician'' rather than a judge, with Souter retorting, ''The last thing in the world I would want to be taken for is a politician.''

Souter said it is ''a darn tough line to draw'' between judicial restraint and activism. ''I wish I had a neat formula for it.''

Under questioning by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, Souter said he made a mistake in 1977 when serving as New Hampshire attorney general in not vigorously opposing a $70,000 contribution by operators of the Seabrook power plant to help defray law enforcement costs incurred during a large demonstration at the site. Souter said the contribution gave the appearance of impropriety.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (SEPT. 18) UPI - Financial Corp. of Santa Barbara, the former parent of failed Santa Barbara Savings & Loan Association, said Monday that it has filed for voluntary Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

Federal regulators seized the thrift last April, just weeks after the parent completed a $60 million recapitalization that had left it solvent, but far short of the required levels of capital. The parent company has filed a suit against the government to regain control of the thrift.

The company said that it had made the filing in order to ''ensure an orderly disposition'' of its assets and that it had not been made in order to affect the lawsuit.

It also said that the most significant group of creditors are bondholders seeking payment on $8.4 million principal amount of debentures. The company defaulted on the bonds soon after the thrift, which had assets of more than $4 billion, was seized.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 18) UPI - Geffen Records said Monday that it has cancelled its manufacturing and distribution deal with shock-comedian Andrew Dice Clay's label, Def American Recordings.

Geffen, which announced last March that it had agreed to be acquired by entertainment giant MCA Inc. for more than $500 million, said, ''We find ourselves increasingly at odds with Def American's creative philosophy.''

The label, founded by producer Rick Rubin in 1988, has released two gold albums by Clay, who has become the focus of protests because of his abusive remarks toward minorities, gays and women in his act.

''This was a very profitable deal for us,'' said Geffen spokeswoman Bryn Bridenthal.

Geffen previously decided not to affix its logo to albums by Clay and the heavy-metal groups Slayer and Danzig. The label subsequently refused to distribute an album by the rap group Geto Boys.

''Because we believe both in artistic freedom and the freedom to choose the direction of our company, we felt it would be most constructive to encourage Rick Rubin to find a manufacturer-distributor with a greater affinity for the direction of his label,'' Geffen said. ''We wish Rubin continued success.''

Acts on the Geffen label include Aerosmith, Don Henley, Cher and Nelson.

Rubin said in a statement that his roster contains artists of a ''controversial'' nature, but he did not blame Geffen chief David Geffen for the deal's cancellation.

''David Geffen is a good friend of mine,'' Rubin said. ''I believe strongly in my artists, and am willing to personally defend them; I am upset that David was put in a position where he was forced to defend them, especially from fringe organizations.''

NEW YORK (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Mass Optical Storage Technologies (MOST Inc.) of Cypress, Calif., introduced in New York Tuesday the next generation in data storage technology, the world's first rewritable optical disk drive using removable 3.5-inch media.

The MOST RMD Series of optical drives incorporates one of the industry's fastest rewritable optical disk mechanisms with the handling and storage advantages of 3.5-inch media format to create the first rewritable optical drive capable of meeting the full range of data storage applications.

MOST's RMD-5100-S is the first product in the series, with entry-level formatted capacities of up to 128 megabytes on ANSI-standard 3.5-inch rewritable optical disk cartridges, which provide an anticipated shelf life greater than 10 years with no data loss.

The RMD-5100-S delivers access times significantly faster than other magneto-optic drives and faster than many fixed magnetic disks, making the drive more than adequate as a primary storage device. Average seek times are rated at 35 milliseconds and a unique short scan/seek function makes data within a 128-track band accessible within 9 milliseconds.

MOST provides OEMs with an easy design-in solution. The RMD-5100-S is packaged in the industry standard half-height 5.25-inch form factor, while retaining the media handling, storage advantages and higher performance inherent in the 3.5-inch media format.

Designed with the inexperienced user in mind, the RMD Series presents an unmatched combination of convenience, security and simplicity. The RMD-5100-S features all the benefits of removable storage -- including the unlimited capacity potential and improved data security compared to fixed-disk designs.

Incorporating the MOST magneto-optic disk drive will also allow users to operate with a single, multifunction storage device, eliminating the need for a redundant fixed disk or tape backup system.

The RMD drive features design and performance-enhancing innovations such as a unique split optics positioner and a short scan/seek function, both of which result in much faster data access. Data security is enhanced by a software controlled media interlock command that prevents premature media removal.

In internal customer-configurable EEPROM is available in every drive so the OEM, VAR or system integrator can customize specific functions of the drive to fit individual systems requirements.

Supporting the SCSI disk drive Common Command Set, MOST's optical drive produces a sustained data transfer rate of 512 Kbytes per second, with SCSI burst transfer rates of 1.5 Mbytes per second in asynchronous mode and 3.0 Mbytes per second in synchronous mode.

Included in the electronics is an embedded SCSI controller that has become the standard for high-capacity, high-performance disk drives.

Along with superior performance, the MOST RMD-5100-S incorporates a highly reliable mechanism with an MTBF rating in excess of 30,000 power-on hours, supporting an expected design life of at least five years. Data integrity is assured through an advanced Long Distance Code error correction scheme and a Cyclic Redundancy Check, sustaining data reliability of less than one hard read error in 10 to the 12th power bits read.

The price of the RMD-5100-S drive, which will be available in November, is based on OEM requirements and quantities. The 3.5-inch optical disk cartridges are expected to retail for around $120, about half the price of current 5.25-inch MO media. Every MOST optical disk drive is backed by a one-year warranty.

Mass Optical Storage Technologies, with headquarters in Cypress, is a wholly owned subsidiary of Nakamichi Peripherals Corp.

MONTREAL (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Gandalf Data Ltd. Tuesday introduced an Integrated Services Digital Network (ISDN) primary rate interface.

The interface is integral with Gandalf's Starmaster network processor. It has successfully completed Northern Telecom compliance tests, and Northern Telecom has approved the interface for use with its ISDN central office switches.

Gandalf's announcement came during the annual meeting of the Canadian Business Telecommunications Alliance (CBTA), scheduled to run through Sept. 20 at the Palais de Congres here.

Equipped with the ISDN primary rate interface, Gandalf's Starmaster network processor serves as an intelligent ISDN gateway, allowing users of a wide variety of existing, non-ISDN on-premises equipment to take advantage of the bandwidth-on-demand service provided by both public and private ISDN network.

In addition integration of an ISDN primary rate interface with the Starmaster network processor provides users with far more than simple ISDN connectivity. The Starmaster network processor can locally switch connected subscribers and provides protocol conversion so users may access remote and local application servers in their native mode (for example, TCP/IP, DEC LAT protocol or IBM SNA). It also allows users to employ techniques such as statistical multiplexing to make more efficient use of network connections.

''The Starmaster network processor has an excellent track record for reliability and performance, and is well-known for its support of a wide variety of protocols, which now include ISDN,'' said Paul Hession, Gandalf's vice president of sales and service.

Hession indicated that Gandalf's strict adherence to both formal international standards and selected de facto standards assure that Gandalf's ISDN products can be used in a variety of multivendor network topologies, and with a broad range of central office switches and certain non-intelligent carrier facilities worldwide, such as T1, FT1 and E1, a European standard.

Gandalf will begin installations of its ISDN primary rate interface at selected customer sites in October Prices begin at $8,000.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Bank of America announced Tuesday that Robert M. Kagan, 47, has joined the Bank's Investment Real Estate (IRE) Group as a vice president and acquisitions officer.

Kagan will report to Richard T. Crane, vice president and director of acquisitions, and Jack S. Cooper, managing director of IRE.

In this position, Kagan has primary responsibility for the formation of joint venture partnerships between U.S. developers and equity investors. Cooper noted that Kagan will search for opportunities to ''create a good marriage between investors and developers with proven track records, and projects -- housing, shopping centers, or other facilities -- for which there is strong demand by the market''.

Although IRE concentrated on acquiring existing properties for its clients in the past, it is now becoming increasingly active in the development arena. As traditional equity sources for development (such as saving and loan institutions) have diminished, the demand for institutional joint venture investment has increased.

Since the acquisition of existing properties will continue to be a major segment of IRE's business, however, Kagan will also assist Crane in sourcing and acquiring U.S. real estate for Bank of America's Investment Real Estate clients worldwide.

Prior to joining Bank of America, Kagan was vice president and manager of the San Francisco office of Cal Fed Enterprises, the real estate equity joint venture subsidiary of California Federal Bank. During his eight years there, Kagan negotiated over twenty joint venture agreements and, under his direction concluded over $200 million in joint ventures, primarily in Northern California and the Pacific Northwest.

In 1971, Kagan formed Kagan-Bennet, Inc. in Oakland, Calif., a mid-sized development and property management company. The company developed and built numerous single-family home subdivisions in Northern California, as well as building, developing, and managing residential and commercial projects throughout the U.S. Earlier in his career, Kagan worked for Kaiser-Aetna in Oakland and Larry Smith & Company in Los Angeles.

Kagan resides in Mill Valley with his wife. He received both his B.A. (1965) and M.B.A. (1969) degrees from the University of California at Berkeley. Kagan also teaches real estate at the Graduate School of Administration at Golden Gate University in San Francisco.

Established in the early 1970s, Bank of America's Investment Real Estate Group is an equity real estate investment advisory group that advises in the acquisition, asset management, and disposition of institutional-grade properties throughout the United States for a variety of clients, including offshore investment institutions and high-net worth individuals.

In the past two years, IRE has acquired more than $300 million in properties in the U.S. for institutional clients around the world.

Currently, in its fiduciary capacity, IRE manages a portfolio valued at more than $650 million for its clients. The portfolio consists of approximately 50 properties across the U.S., including office buildings, shopping centers, apartment complexes, warehouses, and research and development facilities.

Photo CD will be offered to customers as an option by retail photofinishers worldwide, to store digitized photographs on compact disks. This will give customers the quality and convenience of computer storage, display and manipulation.

In the future, photofinishers will use a scanner developed by Kodak to ''read'' processed 35 mm negatives or slides into a Sun SPARCstation, where images can be edited or manipulated on screen. A Photo CD discwriter made by Philips is then used to ''write'' these pictures onto compact disks.

According to Kodak, customers get photographs that are far superior to that of current electronic still photography systems, since images are scanned directly from film and digitized.

Photo CD is an example of a multimedia application, one of the most promising technology areas for workstations. Kodak began product development of Photo CD on a personal computer, then turned to a Sun SPARCstation because of its superior speed, virtually unlimited memory and high-resolution displays.

Kodak also chose the SPARCstation as the system used by photofinishers because of its industry-leading price/performance.

Today's emerging multimedia applications need workstation power and the graphics capabilities offered by Sun.

DENVER (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - High school students today are planning carefully for their future, including college and career plans, according to a study recently conducted by the Denver-based College for Financial Planning.

The first annual ''High School Financial Awareness Survey'' includes responses from 1,858 students nationwide who recently completed the College's High School Financial Planning Program, which is provided as a public service by the College for Financial Planning. The survey was conducted to assess the students' knowledge and attitudes about financial planning and the impact the program has had on their overall money management skills.

Sixty-three percent of the high school students surveyed already have selected a career. The five most popular choices are business, medicine, law, education and engineering.

More than 70 percent of those surveyed intend to go to college. Of those who plan to pursue a higher education, 61 percent indicated they would work part time or full time, in addition to attending classes.

The majority of students surveyed said financing a college education is the greatest financial planning problem facing them today. So, many of the students have developed several different strategies on how they plan to finance their education.

Forty-three percent of the students responded that their parents will pay for their college, 41 percent said their college tuition primarily will be funded from their work income, 35 percent will rely on tuition assistance from student loans, 31 percent will tap into their savings account to help pay for college, and 11 percent plan to use monetary gifts received from relatives.

The most popular alternative for students not planning to attend college is to join the military or enroll in a technical or vocational school.

Seventy-two percent of the survey respondents are juniors and seniors. Fifty-six percent of the students are female, and the majority of the students (84 percent) are age 16 to 18.

Since its inception in 1984, the College's High School Financial Planning Program has been taught to over 85,000 students in more than 1,200 schools in all 50 states. Another 200 schools will be offering the program to more than 12,000 students this year. The program, which teaches money management skills to teenagers, is available free of charge to public and private schools throughout the United States.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - The Walt Disney Co., continuing its efforts to combat the unauthorized use of Disney characters on apparel and other merchandise, Tuesday filed a lawsuit charging 130 distributors and retailers with creating and selling infringing goods in the New York City area.

The action is Disney's first in New York involving characters from the film ''Dick Tracy.'' Other infringements include unauthorized uses of Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Donald Duck, Huey, Dewey and Louie, Goofy, Roger Rabbit and ''The Little Mermaid'' on T-shirts, sweatshirts and watches.

The suit, filed in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, charges copyright infringement, false designation of origin, unlawful dilution and unfair competition.

The suit seeks an injunction to prevent further distribution or sale of the pirated merchandise, plus maximum statutory damages based on willful infringement. The suit claims aggregate damages of more than $1 million.

''The number of defendants in this case demonstrates the scope of the piracy problem that we and other companies continue to face,'' said Robert S. Ogden Jr., vice president and counsel for Disney Consumer Products. ''We regret that we must use such suits to halt this activity.''

Seperately, in a suit filed Aug. 29 in the U.S. District Court of the District of New Jersey, Disney charged three defendants with manufacturing, importing, distributing and selling unauthorized soft ''gummy'' candy formed in the shape of Disney characters.

This second action was the result of a letter written by a concerned Disney fan from Staten Island who noticed the absence of a copyright notice on the candy package.

The New Jersey lawsuit seeks injunctive relief and damages of $50,000 for copyright infringement, false designation of origin and unfair competition.

Disney is represented in the New York suit by the law offices of Pryor, Cashman, Sherman & Flynn, and in the New Jersey suit by Zachary Wobensmith and Dean Ibrahim as local counsel.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Sequent Computer Systems Inc. Tuesday announced it will be AT&T's UNIX System Laboratories (USL) Inc's. primary partner in developing an enhanced version of UNIX System V that incorporates secure, full symmetrical multiprocessing support.

Core development work for the project, UNIX System V Release 4 ES/MP, which is currently underway, is being done on Sequent's Symmetry platform and is slated for release in 1992. The Symmetry system was also selected by USL to be its reference platform for the SVR4 ES/MP release based on Intel's 386/i486 microprocessors.

Sequent's contribution to the SVR4 ES/MP project is based on the licensing, to USL, of its base operating system technology. As a result, USL will have access to key elements of Sequent's DYNIX/ptx operating system including its file system management, I/O subsystem, process and memory management, and Parallel STREAMS capabilities.

The ES/MP development work is to be broad-based. The joint engineering team -- which will include senior-most development specialists from each organization -- will focus on enhancements to the UNIX System in such areas as kernel process management and processor scheduling.

A key technological enhancement will be the application of parallel processing to the UNIX STREAMS communications environment. This enhancement will take advantage of the parallel STREAMS implementation which Sequent recently introduced in its DYNIX/ptx operating system. It will make possible the support of a full suite of communications protocols including TCP/IP, X.25 and SNA, all of which are currently available on DYNIX/ptx.

Sequent Computer Systems Inc. (NASDAQ: SQNT) is a leading provider of open-systems computing solutions for the commercial OLTP market. MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (SEPT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Adobe Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:ADBE) announced the NeXTdimension and NeXTstation Color, introduced by NeXT Inc. Tuesday, are the first 32-bit and 16-bit color products to be driven by Adobe's Display PostScript system.

The Display PostScript system contains a device-independent imaging model that makes on-screen images appear just as they will when printed.

The Display PostScript system, in conjunction with the NeXTdimension system, supports 32-bit color windows. A graphics co-processor in the NeXTdimension system accelerates window system and graphics operations, which are driven by Display PostScript software.

Together with NeXT's Color Megapixel display, NeXTdimension produces more than 16 million colors, enabling users to see the true color they specify in their PostScript software applications and to use color more precisely and productively than ever before possible.

The 32-bit NeXTdimension product is the higher-end of the two color products NeXT announced. The other product, NeXTstation Color, is a compact, 16-bit-per-pixel computer capable of displaying 4,096 colors. NeXTstation Color also offers users extremely high-quality color representation.

''Today's announcement means NeXT computer users will now have access to the full power of the Display PostScript software program to display color images from applications such as Adobe Illustrator with the greatest possible degree of accuracy,'' said Dr. Charles Geschke, president and chief operating officer Adobe Systems.

Because the PostScript language is device independent, all Display PostScript applications written for the NeXT computer will run without modification on the new 32-bit and 16-bit products, as well as on NeXT computers with two-bit Megapixel black-and-white displays.

Adobe Systems Inc., founded in 1982 by Dr. John Warnock and Geschke, has headquarters in Mountain View. Adobe is the developer of PostScript, the industry-standard page description language for electronic printing and publishing, and Display PostScript, a device-independent graphics software component for computer displays.

In addition, the company develops and markets a line of application software products. Revenues for 1989 were $121 million.

''The NeXT family of computers, with their Display PostScript imaging model, are outstanding platforms for publishing, graphics and design, and we believe that Adobe Illustrator will allow users to take full advantage of the power of Display PostScript.''

DALLAS (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - UtiliCorp United (NYSE:UCU) Tuesday announced that it expects declines in third quarter net income and primary earnings per common share compared with the 1989 period.

The company noted that it is on target to achieve record results for 1990 provided that it receives adequate electric rate relief in a pending request at its Missouri Public Service division. A decision is expected in early October.

UtiliCorp also announced that it filed applications with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and various state regulatory agencies to obtain approval to issue up to 4,000,000 shares of common stock through a public offering and to implement a $250 million medium-term note program. UtiliCorp common stock closed on Sept. 14, 1990 at $18 per share.

Net proceeds of the financings will be used to reduce short-term debvt incurred as a result of capital expenditures at Missouri Public Service and for other capital and acquisition-related expenditures.

For the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, UtiliCorp expects net income of $10.2 million, compared to $11.3 million in the 1989 period, and primary earnings per share are estimated to be 35 cents, compared with 45 cents in last year's quarter. Operating revenues are estimated at $154 million, vs. $140 million in the prior third period.

Average common shares outstanding increased from 20.8 million in last year's third quarter to 23.5 million in this year's period. The increase is primarily due to a public offering of two million new shares in December 1989.

For the nine-month period this year, net income is expected to be $37.9 million and earnings per share are projected at $1.38, compared to net income of $34.4 million and earnings per share of $1.48 in the same period last year. Operating revenues for the first nine months of this year are expected to be $582 million, vs. $495 million in last year's nine-month period.

UtiliCorp Chairman and President Richard C. Green Jr. attributed the decline in third quarter results to the need for electric rate relief at Missouri Public Service. UtiliCorp is seeking a rate increase of $25.5 million annually, primarily to pay for the costs of an extensive rebuild at the company's Sibley Generating Station. The company also is seeking a gas rate increase of $4.7 million annually with a decision expected in January 1991.

Green noted that a combination of adequate rate relief and implementation of cost cutting and other efficiencies at UtiliCorp's regulated utility operations should help the company achieve a record year.

UtiliCorp's PSI subsidiary is expected to contribute approximately 23 percent of UtiliCorp's total net income this year. PSI contributed $5.3 million or 11 percent of total UtiliCorp net income in 1989.

''PSI has become a substantial contributor to UtiliCorp's bottom line,'' Green said. ''It's a success because five years ago PSI's management recognized the opportunities that were about to be created by deregulation of the natural gas industry.''

PSI recently took an additional step to enhance its gas supply base. It has signed a letter of intent to acquire the Elk City Natural Gas Gathering and Processing facilities located in western Oklahoma for approximately $30 million. The system would be purchased from Valero Hydrocarbons L.P., a Subsidiary Operating Partnership of Valero Natural Gas Partners L.P. (NYSE: VLP). It is anticipated that the transaction will be completed in October 1990.

The 85-mile Elk City system is located in three counties within the Anadarko Basin. The system gathers approximately 75 million cubic feet (MMCF) of gas per day from the majority of the major producers in the area.

The processing facilities presently extract approximately 150,000 gallons per day of liquid hydrocarbons and provide 65 MMCF of gas per day for delivery on various interstate pipelines.

In July, PSI and an investment partner acquired a Texas-based gas transmission and gathering network and gas processing facilities for approximately $100 million. PSI paid $50 million in the transaction and presently owns a 49 percent interest in Clajon Holdings L.P.

Green noted that PSI's success can be attributed to an aggressive marketing and sales operation backed by a gas supply base comprised of oil and gas reserves, pipelines, gas gathering systems and gas processing facilities.

PSI expects to sell more than 325 BCF of gas in 1990, compared to 214 BCF in 1989. In addition, the subsidiary's 1990 contribution will include an approximately $6.6 million gain from the first quarter sale of various oil and gas reserves and related assets. Proceeds from that transaction were reinvested in other gas reserves, which also are expected to initially contribute to fourth quarter financial results.

Green noted that PSI illustrates one objective in UtiliCorp's policy of diversifying sources of earnings through the development of non-regulated businesses. UtiliCorp also encourages each of its regulated utilities to start up and develop non-regulated businesses that complement the core electric and gas service. Non-regulated businesses at the company's Peoples Natural Gas division, for example, are expected to contribute about 26 percent of that utility's pre-tax income this year.

Green also noted that the company's diversification policy is not diminishing its capital spending program. Capital spending in 1989 was $98.3 million. In 1990, it is expected to be $111 million and in 1991, $126 million.

Based in Kansas City, UtiliCorp provides electric and gas service to 820,000 customers located in eight states and in British Columbia. Its divisions are Missouri Public Service, Peoples Natural Gas, Michigan Gas Utilities, West Virginia Power, Northern Minnesota Utilities and Kansas Public Service. West Kootenay Power is a Canadian subsidiary.

PSI and UtilCo Group are non-regulated subsidiaries specializing in utility and energy related enterprises.

The companies have agreed in principle that:

HP places Oracle products among the top of its Preferred Solution Provider program.

Oracle recognizes HP as a leading supplier of open systems and client/server platforms and will use HP 9000 systems as a reference development platform. HP will consider an option to take customer orders for Oracle software.

Oracle has selected HP workstations as the development platform for Motif-based tools.

Oracle and HP will train their respective sales forces to jointly sell Oracle products on the HP 3000 and HP 9000 product families.

''Open systems are increasingly important to our customers,'' said Jeff L. Walker, Oracle's chief financial officer and executive vice president. ''HP's 'Best-in-Class Program' designation of our products and the support of their distribution program should speed the industry shift toward open systems. HP and Oracle have combined efforts to bring quality solutions to our customers and give them the flexibility they need to be successful -- today and into the next decade.''

Scope of the Relationship

HP has approved Oracle's RDBMS, application development and CASE tools, and Oracle's accounting systems products among the top of its Preferred Solution Provider program, which reflects a strong preference among HP customers for software running on HP platforms.

Evidence of Oracle's commitment to the relationship is its establishment of a new strategic business unit to ensure tighter integration of Oracle products for HP 3000 systems. Oracle's HP Products Division will improve the timeliness and support of Oracle products for HP 3000 systems.

Oracle and HP are working together to conclude details of the new strategic relationship worldwide. Projects are underway in Europe, Japan and Australia.

HOUSTON (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Continental Airlines Holdings (ASE:CTA) Tuesday announced that it has reached agreement with the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. (PBGC), Eastern Airlines Inc. and Eastern's Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, under which all of the pension benefits earned by Eastern's current and former employees will be provided for and paid in the future.

The Internal Revenue Service granted a one-day waiver with respect to the amounts which were due to the pension plans Monday. The waiver assured that no fines, penalties or other adverse consequences would occur as a result of the missed payment.

The agreement provides that any benefit accruals not already frozen will stop on or before Oct. 15, 1990, and that all of the pension plans will be terminated according to an agreed-upon schedule.

Assets of the terminated plans and their related liabilities will be transferred to a settlement trust which will be trusteed by the PBGC. The agreement also provides that, at various times over a period of up to 12 years selected liabilities will be covered through the purchase of commercial annuities by the PBGC.

Hollis L. Harris, president and chief executive officer of Continental Airlines Holdings, said: '' We are pleased that this matter has been resolved and in such a way that it will not hinder Continental's plans for future growth and increasing profitability.

''Based on our experience it is reasonable to assume that the contributions to be made by Eastern and Continental, together with investment earnings, will fully fund the plans in the next few years.''

As of Dec. 31, 1989, the plans had total assets of $1.5 billion and accrued liabilities (at then-prevailing commercial annuity rates) of approximately $2 billion. All unfunded benefit liabilities will be guaranteed by the PBGC and satisfied by Eastern and Continental Airlines Holdings in accordance with agreed-upon current and deferred payment arrangements.

There will be no current effect on the consolidated financial statements of Continental Holdings as a result of this agreement. However Continental Airlines, on its separate company financials, will record a one-time charge to its retained earnings of an amount yet to be determined, although there will be no charge to Continental's income statement.

The agreement provides, subject to bankruptcy court approval, that Eastern will pay into the plans $30 million and that the PBGC will be granted an allowed general unsecured claim against Eastern of $565 million. This claim will be satisfied by Eastern in accordance with Eastern's plan of reorganization.

All other pension claims against Eastern, except a $71 million general unsecured claim of Continental Holdings, will be cancelled.

Under the agreement, Continental Holdings' fixed obligations are to pay $80.5 million Tuesday and then to pay into the plans or the various settlement trusts: $2.5 million in May 1991; $4 million in each of the months of June through September 1991 and $5 million in each of the months of October 1991 through September 1993. In September 1993, if the assets of the settlement trusts are not sufficient to provide for all future benefits, Continental will pay $4 million a month until that point is reached, but not beyond the year 2002.

In addition, at the end of 1993, if the trust assets are not sufficient to annuitize the benefits, Continental agreed to make an annual payment of 15 percent of its pre-tax income before extraordinary items in excess of $50 million, up to a maximum of $50 million a year. These payments will continue until all benefit liabilities have been annuitized.

If all the benefit liabilities have not been provided for through the purchase of commercial annuities by 2002, Continental will pay whatever is necessary to permit the purchase of those annuities or satisfy the remaining benefit liability.

Continental's obligation to the PBGC will be collateralized.

FORT WORTH, TX (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Burlington Northern Railroad Co. announced Tuesday that it intends to initiate in the near future a series of exchange offers to holders of its railroad mortgage bonds and its income debentures (collectively the ''Old Debt Securities''), all of which were issued prior to 1970 and are currently trading at a discount.

Under the terms of the exchange offers, holders of the Old Debt Securities will have the option of exchanging such Old Debt Securities for a like principal amount of new series of BN Railroad's Consolidated Mortgage Bonds. The interest rates and maturities of the Consolidated Mortgage Bonds to be offered have not yet been set. The exchange offers will be made only by means of a prospectus.

The purposes of the exchange offers will be: (1) to enable BN Railroad to reflect in its financial statements the current market value of the Old Debt

Securities exchanged; (2) to lengthen the average maturity of some of its debt; (3) to eliminate or modify certain restrictive covenants and other provisions contained in certain of the Old Debt Securities; and (4) to consolidate certain of BN Railroad's debt under BN Railroad's Consolidated Mortgage.

BN Railroad expects there to be a number of accounting effects from the proposed exchange offers in addition to the purposes identified above. These include: (1) the recognition of the gain, for financial reporting purposes, on the extinguishment of the Old Debt Securities as a result of the discount of their market value; (2) the flow-through of the gain (on an after-tax basis) into stockholder's equity; and (3) the discounting of the new bonds issued in exchange for the Old Debt Securities at their market value at the acceptance date of the exchange offers.

MONETT, MO (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Jack Henry & Associates Inc. (NASDAQ:JKHY) Tuesday reported results for its fiscal year ended June 30, 1990 which reflected a successful year for its continuing operations; however, when combined with losses from the discontinued operations (FinSer) a net loss resulted for the year.

Income from continuing operations was $937,000, or 26 cents per share, on net company revenues of $9,818,000, compared with a loss from continuing operations of $302,000, or 8 cents per share on net company revenues of $9,682,000 for fiscal year ended June 30, 1989.

Losses from the discontinued operations, which include a write down of the carrying value of the company's investment in discontinued operations, totaled $1,473,000 and offset the profitable results of the continuing operations resulting in a net loss of $536,000, or 15 cents per share for the fiscal year 1990. The fiscal year 1989 net loss was $1,272,000, or 35 cents per share, when combined with discontinued operations which had a $970,000 operating loss (net of tax benefit).

The comparable period a year ago included approximately $3 million in revenue from a software development and marketing agreement with Unisys Corp. that was suspended in June of 1989. Since July 1, 1989, the company's revenues have come primarily from direct sales of its IBM-based software and IBM hardware products to individual customers.

During fiscal year 1990, the company transferred its ownership in FinSer Capital Corp. to Fred Baker & Associates Inc., a company owned by Fred Baker who was then a director and executive officer of JHA.

Because the payment of the notes received by JHA were largely dependent upon the operations of FinSer, the transaction was not recorded as a completed sale for accounting purposes. JHA was required to continue to record operating losses incurred by the discontinued operations until criteria for recording a completed sale was met.

The discontinued operations incurred losses of $498,000 before tax benefits in fiscal year 1990. As a result of the continued losses, no payments were received on the notes. As a result, JHA recorded an impairment allowance that reduced the net investment in the discontinued operations and was charged against earnings. These losses resulted in the current period net loss. Operating results of the discontinued operations will not be a part of JHA's financials in fiscal year 1991.

According to Jack Henry, chairman of the board, ''Fiscal year 1990 was a year of re-building our relationship with IBM and re-directing our sales and marketing efforts back to IBM-based products. We feel we were successful in these endeavors and the current backlog of systems and the number of proposals being generated confirm the market's positive response to our return to the IBM world.''

Regarding the fiscal year, Henry continued, ''We ended the year better than expected operationally although our net bottom line for the year ended in a loss. We took action to address the discontinued operations (FinSer) and wrote down the carrying value of that investment.

''The one-time recognition of this loss will prevent JHA from incurring on going operational losses attributable to FinSer. We will continue to work with FinSer management to attempt to maximize recovery of our investment.''

Henry concluded, ''After the past two difficult years, JHA remains a well-capitalized software company with a strong cash position and continues to be a leading provider of banking software.''

Jack Henry & Associates Inc. markets, installs and supports integrated data processing software systems for banks and financial institutions. The company's software systems have been installed at more than 600 banks throughout the United States.

WALNUT CREEK, CALIF. (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Mission Resource Partners L.P. (ASE:MRP) Tuesday said it has entered into discussions with an independent oil and gas company regarding the purchase of substantially all of its remaining assets, which, if consummated, would result in the dissolution of the master limited partnership.

''There are a number of variables, including the sale of minor property interests, which will impact the final price per unit which will be distributed to unitholders upon dissolution of the partnership.

''Based on current projections, we believe our unitholders would ultimately receive between nine and 10 dollars per unit were this transaction consummated '' said Douglas K. Brown, president of Mission Resources Inc., MRP's manager.

SUNNYVALE, CALIF. (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Amdahl Corporation today announced the most powerful mainframe computers ever introduced for use in the IBM compatible marketplace. The new processors also offer a variety of reliability and availability advancements not found in previous systems.

The new 5995 Series of mainframes will consist of 10 models, including six 5995A processors for the majority of large-scale data processing needs and four 5995M models for very large data centers with the most demanding throughput requirements. Among them is the 5995-8650M eight-way multiprocessor, which offers nearly three times the throughput of any previous Amdahl mainframe and is the first compatible system to employ eight central processing units (CPUs).

Other high-performance models include the 5995-6650M six-way multiprocessor, the 5995-4550M quad processor with four tightly coupled CPUs, and the 5995-3550M triadic processor with three tightly coupled CPUs. Rounding out the series are the 5995-1400A four-way multiprocessor, the 5995-1100A three-way multiprocessor, the 5995-790A two-way multiprocessor, the 5995-700A and 5995-500A dual processors, and the 5995-350A uniprocessor.

According to Joseph Zemke, Amdahl president, the 5995 Series offers customers an exceptionally broad range of performance options and solutions that can be tailored to individual business needs. ''As requirements change, customers who begin with a 5995 uniprocessor can increase performance more than tenfold if they upgrade all the way to the eight-way multiprocessor,'' Zemke said.

The 5995A systems, which are available immediately, employ the same proven technology and design as Amdahl's 5990 Series of mainframes and have cycle times of 10 nanoseconds, the fastest of any system currently on the market. The 5995M models embrace new technology and will offer an even faster 7-nanosecond cycle time when deliveries begin next year. The 5995A models may be upgraded to the more powerful 5995M systems.

All 5995 models will support the new IBM Enterprise Systems Connection Architecture (ESCON), allowing implementation of high-speed fiber-optic serial channels as well as conventional copper parallel channels. The fiber-optic channels permit data to be transmitted over greater distances, reduce underfloor space requirements, and have the potential to significantly increase input/output speed and throughput.

In addition to manufacturing large mainframe computers, Amdahl is a major supplier of data storage subsystems, and the company announced support of its 6100 Storage Processor in ESCON environments. This support, details of which will be announced later, will include the ability to interface with fiber-optic serial channels directly or through ESCON directors and converters.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF. (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - INTERACTIVE Systems Corp. Tuesday announced that NCR has selected INTERACTIVE's VP/ix environment -- the industry's leading DOS-under-UNIX product -- for release with the NCR System 3000 product line.

INTERACTIVE VP/ix will be available as an option to the NCR System 3000, a family of Intel-based computer systems, ranging in processing power and designed to meet computing needs at all levels. The product line will conform to a common architecture, which is based on AT&T's V.4 UNIX operating system. INTERACTIVE is a major contributor of technology to AT&T for Release V.4.

INTERACTIVE's strategic relationship with NCR dates back to early 1988, when NCR first began bundling INTERACTIVE UNIX with its 386-based product lines.

''The significance of the System 3000 product line lies in its common UNIX-based architecture,'' said Dennis Peck, president and chief executive officer of INTERACTIVE. ''We applaud NCR for being a major force in the industry's efforts to promote open systems standards and compliance.''

INTERACTIVE VP/ix provides multiple users with the ability to run DOS applications in a UNIX system environment. First released in 1987, VP/ix is recognized as the leading DOS-under-UNIX operating environment. Along with NCR, companies such as AT&T, Sun Microsystems and the Santa Cruz Operation have adopted VP/ix as the industry standard.

INTERACTIVE VP/ix gives UNIX system users access to the thousands of applications available under DOS. VP/ix provides transparent integration of the DOS and UNIX file systems, allowing any DOS or UNIX system the ability to access and share the same files.

With VP/ix, the features and functionality of both DOS and UNIX operating systems are available at all times because they run simultaneously on the same machine.

INTERACTIVE Systems Corp., a Kodak company, is the premier supplier of UNIX products and development services to the computer industry and is gaining leadership in the commercial UNIX marketplace.

The INTERACTIVE UNIX (386/ix) family of integrated systems software products is sold through a broad range of distributors worldwide. INTERACTIVE Systems is headquartered at 2401 Colorado Ave., Santa Monica, Calif. 90404, Telephone 800/346-7111. Outside the United States, telephone 213/453-8649.

WESTBOROUGH, MA (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - ASA International Ltd. announced here Tuesday that its Bar Code Data Collection Division has entered into an agreement with Software House Inc., Cambridge, Mass. for Software House to package ASA's VAX-based data collection software, Shopkeeper, with Software

House's integrated security management software system, C-CURESystem 1 Plus.

Under the initial contract, valued at over $100,000 including licenses and services, Software House will purchase 10 units of the ClocKeeper time and attendance module, for installation at Software House client sites overseas. Later in the year, Software House plans to purchase an additional 10 units, for a total of 20 packages in 1990.

ClocKeeper is part of ASA's ShopKeeper family of bar code data collection applications. With ClocKeeper, a variety of collection devices is used to capture time and attendance data. The data is then used by the ClocKeeper application to provide management with up-to-date time and attendance information, eliminating time-consuming calculation and key-punching of labor and clock cards. ASA's real-time data collection utility, Wand 2S, is embedded in each Shopkeeper application, and provides the interface between the data collection device and the application.

C-CURESystem 1 Plus is a multi-user access control and security management software system that integrates multiple security functions and technologies for medium or large facilities. The C-CURE handles employee validation using a broad range of reader technologies, including proximity and biometric devices.

ClocKeeper will be integrated with the C-CURESystem 1 Plus database and will operate as a subprogram of the security management system to manage and monitor time attendance functions. ClocKeeper will provide data on what the employees are doing; the C-CureSystem will control access to areas and provide data on where employees are and whether they should be there. Both ClocKeeper and C-CURESystem 1 Plus run on the Digital Equipment Corp. VAX line of computers.

John L. Moss, president of Software House, said, ''ASA's products are a natural adjunct to our real-time security products, and we expect a very favorable reception to this added functionality.'' Software House offers a complete line of access control and security management systems through an international network of over 140 dealers. The firm currently has over 400 installations of its products worldwide.

Said Christopher Crane, president of ASA International Ltd., ''It is generally accepted that the application of data collection technology is further advanced in Europe than it is in the United States, although this is changing. The arrangement with Software House represents an opportunity for ASA to introduce its data collection products to an international audience that is already attuned to the benefits of extensive facility automation.''

Software House Inc. is a part of the JWP Inc. Electronic Systems group. Parent JWP Inc., a public company headquartered in Purchase, N.Y., reported 1989 annual revenues of $1.741 billion.

The ASA Bar Code Data Collection Division markets Wand 2S, a real-time VAX-based bar code collection utility and the ShopKeeper family of bar code data collection applications for VAX/VMS. In addition to ClocKeeper, the ShopKeeper family includes JobKeeper, for labor reporting and WorKeeper, for Work-in-Process tracking.

In addition to its bar code data collection systems. ASA International Ltd. markets multi-user business computer solutions, primarily on Digital Equipment Corp. and IBM hardware, to manufacturing, tire dealer and international trade companies. The firm, founded in 1969, reported 1989 revenues of $23,769,000.

PALO ALTO, CA (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Co. Tuesday announced it has received a $13 million contract from Nissan Motor Co. under which HP will supply the Japanese automobile manufacturer with workstations for use in mechanical computer-aided engineering (MCAE).

The contract specifies HP 9000 Series 800 PA-RISC (reduced- instruction-set computing) workstations and HP 9000 Model 375 workstations. These HP workstations will be added to Nissan's existing installation of more than 300 HP computers.

The workstations will be used with the I-DEAS software from Structural Dynamics Research Corp. (SDRC), a supplier of MCAE software and an HP value-added business. Nissan engineers will use the MCAE workstations to reduce time and costs associated with product design, analysis and testing.

Nissan made this decision based on its use of HP workstations at ESTECH Corp., an MCAE consulting company jointly established by Nissan and SDRC.

''The addition of these HP workstations to Nissan's R&D network is further evidence of the growing importance of computer technology in today's highly competitive global marketplace,'' said Bill G. Kay, general manager of HP's Workstation Group.

''Workstations have emerged as the computer platform of choice for manufacturers such as Nissan, and HP has emerged as a leading supplier of workstations for complex applications like MCAE,'' said Kay.

HP offers the industry's broadest line of RISC-based minicomputers, servers and workstations. HP's RISC-system market share for 1989 was 44 percent, more than twice that of its closest competitor, according to RISC MANAGEMENT NEWSLETTER.

Model 375, introduced by HP earlier this year, is based on the 68030 microprocessor from Motorola. According to a May 1990 study by Dataquest Inc. a market-research firm, HP is the leading supplier of technical workstations and one of the leading suppliers of MCAE systems in the rapidly growing, worldwide mechanical-engineering market.

Hewlett-Packard Co. is an international manufacturer of measurement and computation products and systems recognized for excellence in quality and support. The company's products and services are used in industry, business, engineering, science, medicine and education in approximately 100 countries. HP has 92,000 employees and had revenue of $11.9 billion in its 1989 fiscal year.

BELLEVUE, WA (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Aris Corp. (NASDAQ: LMNT) (''Aris'') Tuesday reported results for the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990.

The 49 apparel stores operated by Lamonts Apparel Inc. (''Lamonts''), Aris' sole operating company, which was acquired in September 1989, generated sales of $60.0 million for the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990, increasing 14.9 percent from $52.2 million for the three months ended July 29, 1989. Of this increase, revenues of the 47 comparable stores (those stores open for one full year in both three month periods) rose 12.8 percent.

Lamonts experienced a 16.6 percent increase in revenue in the Seattle/Tacoma area, 13.8 percent in the state of Alaska, and 11.7 percent in the state of Idaho. Operating cash flow generated by the Lamonts stores improved 41.2 percent (or more than $1.1 million) to $3.9 million for the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990, as compared to the three months ended July 29, 1989. Operating cash flow is defined as earnings before interest, depreciation, amortization, LIFO and other non-cash accounting ajustments.

Aris incurred losses from continuing operations of $3.5 million for the three months ended Aug. 4, 1990, compared to losses from continuing operations of $70,000 for the three months ended Sept. 30, 1989, primarily due to the increased interest expense incurred in connection with the acquisition of Lamonts and significant noncash charges. Due to these factors, management does not expect to report net income on an annual basis for several fiscal

On Aug. 29, 1990, Lamonts entered into a short-term $12.5 million revolving credit facility with Security Pacific Bank Washington which replaces the $12.5 million revolving credit facility which was a part of the bridge loan provided by LH Group Inc. and Northern Pacific Corp. in connection with Aris' acquisition of Lamonts. The new revolving credit facility is secured by a portion of Lamonts' inventory, bears interest at the rate of prime plus 1 percent and expires on Dec. 31, 1990.

Aris is currently involved in discussions with various parties regarding the refinancing of the remaining term facility under the bridge loan which expires on March 20, 1991. The company anticipates that the revolving credit line will be renewed or replaced if the refinancing of the bridge loan is completed on satisfactory terms. There can be no assurance that the foregoing refinancing will be consummated.

SANTA CLARA (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. Tuesday announced September availability of Microsoft's LAN Manager 2.0 network operating system bundled with 3Com's own value-added network software.

The offering will provide interoperability with the large installed base of 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 network systems and a common user interface for DOS workstations.

Microsoft's LAN Manager 2.0 offers high-performance file and printer sharing and will give software developers powerful tools for creating the next generation of client-server applications.

3Com, a co-developer of Microsoft's original LAN Manager, has shipped its own version of the network software -- 3+Open LAN Manager -- since October 1988, making 3Com the acknowledged leader of LAN Manager networks worldwide. While adding version 2.0 to its family of LAN Manager products, 3Com will continue to enhance and support its existing 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 platform.

To meet customers' requirements for software that adds value to the core network operating system, 3Com will offer LAN Manager 2.0 packaged with its 3+Open Menus and 3+Open NBP (NetBIOS Protocol). These services, unavailable from Microsoft, enable existing networks based on LAN Manager to operate on the same network as version 2.0 without modification.

Both 3+Open Menus, co-developed with Sabre Software, and NBP maximize the network functionality of DOS workstations. The menu product provides an interface that simplifies access to applications, network resources and DOS commands.

3+Open Menus also includes intelligence that adapts a given workstation's display to present only those options available at that particular network location. NBP, which relieves DOS workstation memory constraints by making 525 kilobytes of RAM available in a 640-kilobyte workstation, ensures version 2.0 will operate on desktops already running LAN Manager 1.1.

3Com's 3+Open Connection for NetWare, which allows LAN Manager and Novell NetWare systems to operate as a single network, is available separately for LAN Manager versions 1.1 and 2.0 today. Additional software services for LAN Manager 2.0 systems, including 3+Open TCP with NetBIOS, will begin shipping in the first calendar quarter of 1991.

Like Microsoft, 3Com will offer LAN Manager 2.0 independent of Operating System/2 (OS/2), enabling customers to run new LAN Manager software with the variation of OS/2 appropriate for their server hardware and business environments.

3Com will continue to offer 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 with Demand Protocol Architecture for its own line of network-optimized 3Server products and for personal computers adapted to operate as servers. Initially, 3Com's LAN Manager 2.0 offering will run on adapted servers; a version for the 3Server will be available in February 1991.

3Com's LAN Manager 2.0 with 3+Open Menus and NBP will be available at the end of September from 3Com's worldwide network of resellers and distributors. The Server Pak, priced at US$995, will include server software, documentation and support for up to five concurrent users.

Additional users may be added in increments of 10 (10-Pak), also for US$995 each, or by upgrading to an unlimited number of users (Upgrade To Unlimited) for US$5,495.

A LAN Manager 2.0 Unlimited System from 3Com, including software, documentation and a license for an unlimited number of users on a PC server, will also be available this month for US$6,490.

To provide 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 customers with a cost-effective upgrade to the LAN Manager 2.0 platform, 3Com is offering immediate availability of its Technology Investment Protection (TIP) program. 3+Open customers can save as much as 23 percent on the price of LAN Manager 2.0 when they order 3+Open 1.1 under the TIP program before September 1991.

-- Upgrade from 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 Entry System to the LAN Manager 2.0 with 3+Open Menus and NBP for $595.

-- Upgrade from 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 Entry System II to a 15-user LAN Manager 2.0 system for US$795.

-- Upgrade from 3+Open LAN Manager 1.1 Advanced System to LAN Manager 2.0 unlimited-user Server Pak for US$995.

3+Open Connection for NetWare, which began shipping last month, is US$250 for a single-user license, US$995 for a 10-user license and US$2,195 for an unlimited server license.

3Com Corp. is a leading independent global data networking company, providing multivendor connectivity that spans organizations and businesses worldwide. The company designs, manufactures, markets and supports networking systems based on industry standards and open systems architecture.

After teaching three years at Harvard University, Fields joined DARPA in 1974, where he worked until earlier this year. In 1988, Fields was awarded the President's Distinguished Executive Rank Award for his outstanding service.

Marvin Maslow, Projectavision's C.E.O., noted: ''Dr. Fields' joining out Board of Directors is both a compliment to the company's technology and an important development for Projectavision. Dr. Fields' reputation, knowledge and expertise will be invaluable to the company's achieving its short- and long-term goals.''

Utilizing its proprietary, patent-allowed technology, Projectavision is developing a compact, solid state television projector that the company believes will have high resolution imaging capabilities and broad industry application. These include the home consumer market, commercial audio/visual teleconferencing, medical-imaging, computer assisted design and engineering work stations, and a variety of military applications.

OCONOMOWOC, WIS. (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Stokely USA (NASDAQ/OTC:STKY) announced Tuesday that it expects sales and earnings for the current quarter ending Sept. 30, to be lower than the comparable year-ago quarter.

Stokely Chairman Joseph B. Weix said the decline relates to lower pricing.

''Early this summer selling prices for our principal products declined. This decline was based on buyer expectations of larger than normal supplies being produced. The company felt this assessment of the supply outlook was premature, as exceptional production difficulties were being encountered. Those difficulties, which included poor planting and growing conditions, delayed the onset of harvest well beyound usual dates,'' Weix stated.

''Due to the uncertainty of our own and total industry production levels, we adopted a nonagressive sales policy. We now estimate that this policy combined with general buyer apathy in an environment of declining prices will result in a sales decline of 5 - 10 percet. As a result of lower pricing and lower sales, we expect net earnings for this quarter will be approximately one-half last year's level.

''The outlook for supply and pricing still remains uncertain. There is substantial acreage to be harvested. Further, there is a possibility of significant demand increases related to European crop failures and to our military buildup in the Mideast. Margins, which have been under downward pressure, may rebound from current levels. The disappointing results we project for the second quarter are not necessarily indicative of results for the balance of the fiscal year.''

Stokely USA processes and markets a broad range of canned and frozen vegetables, fruits, tomato products and juices under the nationally recognized Stokely's Finest, Stokely's Singles and other brand labels; under customer private labels; and to the food service industry. Headquartered in Oconomowoc, Stokely operates 18 processing facilities in the Midwest, Pacific Northwest and Mexico.

KENNESAW, GA. (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Retail Technologies Corp. (RTC) has just signed a worldwide enterprise software license contract with the Woolworth Corp.

RTC is a growing software company that develops point-of-sale software for the retail marketplace, ranging from specialty stores to large department stores. The company was opened for business in September 1989 by five busy guys working out of their basements after they purchased a division from their previous company that was in an involuntary bankruptcy proceeding.

RTC secured financing, opened an office in Kennesaw and started the long and painful task of rebuilding an obsolete point-of-sale product left to die by their previous company. RTC has spent the last year rebuilding their product into a very competitive product and are continuing to expand its technical capabilities.

Their product is called ''Retailwerks'' and it has the unique ability to operate on both the IBM 4680 (generally a large store solution) and the IBM 4684 (generally a specialty store solution) Store System Point-of-Sale Computers. They have been a business partner with IBM since 1987 (including previous company), the same time they started working with the Woolworth Corp.

Since then, Retailwerks has been installed in a wide variety of store formats owned by the Woolworth Corp. Some of these store formats are Woolworth Express, Afterthoughts Boutique, The Rx Place and Woolworths. The software is scheduled to start going into Kinney Shoe store formats in Canada in October. This includes such store formats as Foot Locker, Lady Foot Locker, Champs Sports, as well as other store formats.

This license agreement gives the Woolworth Corp. the right to use Retailwerks in any one of the Woolworth Corp.'s 8,500 or so stores worldwide. This includes store divisions from Woolworth USA, Kinney Canada, Woolworth/Woolco Canada, Kinney USA, Kinney Australia and Woolworth Germany.

LOUISVILLE, KY (SEPT. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Capucino's Inc. (NASDAQ:CINO) Tuesday announced results for the three months ended July 31.

During such period, the company reported sale from its two existing restaurants of $850,693 and income before tax and net income of $4,364 and $2,764 respectively. For the comparable three month period ended July 23, 1989, the company reported sales of $851,106 and income before tax and net income of $44,702.

Net income for the three months ended July 23, 1989 does not reflect income tax expense as the company elected S Corp. status for that period.

The company also incurred a loss from operations of $68,252 during the 1990 period as compared to income from operations of $31,401 during the 1989 period.

Such loss resulted in large part from an approximately $140,000 increase in certain operating expenses, including approximately $35,000 in amortization of leases, organization costs and goodwill arising from the company's September 1989 acquisition of its two existing restaurants and $105,000 in costs related to the planned expansion of the company (including officers' salaries), increased administratve costs related to operating as a public company and additional promotional costs.

The increase in operating expenses was offset, however, by an approximately $27,000 decrease in cost of sales to $238,840 in the 1990 period from $266,166 in the 1989 period, and an approximately $12,000 decrease in payroll to $227,155 in the 1990 period from $239,171 in the 1989 period, resulting from tighter financial and operating controls instituted by Management.

Interest income for three month period ended Jyly 31, 1990, increased to $72,616 from $13,331 for the 1989 period due to investment of the net proceeds of the company's initial public offering and subsequent warrant exercises which offset the loss from operations.

The company also announced that its board of directors had elected Danny L. McDaniel, the company's vice president of Finance, to the additional position of chief financial officer. McDaniel, a certified public accountant who joined the company in April, was employed for approximatley 10 years prior thereto by Ernst & Young, most recently as Senior Manager from July 1987 to April 1990.

Capucino's operates a chain of Italian dinner house restaurants under the name Capucino's. The company has two restaurants in operation, plans to open three additional restaurants during the balance of calendar 1990 and is seeking additional sites.

ROCHESTER, NH (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Cabletron Systems Inc. (NYSE:CS) will introduce at Interop a new enterprise network management software system called SPECTRUM.

The product is based on the company's breakthrough new Inductive Modeling Technology, which allows a single executive control server -- on any Local Area Network (LAN) in the connected enterprise -- to deduce, correct and report problems to any number of SPECTRUM control consoles located anywhere in the enterprise.

By utilizing a highly graphical X-Windows user interface, SPECTRUM can flag a bad or questionable network component in an instant, showing its location on geographical maps, campus layouts, building plans or even logical network topology maps. It can identify what's on or off, what's working or in trouble and what to expect that trouble to affect next.

SPECTRUM can also take steps to correct or minimize problems where appropriate. Beta test sites say that the effect is a sense of network omniscience and total control. The product will be available (early 1991) at prices starting just under $50,000 (all prices direct from Cabletron).

SPECTRUM offers an extremely flexible, extensible architecture based on highly intelligent software modeling of each and every element of the network, including equipment, users, privileges and much more. By adding new Induction Rules to its model-based reasoning scheme, SPECTRUM can even capture and systemize the knowledge and preferences of a network administrator.

The heart of SPECTRUM is the Virtual Network Machine (VNM), which embodies an intelligent, comprehensive model of the enterprise network overall and each of its subelements. The VNM is based on Cabletron's breakthrough Inductive Modeling Technology. The company's reasoning-capable technology provides an extremely agile, adaptive and automatic way to model and control complex entities with software; SPECTRUM is its first commercial application.

Inductive Modeling embraces model-based reasoning, one form of artificial intelligence. It creates programmatic models of each individual subfunction of a larger entity. Each of these ''molecular'' subfunction models understands the attributes and behavior of its real-world counterpart, essentially defining its intelligence.

These molecular models are context-aware, interacting with each other to self-adjust their behavior as other subfunction models change status, appear or disappear. This adaptive integration is similar to some synaptic processes of the brain. Through these adaptive subfunction responses, large-entity system models exhibit inductive reasoning. They turn symptoms and effects into conclusions and actions.

Through Inductive Modeling Technology, the VNM models everything that makes up the enterprise network -- every network interface card, cable, workstation, node, user application, bridge or other connection and more.

Cabletron Systems Inc., headquartered in Rochester, N.H., develops and manufactures networking products based on its Integrated Network Architecture, a strategy which provides standards-based products and services necessary to build and manage a global, distributed platform of interconnected local area networks. The company currently has a worldwide installed base exceeding 1.3 million nodes.

Cabletron's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol CS. The company recently reported record revenue of $104.7 million and earnings of $22.3 million for the fiscal year 1990.

COLLEGE POINT, NY (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - EDO Corp. (NYSE: EDO) reported Tuesday that the Federal District Court in San Francisco had issued a 250-page partial opinion in EDO's previously reported contract dispute litigation with Dallas Corp.

The decision is largely in favor of Dallas Corp., although the court has not yet made a final determination of the amount of damages it will award. EDO believes the court has made significant errors and plans to appeal the decision once it becomes a final judgement.

As reported in EDO's 1989 Annual Report to its shareholders, Dallas, in its complaint, sought ''not less than'' $15 million in compensatory and liquidated damages, as well as ''not less than'' $10 million in punitive damages and injunctive relief. EDO's counterclaim sought compensatory damages in excess of $3 million as well as punitive damages of over $10 million.

In its opinion, the court awarded an as yet undetermined amount of compensatory damages to Dallas, denied any punitive damages and awarded approximately $151,000 in compensatory damages to EDO.

EDO believes the final judgement, while material, will be less than the amount sought by Dallas in its complaint. The company does not expect any significant effect on its financial stability regardless of the outcome of its planned appeal.

EDO Corp. designs and manufactures advanced electronic and specialized equipment for military and commercial aerospace, marine and industrial markets.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Phoenix Re Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:PXRE) Tuesday announced that it has formed a wholly owned insurance subsidiary, Transnational Insurance Co., to write direct property and casualty insurance.

With a capital and surplus of $10 million, Transnational is licensed in the state of Connecticut and in other states on a non-admitted basis. Transnational has established permanent offices at 500 Putnam Avenue in Greenwich, Conn. 06830, 203/661-1441.

Frank A. LoPiccolo, Phoenix Re's vice president -- Facultative, is senior vice president of Transnational Insurance and will coordinate Transnational's business development with that of Phoenix Re. LoPiccolo joined Phoenix Re in June 1982 after serving as assistant vice president of NRG Syndicate, an insurance underwriting syndicate. Prior thereto, he was an officer of MONY Reinsurance Co. and a manager with American Home Assurance Co.

Kenneth J. Moran has been named vice president of Transnational. He will oversee Transnational's day-to-day activities and will be responsible for underwriting decisions and corporate administration. Previously, Moran was a principal in National Business Brokers, which was acquired by Phoenix Re in December 1989. Prior to that, he was Vice President of Sayre & Toso Inc. He previously has held underwriting positions with Lexington Insurance Co. and MOAC, a subsidiary of Continental Insurance Co.

LoPiccolo noted that in keeping with the overall corporate strategy of Phoenix Re, Transnational will initially concentrate on property insurance, although it is licensed for both property and casualty lines. ''Given current market conditions and Phoenix Re's principal focus on property coverages, we plan to specialize in excess and surplus property lines for more difficult and unusual risks,'' said LoPiccolo. ''Our strategy calls for possible expansion into other lines and risks after we fully develop the opportunities within this particular niche.''

Moran indicated that Transnational will seek to establish broker relationships across the country, drawing on the long industry experience of the company's executives.

''Industry cycles often cause severe shortages of capacity for the types of uncommon and unusual coverages we intend to write,'' said Moran, ''which is presently the case given current market conditions. By utilizing the contacts with independent brokers that we have established over more than two decades in the industry, we believe that Transnational can provide a real service in offering excess and surplus lines, and thereby develop a strong base for possible expansion into other appropriate areas.''

Phoenix Re provides reinsurance products and services to a national and international marketplace, with principal emphasis on commercial and personal property risks.

GREENWICH, CT (SEPT. 18) BUSINESS WIRE - Helm Resources Inc. (AMEX:H), announced that it has, together with a group of investors, made an investment into SCAT Hovercraft Inc. (OTC), which has been operating under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy laws.

A Plan of Reorganization was submitted for SCAT by Helm and was recently approved. The newly reorganized company is expected to emerge from bankruptcy during the first half of October, with new stock issued at that time to the investing parties.

Helm Resources will retain majority control of the stock ownership of SCAT and a new Board of Directors will be appointed. The board will consist of three officers of Helm Resources, Herbert Pearlman, David Lawi and Walter Craig; the top two executive officers of Seitel Inc., an AMEX listed company, Paul Frame,

At its initial meeting, the Board of Directors will confirm the election of Harvey Seslowsky as president of the company and appoint him as a director. Seslowsky was formerly president and principal owner of National Video Clearing House Inc., publishers of data base communications information and magazines.

This company also had the marketing contract to market and promote the music, television and video festivals at Cannes to clients in the United States, Latin America and Canada. Seslowsky sold this company to International Thompson in 1988.

Seslowsky intends to initially focus his management team on building a well financed, highly trained domestic and international dealer network. NEW MILFORD, CT (SEPT. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - At its regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday, the board of directors of NewMil Bancorp, parent company of New Milford Savings Bank, voted to make an extraordinary provision to the loan loss reserve equal to the earnings for the quarter ending Sept. 30.

This decision will eliminate earnings in the quarter and is in response to regulatory opinion that the loan loss reserve was inadequate in view of the bank's non-performing loans.

In addition, the board anticipates the bank will take substantial security losses in the next quarter as it addresses the depreciation in the equity portfolio and will reduce the amount invested in equities.

As a result of these decisions, the board also voted to suspend the regular quarterly dividend for the foreseeable future.

According to Brian Arnold, vice president, ''We regret the necessity of taking these steps, but it is important to address these problems promptly so we may strengthen our position for the future.''

New Milford Savings Bank currently operates 12 banking offices which serve Northwestern Connecticut.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 18) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Peoples Heritage Bank, the principal banking subsidiary of Peoples Heritage Financial Group Inc.(TICKER: PHBK), announced Sept. 7, 1990 that it acquired certain assets and assumed certain liabilities of the 11 branch offices of Home Owners Savings Bank,(TICKER: HFS) F.S.B. from the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC).

The transaction was enacted pursuant to a purchase and assumption agreement between the RTC, as receiver for Home Owners, and PHFG Interim Savings and Loan Association, a newly formed subsidiary of Peoples Heritage Financial Group Inc. which was merged with and into the bank following PHFG Interim S&L's acquisition of assets and assumption of liabilities of Home Owners.

Peoples Heritage Bank did not pay any premium for the approximately $260 million of deposits at the branch offices of Home Owners in Maine that were assumed by the bank.

Peoples Heritage Bank also did not pay for the approximately $1.2 million of deposit account secured loans acquired by the bank.

The bank reports it intends to relocate the deposits at up to seven or eight of the acquired branch offices to other existing offices of Peoples Heritage Bank in proximity to such offices.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 18) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Farmers

Capital Bank Corp.(TICKER: FFKT) announced Sept. 7, 1990 that one of its banking subsidiaries, First Citizens Bank of Hardin Co. Inc., had announced that it has charged off approximately $4.98 million in certain real estate credits.

According to First Citizens, $4.54 million of the charge-offs stem from related real estate credits on properties in Kentucky and Tennessee.

In addition to the total charge-offs, First Citizens reports it will add $475,000 to its reserve for loan losses during the third quarter of 1990.

The increased provision for loan losses over the second quarter is expected to decrease net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1990 to approximately $2.31 million, or $0.59 per share, compared to $5.38 million, or $1.38 per share for the same nine months in 1989.

Given the level of the charge-offs and the monies to be added to the bank's reserve for loan losses, the corporation has made a contribution of $3.34 million to to the capital account of the bank.

Farmers Capital Corp. is a multi-bank holding company with headquarters in Frankfort, KY.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 18) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows in July and August of 1990, Suffield Financial Corp.(TICKER: SFCP) took steps to terminate the employment of Richard B. Paige and James A. McKay, officers and directors of Coastal Bancorp and Coastal Savings Bank, wholly-owned subsidiaries of Suffield.

Paige and McKay refused to agree to voluntary termination of their employment, and Suffield then took steps to exercise its shareholder rights to effect their termination.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 18) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Y & A Group Inc.(TICKER: YGRP) has recorded a prior period adjustment to its financial statements for the year ending Dec. 31, 1989, in the amount of $148,697.

Net earnings for that period were previously reported as $343,570, or $0.11 per share, and have been restated as $194,872, or $0.06 per share.

The adjustment was to adjust contract revenue under the completed contract method for a contract which was previously recorded under the percentage of completion method.

This was based on information then available and the inadvertent recording of duplicate accounts receivable for a newly acquired subsidiary, the company reports.

Deloitte & Touche, the company's auditors, have notified Y & A that their report dated March 30, 1990, can no longer be relied upon with respect to the December 31, 1989, financial statements.

Y & A's audit committee is reviewing the 1989 financial statements to determine if any other adjustments may be required.

The committee will report by Sept. 30, 1990.

The company reports that the adjustment made to the 1989 financial statements does not impact results reported by Y & A for the first six months of fiscal year 1990.

The company reported net earnings of $666,343, or $0.15 per share, for the six months ended June 30, 1990.

PARIS (SEPT 18) - The People's Republic of Congo won a substantial rescheduling of part of its public debt from creditors grouped in the Club of Paris, the Club secretariat announced here on Tuesday.

Repayment of the rescheduled installments, the amount of which was not announced, will come over a 15-year period with a six-year grace period, the communique said.

At a meeting last Thursday, the representatives of the participating countries (West Germany, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Spain, United States, France, Italy, United Kingdom and Switzerland) "noted with satisfaction the development by the government of an economic and financial program supported by a confirmation agreement from the International Monetary Fund", the secretariat said.

It added that, on a voluntary basis, each creditor country will also be able to carry out limited operations on converting debts into environmental protection projects, aid projects, or investments, or adopt other arrangements for converting debts into local currency.

The Congolese delegation to the talks was led by Finance Minister Edouard Gakosso.

Congo's foreign debt was estimated at around 4.8 billion dollars at the end of 1988 by the World Bank. It is classified as an intermediate-income country, with a per-capita income of 830 dollars a year.

NEW YORK (SEPT 19) - The Gulf conflict led to an Arab controversy on the first day of the 45th session of the U.N. General Assembly.

Delegates from occupied Kuwait and Qatar took strong exception when representatives from the Palestine Liberation Organization (Plo), in welcoming remarks on behalf of Arab countries to acceptance of Liechtenstein into the world organization, aired Plo chairman Yassir Arafat's plan for resolving the conflict.

This plan, which links a solution to the Gulf crisis to other open issues in the region, including the Israeli-Arab conflict, is controversial in Arab countries and has been rejected by Kuwait.

Exile Kuwaiti Deputy U.N. Ambassador Mohammad Al-Sallal said the Arafat proposals ''do not represent anybody except those who submitted it.'' He said it runs counter to all resolutions of the Arab League and the U.N. Security Council.

In a similar vein, Qatar U.N. Ambassador Hassan Al-Nimah said the Plo initiative does not reflect the position of the Arab League. He expressed ''great displeasure'' at the Plo speech. The Plo, under the name of the state of Palestine, has observer status at the U.N.

It was learned Tuesday that the exiled emir of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaber Al-Akhmad Al-Sabah, is to come to the General Assembly to make a speech September 27.

SOFIA (SEPT. 19) - Seven hours in a queue to buy gasoline that has doubled in price -- that is the unenviable fate of Bulgarian drivers these days, while housewives stand in other lines in front of Sofia stores to try to come up with that vanishing breed known as consumer products.

The Bulgarian oil crisis was set off by a sharp reduction in deliveries of Soviet crude to East European countries, but it worsened dramatically following the Bulgarian government's decision to respect the international embargo imposed on Iraq following its August invasion of Kuwait.

Before the Gulf crisis, Iraq was paying off a 1.3 billion dollar debt to Bulgaria with oil deliveries. But now, motorists here who manage to fill their tank after waiting some seven hours at the pumps are the envy of others who wait day and night at certain stations for the next fuel delivery.

Last Saturday, two roads leaving Sofia were blocked by angry drivers lining up to buy gasoline. They accused some other drivers moving along of having gotten gas on the black market.

Some Bulgarians mock fire risks by accumulating hundreds of liters of gasoline at home, either as a reserve for the winter, when the situation will be even tougher, or to resell on the black market. Enterprising traffickers offer gasoline to cars in transit for Turkey at the modest price of 3.20 dollars a liter, twice the official price at stations where gasoline can be bought for foreign currency.

Bulgarians, who were already hit by a doubling of gasoline prices in July, can get the precious substance on the black market at a price around 120 percent higher than the official level.

Ambulances, fire trucks, farm tractors and public transportation still circulate regularly, but their operation is expected to decrease in the winter.

An Energy Ministry official, queried by AFP, said the number of Sofia buses will be cut in half in the winter, while central heating will operate only when the temperature falls below freezing. He said the available heating oil stocks were only enough to maintain minimum operation of the energy system.

The official said the government could be forced to make temporary cuts in the production of the chemical and metallurgical industries, which consume large amounts of energy.

Coal and natural gas are unfindable, and electricity blackouts are expected to occur frequently as soon as fall begins. "The only important thing is how my family can get through the winter", say many Bulgarians.

The newspaper of the Socialist (formerly Communist) Party, Douma, has reproached the United Nations Security Council for having forgotten Bulgaria. It noted that the Council had called for financial assistance for Egypt, Jordan and Turkey due to those countries' losses stemming from application of the embargo, but not for Bulgaria.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) - Japan's broadly defined money supply grew 11.9 per- cent in August from a year earlier, but was down 0.3 percentage point from July's growth, the Bank of Japan said Tuesday.

Central bank officials said a slowdown in the growth pace of lending by banks and a drop in the domestic issuance of commercial paper pushed down the increase in the money supply.

The figures are based on M2, comprising cash in circulation plus time and ordinary deposits, plus certificates of deposit.

But deposits with unregulated interest rates remained high, showing 62.2 per cent growth from a year ago, under the current trend of surging interest rates, the officials said.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) - Japan's policy of banning unskilled foreign workers will remain unchanged, government officials said.

Government ministers in a meeting to discuss foreign workers confirmed that Japan could not accept unskilled workers from foreign countries as it might exert a major negative impact on the Japanese labor market.

According to the justice ministry, there are an estimated 100,000 illegal unskilled laborers currently working in Japan, which is suffering an acute shortage of skilled workers.

At the meeting the ministers agreed that the government should consider the possibility of allowing in more foreign trainees in Japan, officials said.

BEIJING (SEPT. 18) - China is to invest one billion yuan (212 million U.S. dollars) in 38 energy projects, China Daily said Tuesday.

The program covered one coal-electricity complex and 37 coal mines which would lift annual coal production by almost 54 million tons and electricity output by one million kilowatts, the official English-language daily said, quoting unnamed sources.

The State Treasury would fund 95 percent of the total investment and the rest would come from local sources, the newspaper said.

It quoted one official as saying no overseas funds were involved because low coal prices had dimmed profit prospects and most foreign firms were reluctant to invest in China's coal projects.

China produced a record 1.04 billion tons of coal last year.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) - Share prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange took a dive Tuesday, losing almost two percent of their value amid rising interest rates linked to higher oil prices, traders said.

Following Monday's 2.1 percent tumble, the Nikkei Stock Average shed nearly four percent in the morning session, but clawed its way back in the afternoon to close with a 480.78 point loss -- 1.97 percent -- at 23,884.82 yen in thin trading.

The yen's weakness undercut share prices, but the publication of figures showing the growth of money supply slowed in August to an 11.9 percent annual rate from 12.3 percent in July and rumors authorities were intervening to prop up bond prices helped cut losses, traders said.

The yen slipped to end the session at 137.68 to the dollar from Monday's close of 137.00 yen.

Above all, it was the hike in Japanese interest rates to their highest levels since 1982, boosted by higher oil prices, which sent the market into a tailspin.

The benchmark 10-year government bond traded with a yield as high as 8.65 percent before finally closing, slightly off, at 8.55 percent.

Oil prices in Singapore, meanwhile, approached 34 dollars a barrel.

The decision Monday by Japanese oil companies to pass along oil increases to consumers at the pump for the first time since the Gulf crisis broke was another sign that inflation was threatening to pick up.

Also adding to the market's malaise, some Japanese financial establishments sold shares as they prepared to close their books for mid-year accounting by September 30.

"In 18 years in this market, it's the first time I have seen participhave on the Japanese economy.

But domestic factors such as upward pressure on interest rates stemming from spiraling wages also contributed to market fears.

Faced with such a volatile environment, he said, it was highly unlikely the market would rally, but he did not rule out a short-term gain on technical factors.

Persistent rumors meanwhile circulated on the trading floor that Japan had reached an accord with major brokerage firms to hold the Nikkei at the 23,000 yen level.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) - Greek Prime Minister Constantinos Mitsotakis has asked his Japanese counterpart Toshiki Kaifu for more Japanese investment in Greece, a daily newspaper said Tuesday.

Mr. Mitsotakis said in an interview published in The Japan Times that he had also told Mr. Kaifu that Greece could serve as a bridge between Japan and the European Economic Community (EEC).

"Geographically speaking Greece, an EEC member, is a bridge to the Middle East and the northern part of Africa," Mr. Mitsotakis told the daily newspaper.

Greece could also be a bridge between Japan and the Balkans and Eastern Europe he said, adding that Japanese investment would be particularly welcome in Greece's capital goods and transport sectors.

"Our main problem is combating inflation," Mr. Mitsotakis said. "We must reduce the participation of the state in our economy, contain the public sector and reduce the budget deficit."

Mr. Kaifu had asked Mr. Mitsotakis to improve Greece's economic climate to boost investment from overseas, a Japanese official said.

The official added that Mr. Mitsotakis had invited Mr. Kaifu to make an official visit to Greece.

The Greek prime minister was in Japan to support Athen's bid to host the 1996 Summer Olympics. The International Olympics Committee was due to rule on the 1996 site at a meeting Tuesday in Tokyo.

PERTH, AUSTRALIA (SEPT. 18) - The Middle East crisis could cause a number of Western Australian mines to shut down, a member of the state parliament said Tuesday.

Richard Court, opposition energy spokesman, in a statement said the gold sector in particular was being hit by soaring fuel prices.

The iron ore industry was also being hit because it took one litre of fuel to mine one tonne of ore, he said.

"If crude oil increases to 40 dollars (33 U.S.) a barrel then many mines will be forced to close as fuel accounts for over 32 per cent of the cost of moving ore," Mr. Court said.

"Proposed new nickel projects could be shelved in view of the current oil crisis."

He said West Australia's mining industry accounted for nearly 60 percent of the state's overseas exports currently valued at 5.9 billion dollars (4.9 billion U.S.).

Among the big operators in West Australia are BHP Co. Ltd., CRA Ltd. and Western Mining Corp.

Among the minerals they mine are gold, nickel, iron ore, aluminia, diamonds, lead and zinc.

Colombo (SEPT. 18) - Sri Lankan security forces raided two major hideouts of the Tamil rebels of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (Ltte) in the east of the country and seized a large quantity of arms, ammunition and vehicles, military sources said Tuesday.

The sources said that in the attack which took place Monday, troops overran a rebel hideout in the eastern Trincomalee district, killing seven suspected Ltte cadres. Five soldiers were wounded.

In a separate operation in the eastern Ampara district, security forces raided a major camp of the Ltte after killing six rebels. The soldiers recovered sophisticated weapons, grenades, over 10,000 rounds of ammunition, and communication equipment, the sources said.

Eight vehicles, including an ambulance used by the erstwhile Indian Peace Keeping Force, were also seized.

The offensive against Tamil rebels in the northern capital Jaffna has further slowed down due to heavy resistance put up by the Ltte, the military sources admitted.

But military officials in Colombo claimed that over 190 soldiers and policemen in the Jaffna Fort army camp were evacuated on Monday after the troops last Thursday succeeded in breaking a three-month-old siege on the camp by the Tamil rebels.

Two security personnel were reported killed during the evacuation process, they said.

Late Sunday, over 30 suspected Tamil rebels were killed by sniper fire of the security forces around Jaffna Fort, a defence ministry said.

SINGAPORE (SEPT. 18) - Oil prices shot up to 37 U.S. dollars a barrel for October deliveries, fueled by the Gulf crisis and supply fears, dealers here said Tuesday.

They said that North Sea Brent blend, the key European grade, was up from 32.20 U.S. dollars quoted a day ago. For deliveries in November, Brent was going for 33.55.

Dealers said the rise was likely due to supply fears because of the labor situation and a pipeline problem in the North Sea. Reports of Soviet pipeline problems sent the price spurting Monday.

The latest rise was also attributed to comments made Tuesday at the Asia-Pacific Petroleum Conference here, where analysts predicted extremely tight supply for the fourth quarter of 1990 with prices jumping as high as 60 dollars.

The backdrop continued to be the crisis in the Gulf sparked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2 and its war of nerves with U.S.-led forces in Saudi Arabia.

"Basically people have just decided that it's going to be a little bit longer before the thing is settled," said one dealer, who did not want to be identified.

CANBERRA (SEPT. 18) - Australia was pressuring the United States not to subsidise wheat sales to Australian customers, Trade Negotiations Minister Neal Blewett said Tuesday.

Mr. Blewett said in parliament that increased U.S. export subsidies on wheat was another example of Australia getting hurt in the European Economic Community-U.S. agricultural trade war.

"In a disturbing new development the U.S. Senate has also passed a Bill which, if enacted, would require the administration to target Export Enhancement Program (EEP) sales at the markets of countries which did not have acreage reduction programs, which would encompass Australia."

Under the EEP, U.S. wheat exports are subsidised.

"Our embassy in Washington has made urgent representation on this matter.

"We've urged the United States to abandon the EEP program and if that is not possible immediately to target its use to avoid damage to the markets of fair traders in wheat such as Australia.

"We've also been pressing hard for the abolition of agricultural export subsidies by all nations of the Uruguay round of multinational trade negotiations."

Export bonuses under the U.S. EEP last week reached a record 54.01 U.S. dollars a tonne on a 12,000 tonne sale to West Africa as the United States tried to boost wheat sales and counter similar moves by the EEC.

Australia's wheat farmers are already facing the lowest payments for wheat in 13 years due to the high Australian dollar, a bumper world crop, lower world prices, and the uncertainty of Middle East trade.

MANILA (SEPT. 18) - The Philippines' budget deficit rose to 29 billion pesos (1.16 billion dollars) as of late August, above the 21.2 billion peso target for the entire calendar year, the government said Tuesday.

A budget department spokesman said that as of August 22, the 29 billion peso deficit had widely surpassed the 18 billion peso (720 million dollar) target for the eight month period.

But the spokesmen said the deficit could shrink when updated revenue figures come in later this month. As of August 15, government revenues amounted to 107.7 billion pesos (4.31 billion dollars.)

Government revenues for 1990 were originally targetted at 191 billion pesos (7.64 billion dollars) while the government was aiming to hold the budget deficit at 21.2 billion pesos (848 million dollars.)

The government had been hoping to reduce the deficit this year through new taxes, elimination of an oil subsidy fund and tighter expenditures.

But congressional resistance to new taxes, a killer earthquake that struck in July and the Gulf crisis derailed the main elements of the economic reform program.

For the first half of the calendar year, the 24 billion peso (960 million dollar) budget deficit outstripped the 16.59 billion peso (663.6 million dollar) target.

LONDON (SEPT. 18P) - Britain's Public Sector Borrowing Requirement (PSBR), the shortfall between government income and its spending, was 800 million pounds in August, according to figures from the Treasury here Tuesday.

The figure was 100 million pounds above economists' expectations. It compares with a 700 million pound PSBR in August last year and a three billion pound Public Sector Debt Repayment (surplus) in July this year.

The cumulative PSBR for the financial year so far (April to August) is 3.8 billion pounds, compared with an 800 million pound surplus at the same stage last year.

BONN (SEPT. 18) - Police experts have added two senior West German government ministers to their growing list of possible targets of the Red Army Faction (RAF) terrorist organization, according to Stern magazine.

Finance Minister Theo Waigel and Justice Minister Hans Engelhard have been identified by police terrorism experts as possible RAF targets, along with Secretary of State for Economy Erich Riedl and Chamber of Commerce and Industry President Hans-Peter Stihl.

Two senior Deutsche Aerospace executives were also named as possible targets of terrorist attacks in the run-up to December 2 general elections, police told Stern.

The RAF is believed by police to have altered its ideological line of opposing "American imperialism" and the military-industrial complex to include advocates of the "Greater Germany" and the "Europe of 1992," Stern said.

West German media since the beginning of the month have reported a growing possible terrorist hit list, including Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Daimler-Benz president Edzard Reuter.

LAHORE, PAKISTAN (SEPT. 18) - Ousted Pakistani prime minister Benazir Bhutto Tuesday accused President Ghulam Ishaq Khan of abuse of power and demanded his resignation to pave the way for fair elections.

Ms. Bhutto told a gathering of lawyers that since he dismissed her elected government last month, the president had been acting as "judge, jury and prosecutor."

Witnesses described the meeting of the Lahore High Court Bar Association, the largest forum of lawyers in Pakistan with more than 1,400 members, as unprecedented in terms of its attendance and the enthusiastic response of its members.

Lawyers packed the auditorium and organizers had to install two closed-circuit television sets for the people gathered outside to hear Ms. Bhutto's emotional speech.

The prestigious association has traditionally played a leading role against authoritarian rule in Pakistan, ruled for nearly half of its history by military governments.

Ms. Bhutto lashed out at the accountability process launched by the president, who dissolved the national assembly on August 6 and sacked her 20-month government on charges of corruption and abuse of power.

The former prime minister and some of her ministers have already been indicted before special courts under laws that provide for disqualification from politics and prison sentences.

"It is political vendetta disguised as accountability," Ms. Bhutto said.

"They have no cogent evidence," she said, pointing out that a case against one of the accused former minister, Jehangir Bad, had already been dismissed by one of the special courts.

Her speech was repeatedly interrupted with shouts of "Benazir, innocent."

Ms. Bhutto is to attend here Wednesday a meeting of the recently formed Pakistan Democratic Alliance (PDA) which groups the PPP, the Tehrik Istiqlal headed by retired air force chief Asghar Khan and the Shiite Tehrik Nifaz-e-Fiqah-Jafria party.

The tripartite front has agreed to field candidates in the elections against the anti-Bhutto Islamic Democratic Alliance (IJI), the dominant force in the interim administration.

TEHERAN (SEPT. 18) - Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Belonogov Tuesday termed Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait as a ''big strategic mistake'', the Iranian News Agency Irna reported.

He said after a meeeting with Iranian deputy foreign minister for Euro-American affairs, Mahmoud Vaezi, that Moscow under the current circomstances supported a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis and backed the U.S. economic boycott of Iraq.

The Soviet News Agency Tass quoted Belonogov as saying there was an urgent need to discuss the Gulf crisis with officials in Teheran because Iran has ''considerable influence'' in the region.

Vaezi reiterated Iran's stance and said his goverment supported a peaceful solution of the crisis and demands an Iraqi pullout from Kuwait as well as the withdrawal of U.S. troops from the Gulf, Irna reported.

He added that the Gulf's regional states were capable of playing a key role in retoring peace and security in the region, it said.

NICOSIA (SEPT. 18) - Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister Manoushehr Mottaki left the Iraqi capital Tuesday after a three-day visit during which he held talks on the improving relations between the two former enemies.

Mr. Mottaki, quoted by the official Iraqi News Agency, described his talks with Iraq's Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz as positive and cordial.

The talks focused on the "normalization of relations between the two countries on the basis of good neighbourliness and mutual respect, the opening of embassies as well as the exchange of prisoners," he said.

Mr. Mottaki, the first Iranian official to visit Baghdad since the Iran-Iraq war that broke out in September 1980, arrived Sunday on what was a follow-up to Mr. Aziz's visit to the Iranian capital last September 8-9.

The Gulf war ended with a U.N.-brokered cease-fire in August 1988. President Saddam Hussein broke the subsequent deadlock in efforts to secure formal peace with his dramatic acceptance on September 15 of Iran's terms for a settlement.

The two sides have since freed 75,000 of the estimated 100,000 POWs captured in the eight-year conflict. But the daily exchanges were interrupted Saturday for unknown reasons, the International Committee of the Red Cross said.

THE HAGUE (SEPT. 18) - Queen Beatrix of the Netherlands opened parliament Tuesday with a speech from the throne condemning the invasion of Kuwait by Iraq as a flagrant violation of international law.

The Queen, putting unusual emphasis on foreign policy for a throne speech, said the Netherlands would do all it could to ensure that the embargo against Iraq was effective.

Promising that the Netherlands would not stand by while international law was ridiculed, the Queen said the Gulf Crisis had demonstrated that the United Nations now had the "means to assume its responsibilities".

Cologne (SEPT. 18) - West German exports to China dropped 15 percent to about 2 billion Deutschmarks (1.28 billion dollars) during the first half of 1990, the East Committee of the German Economy reported Tuesday.

The committee attributed the drop to China's having tightened imports in an attempt to improve its negative trade balance.

A further reason cited was the fact that the West German government does not guarantee credits for business with China, putting German companies in China at a disadvantage vis-a-vis those from other countries belonging to the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development.

The committee said the suspension of development assistance for new projects in June 1989 was also a hindrance to Sino-German economic relations.

The only bright spot was in electrotechnology and electronics, where German exports to China rose almost 7 percent to 268 million marks (172 million dollars).

China's exports to West Germany climbed 26 percent to 3.416 billion marks (2.19 billion dollars) during the same period, giving it a trade surplus with West Germany of 1.4 billion marks (899 million dollars).

TUNIS (SEPT. 18) - Kuwait has accused the Iraqi authorities of driving Kuwaitis out of their own country and of mistreating the elderly as well the mentally and physically handicapped.

The Kuwaiti Embassy here said Tuesday it notified the Arab League of the "repression aimed at emptying the country of Kuwaitis and installing Iraqi families or other nationals of countries favourable to Iraq in their place."

Saudi officials have said some 6,000 Kuwaiti families fled since Saturday when the Iraqi military opened the Khafji border crossing from Kuwait into Saudi Arabia.

Iraqi border guards stripped the departing Kuwaitis of all their identification papers.

In a separate memorandum to the Arab League, which has its headquarters in the Tunisian capital, the Kuwaiti mission charged that 1,600 elderly and mentally and physically handicapped people had been evicted from special homes.

Twenty-eight of the handicapped have since died because of a lack of care, the embassy said.

The memorandum also said a trade union official, Mubarak Faleh al-Nout, had been killed "in public and in a barbarous manner," while several Kuwaitis had been arrested for refusing to cooperate with the occupied authorities.

A National Council member, Jaber al-Jaber, had been detained along with three former MPs, Khaled Sultan Issa, Abdel Karim al-Hojaidili and Mubarak al-Duwaila, the Kuwaiti mission charged.

MELBOURNE (SEPT. 18) - Disappointed Australians, stunned by the news from Tokyo that Atlanta had won the 1996 Olympics, claimed American money swung the vote.

"If it was Greece you could understand it, but it wasn't. American money has done it," State of Victoria Tourism Minister Steve Crabb said here Tuesday after the Georgian capital beat Athens, Melbourne and three other candidates for the Games.

Victorian Sports Minister Neil Trezise claimed: "It's supposed to be a world games, not an American games -- the Yanks have done it again and it's about time they came south of the equator," he said.

"In the last 25 years America has had almost half the Olympic Games (summer and winter)."

A giant party to celebrate Melbourne winning fizzled out.

Melbourne beat Sydney for the right to bid for the games although Sydney might yet try for the Olympics in 2000.

Brisbane made an unsuccessful bid for the 1992 Games won by Barcelona.

The Olympic Games have only been held in the southern hemisphere once -- in Melbourne in 1956.

SEOUL (SEPT. 18) - North and South Korea failed Tuesday to bridge differences on the issue of membership at the United Nations, with Seoul calling the North's proposal for a single seat "unrealistic and unworkable."

Delegations from the two sides meeting at the border truce village of Panmunjom said they would meet again on the issue, but did not settle on a date, officials here said.

The meeting Tuesday was the result of an agreement forged here early this month during historic talks between the prime ministers of the North and South.

But officials here say Pyongyang's demand to discuss the issue may be a ruse aimed at thwarting Seoul's diplomatic effort to become a U.N. member separately.

Pyongyang has always opposed separate membership on grounds it would cement the 45-year division of the peninsula.

North Korean chief delegate Choi U-Jin proposed at the talks that the capitalist South and communist North file a joint application to join the world body together as "Korea" at the upcoming General Assembly this month.

He put forth a seven-point proposal which called on the two sides to alternate chief U.N. delegates and jointly exercise voting rights, abstaining whenever they differed on an issue, the officials here said.

The South Korean delegate to the talks, Lim Dong-Won, told the press afterwards that "this proposal is against international law and practices, unrealistic and unworkable."

"The proposal is so unrealistic that I don't expect we can reach a compromise proposal," he was quoted by the national Yonhap news agency as saying after the 1-12 hour talks.

"Our position is that, as a temporary measure, the two Koreas join at the same time separately until the country is unified," Mr. Lim said he told the North Korean delegates.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) - Japan's long-term credit banks are expected to raise their long-term prime lending rate by up to half a percentage point from October 1, banking sources were quoted as saying Tuesday.

Reports said the six banks were planning to increase the rate, now standing at 8.5 percent, after yields on five-year debentures rose to 8.1 percent.

The prime rate, charged on preferred corporate loans of more than one year, is set 0.9 percentage points above the debenture coupon rate which was 7.6 per cent at the latest issue.

The rate has already been raised by 0.6 percentage points in August and 0.3 percentage points in July. At nine percent, it would be at its highest level since April 1980.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) - Only two months away from the official enthronement of Japan's new emperor, 850 of his fellow citizens are taking a stand against the event, which they oppose as unconstitutional.

The group said in Osaka Monday through its lawyers that it planned to take the government to court over its decision to pay for the enthronement, which its opponents have said is religious in nature.

The 1947 Japanese constitution forbids spending public money on religious activities and 50 lawyers, mostly based in Osaka, have agreed to institute legal proceedings against the government.

Observers here said the proceedings were sure to create an uproar in Japan and were expected to inspire similar court actions in the next few weeks.

The enthronement has been estimated to cost more than eight billion yen (58 million dollars) and will take place in two stages.

The first is the "Sokui-no-rei" or coronation on November 12, involving 2,500 guests, including many foreign dignitaries, and the second is the two-day Shintoist ceremony of Daiosai, the great ceremony of offering, starting November 22.

After agonising over the problem last year, the government finally decided to pay for the whole enthronement with public funds, drawing strong reactions from Buddhists, Christians and many intellectuals.

The intellectuals, particularly, oppose the Daijosai ceremony in which the 57-year-old Emperor Akihito gives rice and other offerings before engaging in spiritual communion for a whole night with the sun goddess, Amaterasu Omikami, his legendary ancestor.

DUBLIN (SEPT. 18) - Irish Foreign Minister Gerry Collins met the Iraqi ambassador to Britain and Ireland here Tuesday to express concern about three Irishmen facing trial in Iraq for trying to flee the country, the foreign ministry said.

The ministry said in a statement that the three men were arrested early in September for trying to flee Iraq without the required exit visas.

The trial of the three is due to start in coming weeks. They would be the first Westerners to face court action for failing to obtain exit visas since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

The men have not been identified. But two of them have been named as employees of the Irish contracting company MF Kent, and the third as a representative of a German firm.

Foreign Minister Collins met Iraqi Ambassador Azmi Shafiq Al-Salihi at the Irish government's request, the ministry said. The two men would say nothing after their meeting, which lasted about 30 minutes.

Irish officials said Monday that the three Irishmen were moved from a "holding center" to a Baghdad jail last week, they were being allowed limited visitation, and the Irish Embassy in Baghdad had appointed lawyers for them.

A ministry source said Mr. Collins also used Tuesday's meeting to protest the recent violations by Iraqi troops of Western diplomatic missions in Kuwait.

Mr. Collins last week protested to the Iraqi authorities over the temporary detention of an Irish embassy official, Niall Holohan, describing it as "an act of aggression".

LONDON (SEPT. 18) - Members of the Inter-African Coffee Organisation (IACO) called on Tuesday for a reintroduction of export quotas in view of the depressed world market.

They made their call at a meeting of the International Coffee Organisation (ICO) here but stressed they would not accept any reduction in their share of the market in any new international agreement.

Filomeno Ceita, Angola's representative and president of the IACO, said "African countries have lost 1.2 billion dollars in export income since export\ quotas were suspended in July 1989.

The suspension, which followed the collapse of negotiations aimed at establishing new quotas, led to a collapse of world coffee prices.

The United States had wanted higher quotas for the superior quality coffee from Central American countries. But Brazil and African countries rejected this.

Mr. Ceita said African producers wanted a swift resumption of negotiations to put an end to the present situation.

While Africa has made it clear it wants to maintain its share of the market, Brazil, the world's biggest producer, has yet to make a formal statement.

Leaders of the U.S. and Brazilian delegations are not expected here until next week so no major developments are expected before then.

The ICO meeting opened here Monday and is expected to end on September 28.

AMMAN (SEPT. 18) - The PLO will mount a campaign to overthrow the leaders of Arab countries who sent troops to Saudi Arabia if Iraq comes under attack, a senior Palestinian official warned here Tuesday.

George Habash, head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), said the Palestine Liberation Organization had its "finger on the trigger" although it was also working for an Arab solution to the Gulf crisis.

"In case of an attack on Iraq, the PLO will issue a clear and frank call for Arab masses to overthrow the regimes that have sent troops alongside the U.S. invasion forces in Saudi Arabia," he told a press conference.

"We have a finger on the trigger and we will pull it the moment Baghdad or any other part of Iraqi territory is attacked," the PFLP chief said.

Egypt, Syria and Morocco are the Arab countries which have sent troops to Saudi Arabia, where more than 100,000 U.S. soldiers have been deployed to deter a possible Iraqi attack after the August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Habash said the PLO was working on a joint political plan "for the nine Arab countries that have supported Iraq" to find a solution to the crisis. He gave no details.

Algeria, Jordan, Libya, Mauritania, the PLO, Sudan, Tunisia and Yemen -- apart from Iraq -- did not vote in favour of a resolution adopted at an Arab summit in Cairo on August 10 to sent troops to Saudi Arabia.

The PFLP's base in Syria, a long-standing rival of Iraq, will not be moved to Baghdad, Mr. Habash told reporters, although an office was also being opened in the Iraqi capital.

"I will continue to travel to Damascus until I am barred. Syria is Arab and I have the right to travel everywhere in the Arab world," said the head of the PFLP, one of the main groups in the PLO.

PLO leader Yasser Arafat arrived here Tuesday for a meeting with King Hussein, following talks in Baghdad with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Mr. Arafat, quoted by the Jordanian news agency Petra, said he was "optimistic over an Arab political solution" to the Gulf crisis, despite what he called the "dangerous" statements of the U.S. air force chief of staff.

General Mike Dugan was fired Monday for his blunt talk to reporters about contingency plans to target the Iraqi president and bomb Baghdad.

"These remarks prove that (for the Americans) it's not a case of defending an Arab country but of striking Baghdad and the Iraqi people, something which is extremely dangerous and which we should take into account," Mr. Arafat said.

DAR ES SALAAM (SEPT. 18) - A large area of prized natural forest on the 4,566-metre (14,980 foot) Mount Meru in northern Tanzania is feared to have been destroyed by a huge fire, which has raged out of control for three days.

Arumeru district commissioner Ferdinand Mkude confirmed by telephone Tuesday that an estimated 250 hectares (625 acres) of forest may have been destroyed. But he said it was hard to establish the exact size of the area affected by the fire which broke out on the mountain slopes on Sunday morning.

A 500-plus squad of soldiers, para-military youth and volunteers has been mobilised to try to put out the fire, but the mountain's steep slopes make much of the area inaccessible to fire fighters.

According to Mr. Mkude, the fire is the biggest since 1962 on Mount Meru, Africa's third-highest peak after the Kilimanjaro (5,895 metres - 19,340 feet) and Mount Kenya (5,199 metres - 17,040 feet). Another fire destroyed 60 hectares (150 acres) of natural forest there in 1983.

A spokesman for Arusha regional commissioner's office, Goodluck ole Medei, said he had was having problems sending volunteers to the mountain as his office lacked adequate funds for transport, food and fire-fighting gear. But he said an urgent appeal had been sent to the prime minister's office in Dar es Salaam for help.

The fire, which is visible from Arusha town, some 20 kilometres (13 miles) away, is said to have started as a grass fire before spreading to the natural forests on the eastern and western slopes, fanned by strong winds.

BUCHAREST (SEPT. 18) - Twenty-five thousand workers at the Romanian Black Sea port of Constanta went on strike for a second consecutive day Tuesday to back their demands for a pay rise, trade union sources said.

Seamen's trade union leader Gheorghe Dorneanu said the workers were upset that they had never received a 40 percent pay increase awarded by the government in May to people working at night or doing dangerous jobs.

He said management had decided instead to spread the increases more thinly among all workers.

The Constanta trade union leading the strike on behalf of seamen, dockers and port labourers is also demanding better safety conditions.

Mr. Dorneanu said the action was aimed as well against "the banning of trade union activity and the disinformation" on trade union work dealt out through the media to the public.

He called on all Romanian vessels to respect the strike, even those in foreign ports.

He said a 7,800-ton Romanian freighter, the "Miercurea Ciuc", had been threatened with a 14 million dollar fine by port authorities in Rotterdam for stopping loading a consignment of copper Monday in sympathy with the strike.

Mr. Dorneanu said the Constanta strike was being felt at Romanian ports on the Danube River, such as Galati and Tulcea.

Last week, Constanta port authorities said that the strike was unjustified, and that the Romanian maritime firms Navrom, Petrodim and Romline had made losses of over one billion lei (50 million dollars) so far this year.

The authorities attributed this to the country's previous political system, and falling exports and productivity.

CAIRO (SEPT. 18) - Kuwait Airways will resume flights in two weeks, its managing director Ahmed Machari said Tuesday in Cairo, the airline's new base.

His announcement came a day after Iraqi Airways disclosed in Baghdad that it had taken over 10 Kuwait Airways planes that were in Kuwait when Iraq invaded on August 2.

Until the invasion, Kuwait Airways carried 1.8 million passengers a year in 42 countries and had profits of 50 million dollars a year for each of the past three years.

In an interview in his office here the head of Kuwait Airways, whose new slogan is "The Challenge and the change", said, "The first step is to show that the flag of KA is touching down in most continents."

"We have got traffic rights for all over the world, much more than we had before," he said. "The whole world is supporting our government through supporting KA."

He said Kuwait Airways had based in Cairo four Boeing 747s, three 727s and and one 767, along with 400 pilots and flight attendants.

He disputed Iraqi Airways' statement on Monday that it had seized 10 planes, saying they actually had taken 15.

In addition to eight Airbus 300-310 and two Boeing 767s, they also took five Gulfstreams, small corporate jets, that probably will be used by the government, he said.

He also challenged the assertion by the Iraqi Airways director, Nureddin Safi Hammadi, that Iraqi and Arab pilots will soon get the eight Airbuses operational.

"I doubt they will be able to run them; even if they are, nobody will accept them," Mr. Machari said, adding that Kuwait Airways had informed all relevant international organizations that the Airbuses "belong to us."

Right after the invasion, Kuwait Airways, like other Kuwaiti institutions, established itself in London.

Cairo, however, was preferred, not only for its proximity to the Gulf, but also because it has "more facilities for maintenance and more space for the planes at the airport."

HARARE (SEPT. 18) - Zimbabwe's government won praise from economists Tuesday for pushing ahead with a long-awaited trade liberalisation programme in the face of the economic impact of the Gulf crisis.

The move to open up Zimbabwe's tightly-controlled economy includes giving foreign investors full repatriation rights on all dividends declared when they set up new projects.

The president of the Confederation of Zimbabwe Industries, John Deary, said the government's announcement Monday night that the programme would start on October 1 despite recent fuel price hikes was an indication of its commitment to liberalising the economy.

The move was also welcomed by the president of the Zimbabwe National Chamber of Commerce, Phil Jumbe, and by the local representative of the World Bank, Christiaan Poortman.

Finance Minister Bernard Chidzero had outlined a number of measures in line with his commitment earlier this year to end what he called 25 years of unproductive controls on the economy.

The measures include export and investment incentives and the cutting of bureacratic red tape for the import of eight commodities needed by Zimbabwean manufacturers.

Mr. Chidzero admitted that the moves had been tempered by the recent rise in oil prices because of the Gulf crisis, which he said was having a severe effect on the country's balance of payments.

He said a donor conference would be held soon to help finance a full trade liberalisation programme which would cost up to 2.4 billion U.S. dollars over the next four to five years.

Zimbabwe's economy has been tighly regulated since international economic sanctions were imposed on the country - then called Rhodesia - after a white minority government unilaterally declared independence from Britain in 1965 rather than accept black majority rule.

Kuala Lumpur (SEPT. 18) - Deputy Prime Minister Ghafar Baba said Tuesday known gas resources in Malaysia totalled about 52 trillion cubic feet and were expected to last for 100 years.

Opening a gas symposium, Ghafar said that in line with the country's energy development concept to reduce dependence on oil, ''use of gas has increased from 8.5 per cent in the past to 27.8 per cent at present.''

He said at the same time dependence on oil dropped from 87 per cent to 63 per cent.

''We are actually promoting the use of natural gas with the implementation of a project called the Peninsular Gas Utilisation programme,'' Ghafar added.

BUENOS AIRES (SEPT. 18) - A planned sale of Argentine wheat to Iran has collapsed due to a dispute over prices, officials said.

Industry experts, however, suggested the deal was killed by opposition from the United States, which feared the grain would end up in Iraq.

National Grain Board Chairman Guillermo Moore de la Serna announced late Monday that negotiations on the sale, which began 10 days ago in Teheran, had broken down over the issue of price.

Argentina was asking 80 dollars per ton for its wheat, but Teheran's top offer was 70 dollars, a source familiar with the deal said.

Other well-placed sources said the breakdown in talks could have resulted from U.S. pressures to have Argentina temporarily suspend grain shipments to Iran because it had resumed diplomatic relations with Iraq.

U.S officials told the Wall Street Journal last week they feared grain shipments to Iran might be diverted to Iraq in violation of the international trade embargo against that country for its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Argentine industry officials had acknowledged that it was virtually impossible to control the ultimate destination of wheat or other grain shipments once they arrived in Iran.

Following the outbreak of the Gulf crisis, Argentina suspended all trade with Baghdad.

It was not known how much wheat Iran was seeking to purchase in the latest negotiations. Reports said Argentina exported 1.4 million tons of wheat to Iran during the first seven months of this year, versus 390,000 tons in the first six months of 1989.

Officials said that the loss of planned wheat sales to Iran and Irak would cost the already cash-strapped Argentine economy 500 million dollars.

MOSCOW (SEPT 18) - Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Prince Saud al-Faisal, Tuesday said here he would welcome Soviet troops in his country to defend it against a possible Iraqi attack.

''The decision whether a country would deploy troops in our country is a matter which concerns each country considering such a move. We would welcome a Soviet participation,'' he said in an allusion to the deployment of U.S. and other forces in the kingdom.

Al-Faisal, who ended a two-day visit in the Soviet Union, earlier met with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and his counterpart Eduard Shevardnadze. The two countries decided Sunday to resume diplomatic relations, which were severed 52 years ago.

The Saudi minister described the normalisation of relations with Moscow as ''only a first step'' which ''will lead to stronger mutual understanding and cooperation between our two states''.

Saudi Arabia and the Soviet Union reiterated their demand for an Iraqi pullout from Kuwait, supported a political solution to the crisis and the implementation of the U.N. embargo against Iraq.

''But we all must realise that ... war has already begun. A country (Iraq) has invaded another country (Kuwait),'' al-Faisal said. He hinted that all foreign troops would pull out of his country after the end of the Gulf crisis.

The Saudi minister said he wished to preserve ''a strong and powerful Iraq'' which will be readmitted into the ''the family of Arab peoples''.

In Teheran, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Belonogov Tuesday termed Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait a ''big strategic mistake'', the Iranian News Agency Irna reported.

They added that 70,000 public transport workers went on an indefinite strike protesting police harassment and increased government taxes.

Violence erupted in Dhaka and the southern port of Chittagong when striking bus drivers tried to stop state-owned railways from operating.

Pickets clashed with police in northern Bangladesh, which was cut off from the rest of the country by road. Thousands of people were stranded at bus stations as drivers walked away from their duties heeding a call for industrial action by the Bangladesh Transport Workers Union.

BUENOS AIRES (SEPT. 18) - Argentina is sending two warships to the Gulf to join the international naval blockade of Iraq, reliable sources at the presidential palace said Tuesday.

The decision, to be formally announced later Tuesday, followed a meeting Monday between President Carlos Menem and a minister in the ousted Kuwaiti regime who requested the Argentinian forces, the sources said.

Defense Ministry sources said the destroyer Almirante Brown and the missile-carrying corvette Spiro would join the international naval force deployed in the Gulf to enforce the economic blockade of Iraq ordered by the United Nations following Baghdad's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Menem "considers it appropriate" to send a "peace-keeping force" to join the international deployment in the Gulf, said an official after meeting early Tuesday with the president.

The Foreign Ministry said Foreign Minister Domingo Cavallo would make a statement at 9:00 p.m. (2400 GMT) concerning the request for an Argentine deployment to the Gulf by Kuwaiti Water and Electricity Minister Hamud Ruqba.

Mr. Cavallo, speaking after Monday's meeting with Mr. Ruqba, said Mr. Menem had also received a letter from Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak asking that Argentina participate in the Gulf effort.

"There was a verbal request not only from the Kuwaiti minister, but from several Arab governments as well as other countries which are contributing to the multinational force that is attempting to ensure the respect of the economic blockade of Iraq," he told reporters.

Mr. Cavallo and Defense Minister Humberto Romero were to inform the foreign relations and defense committees of Congress of the decision to deploy Argentine forces later in the day, officials said.

Under Argentina's constitution, the president has the authority to dispatch military forces to participate in international peace-keeping missions, but he must get the approval of Congress if the forces are to engage in combat.

The Almirante Brown and Spiro are West German-designed ships that are equipped to operate in areas contaminated by radioactivity and chemical weapons.

They are currently stationed at Puerto Belgrano, Argentina's largest naval base located some 700 kilometers (420 miles) southwest of Buenos Aires, and would take about 30 days to reach the Gulf, naval experts said.

Defense Ministry sources said the ships were already prepared to leave for the Gulf.

The 126-meter (416-foot), 3,600 tonne Almirante Brown is armed with torpedos, Exocet MM-40 anti-ship missiles and Aspide anti-aircraft missiles and carries two helicopters.

The Spiro, 91 meters (300 feet) long and 1,700 tonnes, also carries Exocets, anti-aircraft missiles, torpedos and a helicopter. The two ships are considered among the most advanced in Argetina's Navy.

It would be the first deployment of Argentinian military forces outside the Western hemisphere.

In its only international deployment to date, Buenos Aires sent two destroyers to the Caribbean in 1962 to join a U.S.-imposed naval blockade of Cuba at the time of the Cuban missile crisis.

TEHERAN (SEPT. 18) - Syrian President Hafez al-Assad is to arrive here Saturday to start a three-day official visit at the invitation of President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, the Iranian news agency IRNA reported Tuesday.

It will be Mr. Assad's first visit to Iran since the country's Islamic Revolution in 1979.

An informed Iranian source on Monday said Iran and Syria could discuss the possible deployment of Iranian troops in Saudi Arabia, where Arab and Western forces are now stationed to help defend the kingdom against a possible attack by Iraq.

Iran and Syria have both condemned the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2. Iran in addition has spoken strongly against the burgeoning U.S. military NICOSIA (SEPT 18) - The Iraqi Red Crescent on Tuesday said it was prepared to receive food and medicine for foreign nationals.

It could be accepted either directly from charitable groups or through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) or the League of Red Crescent Associations.

A spokesman for the Red Crescent, the equivalent of the Red Cross in Islamic countries, told the Iraqi News Agency that it was ready "to coordinate and collaborate" with international agencies "in order to ease the difficulties faced by foreigners in Iraq and to assure them supplies of food and medicine."

Iraq has been hit with sweeping United Nations trade sanctions because of its August 2 invasion of Kuwait, with Iraqi authorities warning that foreigners in the country could also suffer food shortages caused by the embargo.

"Depriving people of food and medicine is a flagrant violation of international law," the Red Crescent spokesman charged in an INA dispatch received here.

The United Nations Security Council last week approved a resolution calling for food and medicine to be transported and distrubuted to foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait by the ICRC, the United Nations or other organizations under their control.

Iraq rejected the resolution as "humiliating and unjust."

BUDAPEST (SEPT. 18) - A leader of the Hungarian opposition on Tuesday

lambasted the conservative government of Joszef Antall for further damaging an economy weakened by decades of communism, but Mr. Antall insisted that things were improving.

The bitter exchange was typical of the tone that is increasingly being heard in Hungary as the date approaches for local elections on September 30. These are seen as the first test of support for the new government since the April legislatives which brought the ouster of the communists.

Peter Toelgyessy, the leader of the Alliance of Free Democrats parliamentary group, charged that the Hungarian people had seen no improvement in their lives since last spring, when the first free elections in half a century propelled Mr. Antall to power.

He said inflation had increased, industrial production had decreased and cronyism was rife.

He accused the conservative government of presenting to parliament bills that had, for the most part, been prepared under the communist regime.

Mr. Antall called his views "unjust and unhelpful" and insisted that economic performance had improved, increasing the confidence of foreign investors.

BRUSSELS (SEPT 18) - The European Economic Community will next year have to pay out an extra 1.75 billion ECUs (2.33 billion dollars) to cover the costs of German unification and the Gulf crisis, reliable sources close to the European Commission said here Tuesday.

The commission, or executive arm of the EEC, will on Wednesday ask the 12 member nations to revise next year's budget provisions accordingly, the sources told Agence France-Presse.

About one billion European Currency Units (ECUs) should in 1991 enable what is now East Germany to benefit from "structural funds" under regional and social aid programmes following unification, the sources said.

Egypt, Jordan and Turkey, the three nations most economically hard-hit by the effects of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait, should receive 750 million ECUs in balance of payments support.

EEC member states should individually match this sum from their own national budgets, to enable the three countries to respect the international embargo against Iraq, according to a commission proposal.

The EEC also plans to spend about one billion ECUs to support East German agricultural production in 1991, but commission experts said it should not be necessary to change budget provisions in this respect.

Several member countries, including France, have contested the commission's view, citing massive imports of East German meat that have upset markets and forced Brussels to buy up stocks to sustain prices.

East Germany is likely to cost the EEC a total two billion ECUs a year over the next two years, but will give the community a supplementary annual income of about 1.5 million ECUs, the sources said.

The commission also plans to propose a budget increase for 1992 on a scale to be based on the anticipated economic fall-out from the Gulf crisis, they added.

The EEC has already revised its budget for last year and this, largely to provide aid for reform in East Europe.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 18) - President George Bush is backing a French call for an air embargo against Iraq, but experts warn it would entail greater risks than enforcing the naval and ground blockade already in place.

"I would be prepared to work with everybody to tie that additional knot in the sanctions," Mr. Bush said Monday after expressing support for the proposal French President Francois Mitterrand made Saturday.

Washington's support came as no surprise to observers, especially since Mr. Bush had been careful to stress the international nature of the U.S.-led military reaction against Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Even before France announced retaliatory measures against the storming by Iraqi soldiers of the French ambassador's residence in Kuwait City last week, Mr. Bush eagerly expressed his full support of any French moves.

Faced with the exorbitant cost of indefinitely maintaining tens of thousands of troops in the Gulf to counter further possible Iraqi aggression, the Bush administration has been actively seeking international support for any further effort at drawing the noose tighter around Iraq.

Secretary of State James Baker acknowledged to Congress on September 5 that air flights were getting through to Iraq in violation of the U.N.-mandated blockade, hinting at the possiblity of calling for an air embargo of that country.

The Security Council's five permanent members -- Britain, China, France, United States and Soviet Union -- began a closed meeting Monday to consider a French resolution condemning the Iraqi action against foreign embassies in Kuwait as well as the possibility of an air embargo.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Monday the U.S. view was that the countries currently involved in the naval embargo on Iraq had the right to extend the measure to air traffic to and from that country.

DHAKA (SEPT. 18) - Two students were killed and three others wounded in a spate of campus violence across Bangladesh, police said here Tuesday.

They said a student belonging to the opposition Jatiyotabadi Chhatra Dal was gunned down Monday night in southern Chittagong city in apparent retaliation for the murder of another student supporting the rival Bangladesh Chhatra League.

Three others were injured in a gunbattle overnight on the Dhaka University campus, hospital doctors said.

Six students have died in the past week in clashes between the two student organisations supporting rival opposition leaders Sheikh Hasina Wazed and Begum Khaleda Zia.

COLOGNE (SEPT. 18) - A franco-German arms concern, Euromissile, was alleged Tuesday to have supplied Iraq with the ground-to-air Roland missile system.

The West German television current affairs programme Monitor said the concern supplied Iraq with the missile system between 1982 and 1986 for five billion marks (3.2 billion dollars).

Euromissile is equally owned by the German aerospace and arms concern Messerschmitt-Boelkow-Blohm (Mbb) and the French Aerospatiale. Spokesmen for the concerns could neither confirm or deny the report.

Mbb denied an earlier report that it had supplied more than 60 combat helicopters to Iraq. A company spokesman confirmed, however, that between April 1979 and March 1990 Mbb had supplied 56 helicopters for civilian purposes.

The helicopters, 26 Bo 105s and 30 Bk 117s, had been for Vip flights and air-rescue operations, the spokesman explained.

NEW DELHI (SEPT. 18) - Almost 50,000 Indians have been airlifted home from the Gulf and India is seeking clearance to send airforce transports for thousands of others, a foreign ministry spokesman said Tuesday.

The spokesman also said two passenger ships with a combined capacity of 2,200 passengers, had been dispatched to Umm Qasr in Iraq to ferry out Indian workers fleeing Kuwait to Dubai.

Some 172,000 Indians were working in Kuwait and another 10,000 in Iraq when Baghdad invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Air India is currently running a six-to-eight plane daily shuttle to pick up Indians who have made it to Jordan from Kuwait.

By Tuesday evening the number repatriated stood at 48,575 and the government is now running a hired bus shuttle from Kuwait to the Jordanian border.

JOHANNESBURG (SEPT. 18) - Black opinion has swung strongly against conservative Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi due to the worst black-versus-black violence in South Africa's history, according to an opinion poll released here Tuesday.

The nation-wide poll conducted by Integrated Marketing Research (IMR) among 2,100 "economically active" blacks last month found that 51 per cent of those polled believed Mr. Buthelezi's Inkatha Freedom Party "was making a negative contribution to the future of South Africa".

More than 700 people had been killed since August 13 in fighting between Inkatha supporters and township residents loyal to the black nationalist African National Congress (ANC).

In a similiar study conducted in April this year, 18 per cent of the people polled were critical of Mr. Buthelezi and Inkatha, IMR said on Tuesday.

The poll showed that the ANC received the support of most blacks with 61 per cent saying the organisation was making a positive contribution to a peaceful future in South Africa.

ANC deputy president Nelson Mandela led among the politicians making positive contributions to a future South Africa with 34 per cent.

President Frederik de Klerk received the thumbs-up from 20 per cent of those polled while only one per cent of the respondents believed Mr. Buthelezi was making a positive contribution to peace in the country.

The ANC, which was unbanned by Mr. De Klerk on February 2, was representative of 70 per cent of blacks while only five per cent of those polled believed Inkatha was representative of black opinion, the survey found.

The South African Communist Party (SACP) was regarded by five per cent of the repondents as a positive force.

SAN SALVADOR (SEPT. 18) - Intense fighting broke out on the outskirts of San Salvador Tuesday between government troops and rebel forces as peace talks between the two sides drew to an unsuccessful close in Costa Rica.

The fighting began shortly after dawn in the San Ramon neighborhood in the north of the city, coinciding with the last day of peace talks in San Jose, Costa Rica, between the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) and representatives of President Alfredo Cristiani's administration.

Hopes for a cease-fire in Salvador's 10-year civil war have faded as the talks became bogged down over rebel demands that the country's military be dissolved along with the anti-government guerrilla army as part of any peace agreement.

In Tuesday's fighting, the army's elite Atlacatl anti-insurgency unit engaged an FMLN column for half an hour, with gunfire and explosions heard all over the San Ramon area.

Ground troops were backed up by a helicopter gunship, the army sources added. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

A Defense Ministry statement Tuesday said increased security measures had been ordered at all military bases around the country "because of constant threats by the FMLN to launch a second offensive."

A few weeks after they had begun peace talks with the government, the FMLN last November launched one of their bloodiest offensives, during which some 3,000 people were reportedly killed.

In other action, military sources said a police officer was killed Tuesday when a military truck was ambushed by guerrillas in Quezaltepeque, 25 kilometers (16 miles) northeast of here.

A National Guard post in nearby Guazapa also came under rebel fire with no casualties reported, another military statement said.

WASHINGTON (SEPT. 18) - The United States Tuesday expressed surprise and dismay at Jordan's hosting of an anti-American conference attended by Arab radical and guerrilla groups opposed to the U.S. military presence in the Gulf.

"We are surprised and dismayed that the conference took place and we have told the Jordanians so. We want to work with Jordan during and after the crisis in the Gulf," said State Department Margaret Tutwiler.

"Hosting the conference is very hard for us to understand," she told a press briefing.

The three-day conference, which ended in Amman Monday, brought together more than 3,000 radicals who vowed to strike against American interests everywhere if U.S. forces deployed in the Gulf launched an attack against Iraq.

Participants also threatened to trigger subversion against Arab nations, such as Egypt and the oil-rich Gulf emirates, that have aligned themselves with Washington in its bid to roll back the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Among those present were two prominent radical Palestinian leaders: George Habash of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and Nayef Hawatmeh of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

"The overt anti-Americanism displayed by the conference and the call for the overthrow of Egypt's President (Hosni) Mubarak was not surprising given the guest list of the conference.

"We are appalled by the statements that were made ... Such language is not only inflammatory, but it can have the result of inciting the kind of violence which it threatens," said Miss Tutwiler.

"It also ignores the overriding threat to peace in the region, which is Iraq's unbridled ambition evidenced by its invasion and occupation of neighboring Kuwait," she added.

Miss Tutwiler also said Jordan was now importing 40 per cent of its oil from Iraq, but noted that this was down from 90 per cent prior to the invasion of Kuwait and the resulting U.N.-mandated trade embargo against Iraq.

"Yes, there is seepage, but overall we believe the embargo is working very well," she said.

"In the case of Jordan, everyone has publicly acknowledged that they (Jordanians) are in a very difficult situation (given their economic dependence on Iraq) and they are being hit very hard by the sanctions," she said.

She noted that Amman had pledged to abide by the sanctions and that various countries, including the United States, the European Economic Community and Japan, had promised to provide financial aid to Jordan, Egypt and Turkey, the countries most advsersely affected by the imposition of the U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

Miss Tutwiler made it clear that any U.S. aid would have to be contingent on Amman's complying fully with the sanctions. Washington has provided Amman with 28 million dollars to cope with the influx of refugees who have been fleeing Iraq and Kuwait.

"We are all working to alleviate their unique and specific pain ... We hope that with the additional aid that's being given to them from various countries around the world, they (Jordanians) will no longer have a need to even use this 40 per cent (oil import)," the spokeswoman said.

BUDAPEST (SEPT 18) - Hungary and Britain decided on Tuesday to abolish visa requirements for one another's nationals from October 1, the MTI news agency said.

The decision was announced shortly after the arrival here from Prague of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on a three-day official visit.

The British premier, speaking at a dinner hosted by her Hungarian counterpart, Jozsef Antall, noted that Hungary faced economic difficulties compounded by the Gulf crisis and rising oil prices, adding that she was sure its "friends" in the West would help if asked.

As in Czechoslovakia, Mrs. Thatcher also said Britain would give reforming East European democracies its backing to become full members of the European Economic Community.

Mr. Antall said Hungary wished to play its role in European reunification and the building of the 'European house'.

Under the visa agreement announced here Hungarians will still need to apply for visas to work in Britain or if they wish to stay in the country for more than six months.

Also on Tuesday, Hungary and the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg agreed to drop visa requirements for visits of less than three months.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) KYODO - JAPAN'S HOUSEHOLD SPENDING IN JULY GREW AN INFLATION-ADJUSTED 1.3 PERCENT OVER THE SAME MONTH LAST YEAR, SHOWING CONTINUED STEADY CONSUMPTION, THE MANGEMENT AND COORDINATION AGENCY SAID TUESDAY.

THE RISE IS SMALLER THAN GROWTH IN THE PREVIOUS MONTHS, BUT THAT DOES NOT SIGNAL A DOWNTREND IN CONSUMPTION, SAID AN OFFICIAL, CITING BRISK SALES AT DEPARTMENT STORES.

THE JULY FIGURE COMPARED WITH A 2.0 PERCENT INCREASE IN JUNE AND A 3.4 PERCENT INCREASE IN MAY AVERAGE JAPANESE HOUSEHOLD CONSUMPTION IN JULY TOTALED 322,760 YEN, COMPARED WITH 291,366 YEN IN JUNE.

WAGE-EARNER HOUSEHOLDS SPENT AN AVERAGE 353,414 YEN, UP 0.8 PERCENT, WHILE CONSUMPTION BY NON-WAGE EARNING HOUSEHOLDS, SUCH AS THE SELF-EMPLOYED AND FARMERS GREW 5.1 PERCENT TO 270,114 YEN.

THE RISE IN SPENDING BY NON-WAGE EARNING HOUSEHOLDS IS ''NOT REMARKABLE,'' SAID THE OFFICIAL, SINCE IT COMPARES WITH THE DROP IN CONSUMPTION LAST YEAR AFTER THE INTRODUCTION OF THE 3 PERCENT CONSUMPTION TAX.

THE NET INCOME OF WAGE-EARNER HOUSEHOLDS ROSE 2.3 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO 627,171 YEN, A FIGURE WHICH REFLECTS THE JULY BONUSES, THE AGENCY SAID.

THEIR AVERAGE DISPOSABLE INCOME ROSE 1.9 PERCENT TO 532,404 YEN. SPENDING ON GOODS ROSE AN INFLATION-ADJUSTED 0.8 PERCENT, WHILE SERVICE-RELATED CONSUMPTION GREW 4.5 PERCENT.

CONSUMPTION WAS STRONG IN GOODS IN THE MEDICAL CATEGORY, WHICH GREW 9.3 PERCENT, LED BY DEMAND FOR HEALTH DRINKS AND EXPENSIVE EYEGLASSES.

INTERIOR DECORATION AND INSTALLATION OF NEW SYSTEM KITCHENS PULLED UP GROWTH IN THE HOUSING CATEGORY TO 4.0 PERCENT.

OTHER CATEGORIES, SUCH AS ENERGY AND WATER, TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATIONS, ENTERTAINMENT AND FOODS, ALSO SHOWED AN INCREASE IN CONSUMPTION.

IN CONTRAST, A DECLINE WAS SEEN IN EDUCATIONAL EXPENSES, WHICH DROPPED 3.2 PERCENT DUE TO LOWER TUITION FEES AND A SLIDE IN CLOTHES SPENDING, WHICH DROPPED 1.8 PERCENT DUE TO A DECLINE IN MADE-TO-ORDER SUITS.

CONSMPTION IN FURNITURE AND OTHER HOUSEHOLD DURABLES FELL 0.7 PERCENT.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) KYODO - THE NATIONAL PERSONNEL AUTHORITY HAS DECIDED TO LAUNCH A TASK FORCE TO REVIEW THE CURRENT PUBLIC SERVANT RETIREMENT AGE OF 60 WITH A VIEW TO HAVING IT ACCORD BETTER WITH THE AGING SOCIETY AND RELATED SHORTAGE OF WORK FORCE, OFFICIALS SAID TUESDAY.

THE TASK FORCE, TO BE INITIATED ON OCTOBER 1, WILL STUDY THE POSSIBILITY OF RAISING THE RETIREMENT AGE FROM THE CURRENT 60 YEARS, AS WELL AS SYSTEMS OF REEMPLOYMENT AND ALTERNATIVE EMPLOYMENT FOR THOSE WHO RETIRE, AND THE CULTIVATION OF WORK FOR THE AGED ACCORDING TO THEIR LABOR CAPACITY. IT WILL ALSO REVIEW THE SYSTEM OF PEGGING SALARY TO AGE.

BY THE YEAR 2011, ONE IN FIVE JAPANESE IS EXPECTED TO BE OVER AGE 65. WITH GROWING LONGEVITY, THE LARGER POOL OF RETIRED ELDERLY PEOPLE IS EXPECTED TO PLACE A HEAVY BURDEN ON AN INCREASINGLY LIMITED LABOR FORCE.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALREADY MADE PLANS TO GRADUALLY RAISE THE QUALIFYING AGE FOR WELFARE PENSIONS FROM THE CURRENT 60 YEARS TO 65 BY 2010.

SINCE THE GOVERNMENT WILL TAKE THE FIRST STEP TO RAISE THE MINIMUM PENSIONABLE AGE TO 61 YEARS IN FISCAL 1998, THE PERSONNEL AUTHORITY PLANS TO MAKE ARRANGEMENTS CONCERNING THE EXPANDED EMPLOYMENT OF PUBLIC SERVANTS BY 1992.

VARIOUS STUDY GROUPS WILL BE FORMED IN THE COMING YEAR TO CONDUCT THE NECESSARY RESEARCH, BUT IT ALREADY SEEMS LIKELY THAT A RAISED RETIREMENT AGE FOR PUBLIC SERVANTS WILL AFFECT RETIREMENT SYSTEMS FOR LOCAL PUBLIC SERVICE EMPLOYEES AND PRIVATE SECTOR EMPLOYEES AS WELL.

THE GOVERNMENT MUST ALSO CONFRONT EXISTING SYSTEMS WHICH ENCOURAGE EARLY RETIREMENT BEFORE AGE 60, AND THE ALLOCATION OF SPECIFIED NUMBERS OF MANAGERIAL POSTS TO OLDER EMPLOYEES.

THE SURVEY, CONDUCTED BY THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY, SHOWED THE AVERAGE LPG PRICE NATIONWIDE DURING AUGUST INCREASED 0.4 PERCENT OR 19 YEN FROM JULY PER 10 CUBIC METERS TO 4,755 YEN.

MINISTRY OFFICIALS SAID THE MARKED JUMP IN RETAIL PRICES WAS NOT DUE TO SURGING CRUDE OIL COSTS IN THE WAKE OF THE IRAQI INVASION OF KUWAIT IN EARLY AUGUST.

INSTEAD, THEY CITED A CHANGE IN THE PRICE-CALCULATION FORMULA ADOPTED BY SAUDI ARABIA IN NOVEMBER LAST YEAR, AS WELL AS RISING STORAGE COSTS.

IN AUGUST, THE LPG PRICE PER FIVE-CUBIC-METER PURCHASE ALSO ROSE 1.1 PERCENT FROM THE PRECEDING MONTH AND 11.4 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER TO AN AVERAGE 2,742 YEN, ACCORDING TO THE SURVEY.

FROM THE BEARS:

HUGH JOHNSON of FIRST ALBANY CORP. says he is currently assuming a $32-to-$34 barrel oil price "and under that assumption I think we're talking 2100, maybe 2050, [on the Dow]. If we got up to $36, of course we're talking a lower level, maybe 1900." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 9/17)

STOCK MARKET:

Take a very conservative approach, advises PAINEWEBBER's MARY FARRELL. "Even if every problem in the Middle East is solved, with still have to contend with a pretty serious domestic problem ... a recession." Farrell says she expects a slow recovery: "That spells difficult times for corporate profits." Long term, Farrell says the 1990s should be terrific for companies that sell to a global market. (FNN "World Business Update", 9/18)

"The worst thing for the market is uncertainty," says JEFFREY SHAMES, chief equity officer at MASSACHUSETTS FINANCIAL SERVICES. "It all depends on what this one guy [Saddam Hussein] thinks about while he's shaving in the morning. ... Everybody is waiting to react to something. In the process, no one is buying or selling. They're just doing a little trading on the edges." ("Investor's Daily", 9/18)

"Assuming that I'm right and we get this couple-hundred point rally in the Dow I would like to see a lot of volume, declining interest rates [and] the market broaden out, but in all honesty I don't think that will happen, and I think the market will have troubles later on," says RALPH ACAMPORA, technical analyst at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/17)

The primary trend in the Dow Industrials has remained bullish while the Transports have been bearish since October, says RICHARD EVANS of "Dow Theory Forecasts." "Should the Industrials decline below 2483 accompanied by the Transports below 861, it would indicate a bear market." However, Evans says it is more likely the market is in a secondary correction, and he looks for a bottom to form amid some trading volatility. "The market is quite likely creating on the best buying opportunities since the 1987 lows." (CNBC "World Business", 9/18)

"At this point, $35 for a barrel of oil is already figured into the [stock] market, so you can't jump to any conclusions about how the market performed," says PRUDENTIAL-BACHE analyst HILDEGARDE ZAGORSKI. "But the market still has a very cautious, defensive attitude." ("USA Today", 9/18)

"Retail [business] is very, very slow, which is what we're hearing from everybody," says HEDI REYNOLDS, managing director of OTC trading at MORGAN KEEGAN & CO. in Memphis, Tenn. She says investors are also remaining wary as they wait for economic news and developments in the Persian Gulf. (WSJ, 9/18)

"We have a market with no direction. It's trying to react to a very oversold condition and is being kicked around by confusing signals: the budget talks, the gulf crisis and economic news," says RAO CHALASANI, chief investment strategist at PRESCOTT, BALL & TURBEN. On a positive note he says, "The new lows are declining in number and that's encouraging." (NYT, 9/18)

"Nobody wants to make any commitments for fear that they're going to be wrong tomorrow," says JAMES ANDREWS, first vice president in charge of institutional trading at JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT in Philadelphia. (WSJ, 9/18)

STOCK TIPS:

"Crisis always offers a moment of opportunity," says GERALDINE WEISS at "Investment Quality Trends." She recommends a 30% position in stocks and, if the decline continues, would invest another 30% at 2095 on the Dow. If the market breaks the recent low at 2460, she sees it falling to the 2095 level before any profitable up move. Weiss likes two undervalued stocks: UNITED INDUSTRIAL and ZERO CORPORATION. (CNBC "World Business", 9/18)

"The secular trend in the defense industry is down," says analyst MICHAEL

ROSEN of SMITH BARNEY, HARRIS UPHAM & CO. On Monday he issued an avoid rating on McDONNELL DOUGLAS CORP. JULI NEIMANN, an analyst at St. Louis-based HUNTLEIGH SECURITIES, is also negative on the stock which closed at 50 yesterday. Neimann says, "We're getting back to the land of reality." She says the stock should trade in the low 40s. ("USA Today", 9/18)

While unavailability of gasoline will keep gamblers out of casinos, higher fuel prices have not hurt gambling in the past, according to LEE ISGUR, entertainment analyst at PAINEWEBBER. With gaming stocks depressed, he advises, "Get your feet wet, be there, but don't use all your resources yet." Isgur says, "Nevada is wonderful for the investor but stay away from New Jersey." He likes CIRCUS CIRCUS and GOLDEN NUGGET, and expects both to have record earnings this year and possibly next. (CNN "Business Day", 9/18)

"I'm sort of suggesting that investors not try to be heroes or not try to forecast where things are going," says HUGH JOHNSON of FIRST ALBANY CORP. "The risks are pretty high so what you do is you say, 'Let's take some steps to defend the portfolio given the fact that there is a chance of a recession and a chance of a rise in oil prices to $36 per barrel. And the way you do that is you raise a little cash in your portfolio: 40% stocks, 40% bonds, 20% cash." He says a lot of consumer products "like COKE and PEPSI are simply overvalued on an historic basis and you would move out of those stocks if you own them and you try to buy stocks which have been beaten down or undervalued, say like IBM or the telephones." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 9/17)

Despite good news from its annual meeting, NIKE stock fell 3 points to 72. "It was all good news," says FRED ANSCHEL, analyst at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. He is bullish on the stock and says that investors need not worry about a recession cutting into demand for some of Nike's high-priced sneakers. "Nike tends to focus on its higher- priced shoes in its advertising. Its bread and butter is still in sneakers priced $50 to $70." GARY JACOBSON of KIDDER PEABODY & CO. agrees that the meeting was "all right in line with expectations." He explains the drop by saying the company has spoiled Wall Street in the past. "People have come to expect positive surprises from Nike." ("USA Today", 9/18)

"When the market makes a big move and takes everything down without regard, it's time for an upgrade in quality," says JEFFREY SHAMES, chief equity officer at MASSACHUSETTS FINANCIAL SERVICES. "The winner in all of this will be natural gas. Natural gas has cleaner burning characteristics, and it's a lot cheaper. We're buying stocks in the transmission [business], as well as drillers and exploration and production people." ("Investor's Daily", 9/18)

#90261m0002 09/18/1990 ~Market Consensus Surveys

ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"The currency market is determined to take the [U.S.] dollar down," says ROBERT WHITE, manager of corporate foreign-exchange trading at FIRST INTERSTATE BANK in Los Angeles. "The investment currencies are back in vogue " says White referring to the British pound and the Canadian and Australian dollars. Interest rates are higher in all three countries, which are also oil exporters. (WSJ, 9/18)

"There is no compelling reason to buy the dollar," says ABIGAIL COOK, a corporate foreign-exchange dealer for HONGKONG & SHANGHAI BANKING CORP. DAVID WILSON, a New York vice president with GIROZENTRALE VIENNA, explains, "The [currency] market is looking for bad news" for the U.S. economy. (WSJ, 9/18)

"People are waiting for a lot of things to happen this week before committing to more dollar bashing," says JOE SABBAGH, chief currency and gold trader for EUROPEAN AMERICAN CAPITAL CORP. (WSJ, 9/18)

"In an era of a weak dollar, I think the Fed's control over what's going on [with interest rates] is very limited," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist for "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "The higher oil price and the weaker dollar makes it hard for interest rates to move down in the open market. ... They are going to have a very hard time easing and the economy is going to slither because of it. ... We need help. We have to have the Japanese and the German central banks help us ease. That's going to be hard to arrange, but I would predict that that's the way it's got to go, otherwise we won't be able to ease." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 9/17)

Expect a two-to-six month spike in inflation, says DAVID BLITZER, chief economist at STANDARD & POORS. "Inflation rates will look very fiercesome. But by next March or April, we'll be back looking at three and a half or four percent inflation." Blizter says his scenario does not depend on a drop in the price of oil, but merely that the price level out in the mid-30s. (CNBC "World Business", 9/18)

"I don't know if the market will react to the consumer price numbers at all," says MITCHELL HELD, chief financial economist at SMITH BARNEY, HARRIS UPHAM & COMPANY. "Bond traders are focusing on the Middle East and oil prices, and traders of short-term securities are looking at the budget negotiations and the Fed." Mr. Held projects that consumer prices will jump a full percentage point in August. "The numbers will have an upward bias because the Government collected the autumn apparel price figures one month earlier than usual." (NYT, 9/18)

JAMES CAPRA, a senior vice president at LEHMAN GOVERNMENT SECURITIES INC., says that trading activity in the bond market has come to a virtual standstill because investors are "too afraid to do anything." He adds, "I think the market is torn between the concern about a Middle East war, a weaker dollar, and oil prices that keep trading higher every day" vs. the potentially positive aspects of a budget- reduction compromise and the possibility that the Federal Reserve might reduce short-term interest rates. (WSJ, 9/18)

THE ECONOMY:

"We're running out of data that we could interpret in some fashion to show that maybe the economy's not so bad off," says KIM RUPERT, economist at consultants MMS INTERNATIONAL. KATHLEEN CAMILLI, chief economist at MARIA RAMIREZ CAPITAL CONSULTANTS INC., agrees and says, "The scales are tipping in the direction of a recession." ("USA Today", 9/18)

Business inventories rose 0.7% in July which is the biggest stock pile in a year, and sales fell 0.5%. "When inventories rise faster than sales, particularly when sales are in a lagging mode, it's reasonable to assume you're going to see cutbacks in manufacturing output," says ROBERT BRUSCA, the chief financial economist at NIKKO SECURITIES INTERNATIONAL INC. in New York. Mr. Brusca does not believe the high level of inventories is recessionary at this point in time. "But with evidence that retail selling is weak and that output is falling, to have inventories building is not a good sign for the economy." (NYT, 9/18)

JOAN SCHNEIDER, senior domestic economist at CONTINENTAL BANK NATIONAL TRUST & CO. in Chicago, saw "nothing truly alarming" in the July business inventory figures. "The inventory-to-sales ratio is up a little from June, but it's not out of line from the past year." (WSJ, 9/18)

"The overall tone of the political situation is that there's less and less talk of peace," says CHRISTIAN GOHLER, an energy futures trader and vice president at MERRILL LYNCH FUTURES INC. "By the end of the week we could certainly see $35 [a barrel for oil], and in a few weeks, potentially we could see $40" a barrel. (NYT, 9/18)

ROCHESTER, NY (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Rochester Telephone Corp. (NYSE: RTC) announced today that it has signed a letter of intent to acquire the DePue Telephone Co. of DePue, Ill. DePue would become Rochester Tel's 8th operating telephone company in Illinois and its 20th in the Midwest.

DePue Telephone serves about 760 access lines in a territory about 60 miles north of Bloomington. Its territory is approximately 50 miles from another Rochester Tel subsidiary, Prairie Telephone Co.

DePue also has a minority interest in Illinois' cellular Rural Service Area no. 2, which is crossed by three interstate highways. It's been ranked as one of the most attractive RSAs in the nation.

In announcing the proposed acquisition, David C. Mitchell, president of Rochester Tel's Telephone Group, said DePue is a well-managed company with a strong service commitment.

"We're pleased that DePue is joining our family of companies and strengthening our presence in Illinois," Mitchell said.

DePue's principal owners, Fred J. Rauh, Jr., and Gerald Toovey, said Rochester Tel's record of maintaining the local identity of its subsidiaries was a major factor in the sale.

"We're proud to be associated with a company with such strong service traditions," they said.

According to the letter of intent, Rochester Tel will exchange shares of its common stock for all the outstanding stock of DePue. No purchase price was disclosed.

The purchase is subject to the approval of certain regulatory agencies. When all pending transactions are completed, Rochester Tel and its 33 telephone companies will serve more than 680,000 access lines in 14 states, with nearly 18,000 in Illinois.

WEST CHESTER, PA. (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Joseph M. Segel, chairman of QVC Network Inc. (NASDAQ: QVCN) today stated that the televised-shopping company's sales trend is showing healthy growth, despite the softness in consumer demand reported by many conventional retailers.

"We believe that QVC is in a better position than traditional retailers to weather a recessionary environment," Segel said, "because during such periods consumers are not only more interested in saving money, they also spend more time at home and more time watching television. The savings offered by QVC combined with the convenience of shopping at home while watching television should continue to serve QVC well, whether the economy is expanding or contracting."

Segel also reported, "Due to the massive task of assimilating CVN, a company that was nearly twice our size, this year has been a year of transition for QVC. Because the CVN consolidation temporarily disrupted viewership and took longer to wrapup than expected, net losses this year will continue through QVC's third quarter, which ends Oct. 31, 1990. We expect to return to profitability in the fourth quarter, but it is no longer likely that fourth-quarter profits will fully offset the first nine month's losses. Therefore, it now appears probable that we will show a net loss for the full fiscal year, ending January 31, 1991."

"Since there no longer is a 'reasonable certainty' of a full-year profit, it will be necessary to reverse the $14.9 million in tax benefits recorded in the first half. That accounting adjustment will increase the third quarter's net loss, but it should not change the total tax provision for the year. It is just a matter of allocating tax benefits and provisions to the quarters in accordance with accounting rules," Segel explained.

"Although the assimilation of CVN has been more difficult than originally anticipated, the job is now essentially completed and QVC's position has been greatly enhanced. Televised shopping is becoming the most dynamic direct-marketing retail force in the 1990's, and QVC now reaches over 37 million homes, more than double the number a year ago," Segel reported.

He also said that QVC has recently implemented several sales- building strategies, including the company's own charge card, an easy- pay plan and an order-anytime policy. In addition, the company is developing more marketing-relationships with well-known celebrities, sports stars and popular authors. For example, television personality Joan Rivers recently selected QVC as the exclusive television network authorized to present her new line of fashion jewelry, which will be premiered Sept. 29 on QVC.

PALO ALTO, CALIF. (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Syntex Corp. (NYSE:SYN) said today that Syntex Animal Health, Inc., of West Des Moines, Iowa, has received approval from the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to market Synanthic(R) (oxfendazole) Bovine Dewormer Suspensions, 22.5 percent and 9.06 percent, to treat common internal parasites in cattle.

Synanthic is expected to be available from veterinarians and distributors in about three weeks.

Synanthic is an easily administered, broad spectrum anthelmintic (deworming agent) that has been used safely and effectively in many countries for the past 10 years. It works by controlling parasites in the gastrointestinal tract of ruminate (cud-chewing) animals, including cattle, sheep and horses. Synanthic was first introduced in Ireland in 1978.

In the United States, Synanthic is approved for marketing as an anthelmintic treatment for cattle. Another form of the compound, Benzelmin(R) (oxfendazole), was approved for marketing by the FDA in May 1979 as an anthelmintic for horses.

Compared to currently available products, Synanthic offers several advantages to livestock operators, who spend about $135 million annually on cattle anthelmintics.

One major advantage of Synanthic is its efficacy against both the developing and inhibited (dormant) forms of a prevalent, difficult-to-control cattle stomach worm called Ostertagia ostertagi. Cattle usually ingest this parasite and others when grazing.

While many currently available anthelmintics are effective against the developing form of Ostertagia, they are ineffective against its inhibited form at standard dose rates. Synanthic, however, is safe and effective against both the developing and inhibited forms of Ostertagia -- and many other parasites -- at standard dose rates.

Syntex Animal Health, Inc. is the United States marketing organization of Syntex Agribusiness, Inc., the animal health unit of Syntex Corp. The corporation is an international health care company involved in the research, development, manufacture and marketing of human and animal pharmaceutical products and medical diagnostic systems.

WILMINGTON, Del. (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Du Pont (NYSE: DD) today said it will contribute $20,000 to the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control (DNREC) to co-sponsor a statewide beach cleanup on Saturday, Sept. 29.

Delaware's fourth annual "Get the Drift and Bag It" beach cleanup is part of DNREC's program to enlist public support to find solutions to the marine litter problem.

The grant will fund promotional and educational support for the cleanup. This is the second year Du Pont has co-sponsored the event.

Plastics collected from the cleanup will be separated from other trash and made into picnic tables or park benches, which will be donated to DNREC for placement throughout the state.

During the cleanup last September, about 2,000 volunteers collected more than 10,000 pounds of trash along beaches from Battery Park to Fenwick Island State Park. The 400 participating Du Pont employees and their families separated the plastics which the company had recycled into park benches that were presented to the state on Earth Day for Delaware parklands.

"Support of Delaware's beach cleanup is one of Du Pont's many commitments to enhancing our environment," said Edwin H. Clark II, DNREC secretary.

"This grant will increase public awareness of marine litter problems through the cleanup. We appreciate Du Pont's financial contribution to this effort," Clark said.

"The success of this partnership demonstrates the commitment of our employees and the citizens of Delaware to help rid our shoreline of litter," said Archie W. Dunham, group vice president - polymer products. "This leadership to find solutions to the solid waste problem can serve as a model for similar programs throughout the country."

LONDON (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Kingfisher plc today announced its results for the six months ended Aug. 4, 1990.

B&Q -- In a depressed market, B&Q has exploited seasonal opportunities and controlled costs to produce an excellent result for the first half. Sales increased by 11.7 percent to 473 million pounds. Retail space increased to 10.7 million square feet as a result of 12 new stores (including three relocations). The move to central distribution is progressing to plan.

Comet -- In an extremely challenging market, Comet achieved a creditable trading performance. Sales increased by 10.2 percent to 212 million pounds. Comet increased market share again, supported by good growth in brown goods.

Superdrug performed very well in the first half, reporting retail profits up 19 percent on last year. Sales increased by 23.6 percent to 249 million pounds. It is now more than three years since Superdrug was acquired by Kingfisher and since then the number of stores has more than doubled to 649.

Woolworths achieved a strong sales performance, increasing sales by 10.1 percent to 443 million pounds on 2 percent less footage. This, together with tight cost control, enabled Woolworths virtually to break even in the first half, for the first time in recent history. All of Woolworths' core business units achieved growing or stable market shares in the period.

Chartwell Land's performance has been restrained by the serious recession in the retail property market. This is clearly not a short- term market downturn and earnings from this sector are likely to be subdued for some time.

However, the exposure to unlet or unfunded property development has been tightly controlled over the last year. The company expects the recession to provide opportunities for property companies with the strength of Chartwell Land to position themselves strongly for the upturn when it comes.

WEST PALM BEACH, FL (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Jewelmasters, Inc. (AMEX: JEM) today reported results for the second fiscal quarter ended Aug. 4, 1990.

Net sales for the quarter were $15,169,290 compared to $10,759,243 in the year-ago period. The net loss of $(626,681), or $(0.32) per share, compares to a net loss of $(864,685), or $(0.44) per share, last year.

For the 26 weeks ended Aug. 4, 1990, Jewelmasters reported net sales of $24,713,843 compared to $24,974,094 in the year-ago period. The Company had a net loss of $(1,236,093), or $(0.63) per share, for the 26 weeks versus a net loss of $(994,655), or $(0.50) last year.

Jewelmasters' business is seasonal and the company typically generates the major part of its sales and earnings during the fourth quarter, which includes the Christmas selling season.

The increase in net sales for the second quarter resulted from the company's participation in going-out-of-business sales at the Bonwit Teller and Garfinckels department store chains and increased sales in one department in a store closed by J.W. Robinson. Comparable department sales, consisting of 53 departments, decreased four percent for the second quarter.

Cost of sales, including buying and occupancy expenses, as a percentage of net sales increased over the second quarter last year. This was primarily due to the high markdowns incurred for sales during the Bonwit Teller and Garfinckels going-out-of-business sales, and additional promotional efforts during the closing of the company's leased fine jewelry departments in the Woodward and Lothrop and John Wanamaker chains.

Josef Barr, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "The loss for the quarter was larger than expected due to the higher level of markdowns taken to reduce inventory, especially in connection with the closing of the Woodward and Lothrop and Jon Wanamaker departments. This inventory reduction, plus the reductions achieved from the additional volume generated from the going-out-of-business sales at Bonwit Teller and Garfinckels, has allowed us to reduce inventory levels greater than expected. We are in a solid position now with inventories to match planned volume for the immediate future."

During the second quarter, Jewelmasters announced plans to open three fine jewelry stores in outlet malls operated by Western Development Company in Sawgrass Mills, outside of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Franklin Mills, outside of Philadelphia, and Potomac Mills, outside of Washington, D.C. The company is making final arrangements to open a freestanding fine jewelry store in Pentagon City in Washington, D.C., comparable to the company's existing couture fine jewelry store (JEM) in Palm Beach, Fla.

Jewelmasters designs, manufactures and sells fine jewelry through leased departments in better department and specialty stores nationwide and in its JEM couture fine jewelry store in Palm Beach.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Century Park Pictures Corporation (NASDAQ: CPPC), a developer, producer and marketer of motion picture, television and pay cable entertainment shows, said today its majority-owned subsidiary, Bietak Productions, Inc., has entered into an exclusive one year contract with the Ice Capades to provide America's No. 1 ice show with live costumed characters from the highly popular "The Simpsons(TM)" television show of Fox Broadcasting. The characters will be featured performers in their own special segment of the Ice Capades 1990-91 touring show, appearing throughout both the United States and Canada.

The show will include the entire Simpson family and follows in the Ice Capades tradition of showcasing popular cartoon or movie characters. Past Ice Capades shows have included The Smurfs, Peter Pan, The Flintstones, and most recently Mattel's Barbie and Nintendo's Super Mario Brothers.

Phil Rogers, president of Century Park Pictures, said the Ice Capades pact was another in a line of lucrative appearance agreements that Bietak has secured since it acquired the rights to create live costumed characters of the Fox Broadcasting hit prime time animated cartoon show earlier this year.

"Since we acquired the Simpson rights, the demand for appearances has been phenomenal," said Rogers. Rogers noted that the Simpson demand has had a highly favorable impact on the Century Park's recent operating results.

The company recently reported record earnings of $240,739, or $.09 per share, for the fiscal third period ended June 30, 1990. This compares to a loss of $127,719, or $.06 per share, for the comparable period a year ago. Revenues for the third quarter rose 97 percent to $1,126,242, compared to revenues of $571,292 a year ago.

Since first appearing in mid-January 1990, The Simpsons has emerged as a breakaway ratings success, catapulting into the Neilsen Rating Top 10 -- generally considered by industry experts to be an exceptional performance.

Century Park Pictures is a developer, producer and marketer of entertainment properties for the motion picture, television and pay cable industries. MINNEAPOLIS ST. PAUL, (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Angeion Corporation (NASDAQ: ANGN) reported sales of $5,091,160 for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990. This represents a 78 percent increase over sales of $2,863,743 for fiscal 1989 and marks Angeion's first year of consecutive quarterly sales of more than $1 million.

Angeion reported a profit of $27,488 for fiscal 1990, as compared to a loss of $424,747 for fiscal 1989.

"Angeion has made exceptional progress this year," said Wendell King, chairman president and CEO. "We had a profitable year, despite the fact that nearly 18 percent of our net sales were spent on research and development. Many companies at our stage of development lose large sums of money each year," added King.

"We focused our major research efforts this year on the development of a catheter for use in a nonsurgical cure for arrhythmias. In August 1990, we established a subsidiary, AngeLase, to assume all responsibility for the arrhythmia effort. In fiscal 1990, we also moved closer to our target of developing a full line of accessories for the angioplasty market," said King.

Angeion noted a number of other recent accomplishments. The company's restructuring attracted outside investment interest in the arrhythmia catheter assisting in the formation of AngeLase in August 1990. Also in August, Angeion received notice that two patent applications, with broad coverage for the arrhythmia catheter technology, were allowed by the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Angeion expects to begin clinical trials of the arrhythmia catheter in fiscal 1991.

Sales for the fourth quarter ended July 31, 1990 were $1,302,989, which represents a 70 percent increase over sales of $768,149 for the same quarter of the previous fiscal year.

Minneapolis-based Angeion Corporation is a manufacturer of cardiovascular products. Its current core business is the angioplasty accessory market. Angeion's subsidiary, AngeLase, is developing a product for the nonsurgical cure of arrhythmia.

In addition to Angeion's NASDAQ listing under the symbol ANGN, Angeion is also traded on the Boston Stock Exchange under the symbol ANI.

NEW YORK, (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Noise Cancellation Technologies, Inc. (NCT) (NASDAQ: NCTI), today announced the signing of a joint development agreement with an international household appliance and consumer products manufacturer. The agreement calls for the consumer products manufacturer to provide substantial funding for the development of electronic noise and vibration cancelling systems for a variety of household appliances and other consumer equipment. The initial application for the quieting of exhaust fans is expected to enter into production in 1991.

"We feel privileged to be working with a household consumer products company of such reputation and size," said John J. McCloy II, chairman of NCT. "The integration of our technology into their wide range of products is the first time active noise and vibration attenuation techniques will be applied to the vast consumer marketplace."

NCT will use patented computer technology to quiet exhaust fans by analyzing the structure of the noise generated from the rotating blades, screws or other fan arms, predict its waveform, then generates 'anti- noise,' a sound wave exactly 180 degrees out of phase with the offending source. The original noise and the mirror image 'anti-noise,' projected via speakers located near the fan, effectively cancel each other.

Noise Cancellation Technologies, Inc., is a world leader in active noise and vibration abatement. NCT is headquartered in New York City with domestic research and development facilities in Linthicum, Md., and an overseas facility in Cambridge, United Kingdom.

PRINCETON, NJ (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - The 118 member hospitals of the New Jersey Hospital Association (NJHA), plus 39 other hospitals in the Philadelphia area, soon will be able to join a feature-rich private long-distance network while saving on their bills for telecommunications services.

Under terms of three-year contracts signed with AT&T on Friday, NJHA's group-purchasing division will serve as the volume-discount agent for AT&T Software Defined Network Service and AT&T Long Distance Service.

NJHA said it expects the volume-purchase plan to help save member hospitals more than $1 million a year compared with what they could expect to spend if they were to obtain the services individually. Revenue to AT&T is projected to exceed $25 million over the length of the contracts.

NJHA entered into the contracts through its wholly owned subsidiary, the Center for Health Affairs. NJHA serves as a statewide advocate for all New Jersey hospitals and the patients they serve.

"We evaluated bids from a number of vendors and selected AT&T because it offered the best solutions at the best prices available," said NJHA President Louis P. Scibetta.

"The hospital association challenged us to do our best to win these contracts " said AT&T Sales Vice President Daniel R. Hesse. "We're happy we could put together a package that gives participating hospitals AT&T quality and service in a volume-pricing arrangement they couldn't get individually."

AT&T Software Defined Network Service is a switched-network service that gives users the appearance and features of a private, dedicated network, including the ability to customize calling authorizations to individual telephones; call accounting by departmental codes; calling on the network from remote locations such as public phones or users' homes, and low-speed data and image transmissions.

The service will be used to set up a telecommunications network of participating New Jersey and Philadelphia-area hospitals; the hospitals' network will allow them to save a projected 25 to 30 percent on their bills for the business long-distance calls they make.

"New Jersey hospitals spend about $3.6 million a year on long- distance telephone costs," said Robert Pernal, NJHA assistant director of contract services for group purchasing. "If 100 member hospitals participate in this program, they together could save as much as $1 million annually."

AT&T Long Distance Service will be used for operator-assisted calling from patients' rooms via AT&T operators and for direct-dial calling, including credit-card calling, from public telephones in NJHA member hospitals.

AT&T will provide hospitals with stickers and information cards for bedside phones to let patients and their families know that AT&T is the long-distance carrier being used.

NJHA also is now testing use of AT&T MAIL(A) as an electronic- messaging capability between hospitals.

INDIANAPOLIS (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Merchants National Corporation (NASDAQ: MCHN) announced today that it plans to make a $35 million provision for losses in the third quarter. It is estimated that this provision will give the corporation over 100 percent reserve coverage of its nonperforming loans at Sept. 30, 1990. The allowance for credit losses at quarter-end will be in excess of 2 percent of total loans.

"This will mark the fourth consecutive quarter we have reported lower-than-expected earnings and we want it to be our last," stated Otto N. Frenzel III, chairman and chief executive officer. "Merchants' core operating earnings are strong and continue to track on plan. However, weakness in midwest real estate markets has substantially exceeded our expectations. We believe that continued deterioration in these markets during the third quarter necessitates the provision announced today. This provision reflects unforeseen developments that have occurred during the third quarter."

Merchants expects that the provision announced today will result in a loss for the third quarter, but further expects that earnings will be restored in the fourth quarter. The principal weakness in Merchants' loan portfolio relates to its commercial real estate loans. Merchants has no loans to lesser developed countries.

In a separate action, the board of directors of Merchants National Corporation today declared a normal quarterly dividend of $.30 per share for the fourth quarter, payable Dec. 21, 1990 to shareholders of record Nov. 30, 1990.

SAN FRANCISCO (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola's (NYSE: MOT) Microprocessor Products Group today announced its 68040 (040) microprocessor is the central processor engine for four new computers from NeXT Computer Inc. (Redwood City, Calif.). The 040 will provide NeXT customers with a performance increase of three to ten times the original 68030-based NeXT(TM) Computer System while retaining 100 percent software compatibility with applications developed for the previous system.

Motorola's Digital Signal Processor (DSP) Operation also announced today that its DSP56001 will provide key multimedia features for the new computers from NeXT, just as it did for the previous NeXT system. The 56001 brings voice synthesis and digital audio to mainstream software running on the NeXT platform. The 56001 also lays the foundation for future software-based facsimile and modem capabilities as well as voice recognition development. Running at 12.5 million instruction per second (MIPS), the 56001 acts as an auxiliary processor to Motorola's 68040 handling real-time oriented applications.

"The 68040 represents a major advance in microprocessor performance," said Murray A. Goldman, senior vice president and general manager of Motorola's Microprocessor and Memory Technology Group. "And the 040's unprecedented level of functionality allows computers like the NeXT system to be built."

"The 56001 brings life-like qualities to the NeXT system," said Bryant Wilder, operations manager of DSP for Motorola. "The 56001's basic quality is that it makes computers dramatically more effective communication tools."

"Over the last ten years, Motorola has continually demonstrated remarkable innovation in their microprocessor technology," said Rich Page, vice president of engineering for NeXT. "Packing an 040 and 56001 on our motherboard gives our customers a tremendous system of performance and features."

The 68040 With performance rated at 15-20 (MIPS) and 2.0 - 3.5 million floating-point operations per second (MFLOPS), the 040 is the most powerful single chip microprocessor on the market today. Featuring a completely new implementation of the 68000 architecture, it remains 100 percent software compatible with its other family members.

The 040 is widely regarded as the industry's most sophisticated single-chip microprocessor, incorporating more than 1.2 million transistors, almost four times the number in the 68030.

Implemented in Motorola's 0.8-micron high-performance complementary metal-oxide semiconductor (HCMOS) process, the 040 designers were able to incorporate on-chip an integer unit, floating-point unit, two memory management units, data and instruction caches. Performing up to 14 operations simultaneously (e.g., data moves, add, subtract), the 040 has architectural parallelism higher than any other commercial microprocessor.

The 56001 The 56001 provides the basis for on-board data communications (e.g., fax and modem) and sound synthesis (e.g., voice mail, voice annotated files, and high-fidelity audio). It creates CD-quality sound because its architecture can generate up to 144 decibels of dynamic range. Acting as a facsimile/modem processor, the 56001 can modulate incoming and outgoing data signals at rates comparable to a V.32 modem.

With a 56001 included on the mother board of all NeXT computers, independent software developers have been given a unique opportunity to build applications that communicate to the user in multiple dimensions. For example, the 56001 adds capabilities such as voice or sound recording, storage and playback within a document. These "sound bites" are usually annotated by a "lips" icon.

With the 56001 in the NeXT Computer, blind users can listen to voice translations of a document on-screen; multinational companies can translate and route documents to foreign branch offices; and advertising agencies can create on-screen audio-visual storyboards.

Motorola's Microprocessor Products Group (Austin, Texas) includes the High End Microprocessor Division, the Microcontroller Division and the Digital Signal Processor Operation. The group has established a number of industry standard architectures, including the 68000 and 88000 family of microprocessors, the 68HC05, 68HC11 and 68300 microcontrollers, and the 56000 and 96000 family of digital signal processors. Motorola is the largest and broadest supplier of semiconductors in North America, with a balanced portfolio of over 50,000 devices.

He remarked, "The fiscal year started on a strong note with a 76 percent gain in earnings for the first quarter. CLEVELAND (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Sales and earnings of LESCO, Inc. (NASDAQ: LSCO) in the third quarter ended Aug. 31, 1990, were the best for any third quarter in the company's history and were substantially ahead of last year's record quarter, it was announced today by James I. FitzGibbon, chairman and chief executive officer.

Net income of $1,162,200, or 28 cents a share, was 54 percent greater than the year-ago earnings of $753,500, or 18 cents a share. Sales increased 18 percent to $32,765,100 from $27,760,300 in the prior year's third quarter.

"The record results for the third quarter are particularly gratifying because of the substantial improvement over the prior year's third quarter which was a very strong period and a record quarter," FitzGibbon said. "Our second quarter this year also established record sales and earnings. Taken together the two periods reflect the benefits of capital investments which have broadened our product line and increased the capacity, productivity and efficiency of our nationwide marketing and manufacturing activities."

Each of the company's major product categories contributed to the improvement in the third quarter, bolstered by the continuing success of the traditional LESCO Sales Truck program and the rapid progress of the more recently established Service Centers, which focus on the needs of the professional lawn care operator and landscaper.

"We are on target with our program to add new service centers. Our capacity to supply an increasing number of these units was substantially improved with the opening of a new and much larger fertilizer production plant located in Martins Ferry, Ohio," FitzGibbon said. He added that the plant has sufficient capacity to meet the company's fertilizer needs well into this decade.

For the nine months ended Aug. 31, net income was $1,646,700, or 40 cents a share, on increased sales of $83,614,500. In the year-ago nine months, sales were $73,281,600 and the company had a loss of $184,400, or five cents a share.

LESCO, headquartered in Cleveland, operates a fleet of tractor- trailer sales trucks which services golf courses nationwide, and regional service centers which supply the professional lawn care operator and landscaper. The company produces the vast majority of the fertilizers, turf and horticultural control products and turf care equipment sold through the trucks, service centers, conventional sales representatives and telemarketing.

CHICAGO, (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Two solar-powered racing car teams from the University of Michigan and University of Maryland will each receive a $15,000 grant from Amoco Corporation to help finance their entries in the World Solar Challenge in Australia in November.

The two grants were announced today by Lawrason D. Thomas, executive vice president of Amoco. He personally presented the Michigan check to his alma mater during a dinner on campus for faculty and Amoco Foundation recipients.

The Maryland check will be presented by John Corsi, president and chief executive of Solarex, a wholly owned Amoco subsidiary. Solarex provided solar cells manufactured by the company's Rockville, Md., plant for the Maryland car.

The Michigan and Maryland cars placed first and third respectively in the 1,641-mile race from Florida to Michigan in July, earning them places in the worldwide competition in Australia. The race cars were built by the student teams.

"We are very impressed with the technical, business, and leadership skills that team members have developed as a result of this project," Thomas said.

"Amoco has a strong interest in encouraging young people to enter the scientific disciplines -- the areas where corporations such as ours are concerned about finding enough technically educated men and women to fill the jobs that will be open.

"These talented students," Thomas said, "are facing the challenge of how to provide for some of the world's energy needs in the years ahead. We need more like them with education, vision and dedication to tackle this difficult job."

Thomas wished both race car teams good luck in Australia, noting there wouldn't be any losers because the experience will benefit all participants.

MIAMI (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines announced today that agreement had been reached between itself, Continental Holdings, Inc. (formerly Texas Air Corp.), and the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., which assures full payment of the retirement benefits that have been earned by Eastern's employees and fully resolves Eastern's unfunded pension plan liabilities. The agreement is subject to approval by the bankruptcy court overseeing Eastern's Chapter 11 status.

Responsibility for payment of Eastern employee retirement benefits will be assumed by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp. (PBGC), the agency that oversees the nation's private retirement plans. Eastern will continue to administer the plans on an interim basis.

The agreement signed today also provides that the PBGC will act promptly to terminate Eastern's pension plans and designates the PBGC as successor trustee of each of the plans.

The settlement calls for Continental Holdings to make the $80.5 million payment currently due the pension funds, (earlier estimated at $95 million), and Eastern will make a $30 million payment from its $1 billion escrow accounts, including approximately $8 million in October and the remainder on Jan. 15, 1991.

Under the terms of the agreement, Continental Holdings commits to collateralize future installment payments to the PBGC which in the aggregate will cover the net liabilities assumed by the agency. Additionally, the PBGC shall have an allowed claim of $565 million against the Eastern bankruptcy estate as a general unsecured creditor. Continental will be allowed a similar unsecured claim of $71 million for payments made previously to the pension plans.

Martin R. Shugrue, court-appointed Trustee at Eastern, described the settlement as "very satisfactory."

"It accomplishes our primary objective of guaranteeing the retirement benefits earned by our employees," Shugrue said. "Further, elimination of any future liability for funding pension benefits and agreement on the amount of the PBGC claim against the Eastern estate are major milestones on the way to reorganization of Eastern under Chapter 11.

ATLANTA (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Fisher Restaurant Systems (NASDAQ: FBUS) announced today that it has signed an amendment to its contract with Denny's Inc. of Irvine, Calif., which operates 981 company-owned units nationwide. This amendment provides for the continuation of the implementation of the Fisher Restaurant System in Denny's company-owned stores. The original contract, which was signed in June of 1989, called for the installation of 300 systems over a 30-month period. The contract was fulfilled when the 300th system was installed in the 13th month of the time period allowed, and installations are continuing at the rate of 20 to 30 systems per month.

Charlotte Krause, director of Restaurant Systems for Denny's, said: "This project has been a very successful one for Denny's. The Fisher System has increased the productivity of our store managers. Working with Fisher and IBM, we have been able to install and service systems all over the country smoothly and efficiently."

The Fisher Restaurant System, which operates on the IBM Personal System/2(R), performs basic timekeeping functions, complete order entry, remote order printing, guest check preparation, server checkout, and food costing. Denny's has direct communications with each store via modems and can receive information at its corporate office from each store every day. In addition, Denny's has written some of its own applications which operate concurrently with the Fisher software.

Larry Fisher, president of Fisher Restaurant Systems, said: "The outstanding success we have had with Denny's is largely due to three factors. First, the top management at Denny's has supported the project from its inception, realizing the significant benefits which can be gained from an in-store computer-based POS system. Second, our product offers both the functionality and the open-ended architecture necessary to meet today's demands and tomorrow's requirements. Third, the preparation by Charlotte and her team made each installation a routine, orderly process for Denny's and for us. If that had not been the case, installing 300 systems in just over a year would not have been possible. We look forward to the continuation of the relationship and to the installation of the Fisher System in every Denny's

FORT WORTH, TX (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Team Bank, as Trustee of the San Juan Basin Royalty Trust (NYSE: SJT), today declared there would be no cash distribution to the holders of its units of beneficial interest of record on Sept. 28, 1990.

Production expenses for the month of September exceeded revenues by approximately $9,600 due to decreased sales caused by a plant shutdown and the low sales price of natural gas. Production expenses in May, June, July and August exceeded revenues by approximately $2,577,900, resulting in a cumulative excess of $2,587,500. The Trust's portion of this excess is approximately $1,943,000.

Capital costs totaled approximately $1,493,000 for the month. Production for the properties from which the royalty was carved totaled approximately 1,077,600 Mcf. The average gas price was $1.26 per Mcf.

In accordance with the Royalty Conveyance, the excess of expenses over income must be recovered from subsequent months' royalty income. Southland Royalty Co. has advised the Trustee that royalty income for the next several months may be negative or negligible due to the anticipated drilling of additional coal seam gas wells, as well as the low seasonal demand for natural gas and the seasonally depressed spot market prices.

NEW YORK (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - VeriFone Inc. (NASDAQ: VFIC) and PBS National Datacast Inc., a subsidiary of the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS), today announced an agreement to provide VeriCast, a new offering that enables retail merchants to receive faster, more economical credit card authorizations via local database access facilitated by television airwaves. The agreement was announced here at the American Bankers Association (ABA) National Bankcard Convention. VeriCast is currently available on a pilot basis and is scheduled for commercial availability in the United States in the first quarter of 1991.

The VeriFone-PBS announcement follows the announcement last June by Data Broadcasting Technologies Inc. (DBTI), a subsidiary of Financial News Network Inc., of a five-year agreement with VeriFone to provide vertical banking interval (VBI) data receivers for the delivery of VeriCast. An Efficient, Cost-effective Alternative

Today, the majority of merchants perform credit card authorization using standard dial-up communications. Due to response time and cost factors, dial-up local access may not be feasible for retail environments characterized by long lines and low-value transactions -- e.g., fast food outlets, movie theaters, parking lots and garages, and gas stations in certain locations.

VeriCast can provide an efficient, cost-effective alternative by downloading files on credit cards into a local database. Many authorizations can then be processed against these local files, thereby increasing the speed and reducing the cost of the transactions.

"VeriCast is a significant addition to VeriFone's family of value-added communications products, which are designed to make Transaction Automation feasible and affordable for merchants who may not even accept credit cards today," said Ashok Narasimhan, vice president of market and product development at VeriFone. "Moreover, VeriCast illustrates VeriFone's commitment to provide our customers with a range of new communications options for expanding existing markets and creating new markets. For niche retailers with 500 or more locations, VeriCast is designed to make credit card transactions as fast as cash transactions and completely cost-justified. Private-label cards and check guarantee represent other markets of opportunity due to the ready accessibility of the files." Strategic Partners

"We are pleased that VeriFone has chosen us as their broadcast partner for VeriCast," said Neil Mahrer, chief executive officer of PBS National Datacast. "The synergy of this team will serve as a powerful force in extending the boundaries of the Transaction Automation industry."

VeriCast incoroporates the data delivery technology of PBS National Datacast, the first commercially available point-to-multipoint service utilizing the vertical banking interval (VBI). The blank portion of television signals, VBI provides the equivalent of 10 9600-baud data channels, with a high degree of error detection and correction. As a result, large credit card files can be downloaded to numerous retail locations concurrently with speed and accuracy. The merchant's database of card information is updated daily to ensure correct authorization while significantly reducing transaction response time and cost.

"VeriCast is a prime example of the Fourth Wave of Computing. We are moving the 'point of power' closer to the end user, who may not even know that he or she is using a computer," Narasimhan added. How VeriCast Works

VeriCast uses the same technology as closed-captioning, a method that allows the hearing-impaired to watch television with subtitles. VeriCast users will be able to receive the VBI signal through a cable television connection or a special, low-cost antenna.

Credit card information is sent over a network line to PBS, where it is processed and encoded in the VBI of PBS's program schedule. With the use of satellites, the video signal is broadcast to local television stations, where the information is associated with the local PBS signal. At the merchant's location, a VeriCast VBI data receiver captures, decodes and stores the information. A VeriFone Transaction Automation system then processes credit card transactions against the file, which may reside in the store or at a central location for access by multiple stores in the same area. The VBI signal is transmitted to all locations that receive PBS programming and is priced by the broadcast hour. Consequently, VeriCast should be most cost-effective for customers with 500 or more locations, who are spending at least $50 per month on dial-up communications. Price and Availability

Customers will have multiple options for acquiring VeriCast. They may purchase the VBI data receivers and lease the VBI communications channel or lease the entire package, thereby eliminating the need for capital expenditures. Customers interested in launching pilot programs may qualify for special rates. VeriFone should be contacted directly for all VeriCast pricing information.

VeriCast is currently availale for pilots. VeriFone expects to make it generally available in the United States in the first quarter of 1991. The Companies

VeriFone, based in Redwood City, Calif., is a leading supplier of Transaction Automation systems used to deliver payment processing and other financial services to the retail and petroleum industries worldwide. In addition, VeriFone is developing new market segments for Transaction Automation, such as fast food, health care and government. The company has 30 offices located throughout North America and in London; Paris; Madrid; the Hague; Sydney; Taipei; Singapore; and Bangalore, India. VeriFone has shipped more than 1.5 million Transaction Automation systems to date.

The National Datacast service has a variety of applications, including interactive video for education, sports, advertising and TV games, software distribution and computer-to-computer communications.

Data Broadcasting Technologies Inc., a Fairfax, Va.-based subsidiary of Financial News Network Inc. (NASDAQ: FNNI), is a leading developer and supplier of VBI data receiver technology. According to Eckardt C. Beck, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Air & Water Technologies, "the ability to transition the company from a leveraged buyout to investment grade credit in just over three years is a tribute to the operating managers and employees of the company. ALPHARETTA, GA (SEPT. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Digital Communications Assocates Inc. (NYSE: DCA) today announced it has begun shipping IRMA WorkStation for Windows -- new software for a wide variety of communications between personal computers (PCs) using Microsoft Windows 3.0 and mainframe or mini-computers.

"IRMA WorkStation for Windows is an important connectivity tool for the Windows environment where access to mainframe or mini-computer data is required," said Jerry Buran, vice president of DCA's PC Communications Products.

IRMA WorkStation for Windows offers users a variety of connectivity schemes for PCs communicating with an IBM 3270 mainframe (synchronous communications), including direct connections over coaxial cable and remote connections over telephone lines. IRMA WorkStation for Windows supports five concurrent 3270 terminal and printer emulation sessions.

DALLAS (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - UtiliCorp United (NYSE: UCU) today announced that it expects declines in third quarter net income and primary earnings per common share compared with the 1989 period.

The company noted that it is on target to achieve record results for 1990 provided that it receives adequate electric rate relief in a pending request at its Missouri Public Service division. A decision is expected in early October.

UtiliCorp also announced that it filed applications with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and various state regulatory agencies to obtain approval to issue up to 4,000,000 shares of common stock through a public offering and to implement a $250 million medium-term note program. UtiliCorp common stock closed on Sept. 14, 1990 at $18 per share.

Net proceeds of the financings will be used to reduce short-term debt incurred as a result of capital expenditures at Missouri Public Service and for other capital and acquisition-related expenditures.

For the third quarter ending Sept. 30, 1990, UtiliCorp expects net income of $10.2 million, compared to $11.3 million in the 1989 period, and primary earnings per share are estimated to be $.35, compared with $.45 in last year's quarter. Operating revenues are estimated at $154 million, versus $140 million in the prior third period.

Average common shares outstanding increased from 20.8 million in last year's third quarter to 23.5 million in this year's period. The increase is primarily due to a public offering of two million new shares in December 1989.

For the nine-month period this year, net income is expected to be $37.9 million and earnings per share are projected at $1.38, compared to net income of $34.4 million and earnings per share of $1.48 in the same period last year. Operating revenues for the first nine months of this year are expected to be $582 million, versus $495 million in last year's nine-month period. UtiliCorp Chairman and President Richard C. Green Jr. attributed the decline in third quarter results to the need for electric rate relief at Missouri Public Service. UtiliCorp is seeking a rate increase of $25.5 million annually, primarily to pay for the costs of an extensive rebuild at the company's Sibley Generating Station. The company also is seeking a gas rate increase of $4.7 million annually with a decision expected in January 1991.

Green noted that a combination of adequate rate relief and implementation of cost cutting and other efficiencies at UtiliCorp's regulated utility operations should help the company achieve a record year.

UtiliCorp's PSI subsidiary is expected to contribute approximately 23 percent of UtiliCorp's total net income this year. PSI contributed $5.3 million or 11 percent of total UtiliCorp net income in 1989.

"PSI has become a substantial contributor to UtiliCorp's bottom line," Green said. "It's a success because five years ago PSI's management recognized the opportunities that were about to be created by deregulation of the natural gas industry."

PSI recently took an additional step to enhance its gas supply base. It has signed a letter of intent to acquire the Elk City Natural Gas Gathering and Processing facilities located in western Oklahoma for approximately $30 million. The system would be purchased from Valero Hydrocarbons L.P., a subsidiary operating partnership of Valero Natural Gas Partners, L.P. (NYSE: VLP). It is anticipated that the transaction will be completed in October 1990.

RICHMOND, Va. (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Investors Financial Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: INVF) ("Investors"), the parent company of Investors Savings Bank announced today that Robert G. Butcher, Jr., Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of both Investors Financial Corporation and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Investors Savings Bank, has resigned from both positions effective by the end of 1990. Mr. Butcher, an attorney, has been Chairman of the Board since the founding of the company in 1974. He became the full-time Chief Executive Officer of the company on January 1, 1981. He had been a partner in the law firm of Browder, Russell, Morris & Butcher prior to assuming the CEO role at Investors.

Mr. Butcher made the following statement: "It goes without saying that I have strong emotional ties to and remain a significant shareholder of Investors.

We have seen the company grow from one branch and capital of $1 million to the largest thrift retail franchise in Virginia with equity capital of approximately $65 million. Our strategy, prior to the passage of the new savings and loan legislation last year, had been to build a diversified financial services company with a large retail banking franchise. Changes in the law affecting the industry have been extensive and unprecedented. Investors will focus its ongoing mission as a traditional financial institution. My interest in activities which are no longer permitted because of the new legislation can best be served outside of Investors. I am convinced the company will continue to compete effectively given its new direction and mission. I remain committed to the company and will assist in any way I can to support the company through these challenging times."

W. Wardlaw Thompson, Jr., retired President of Virginia Tractor Company, will serve as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors to work with Mr. Butcher and other members of Executive Management to coordinate a smooth transition. Upon the effective date of Mr. Butcher's resignation and until a successor is appointed, Mr. Thompson will assume the responsibilities of Chairman of the Board for Investors Financial Corporation and Investors Savings Bank, with Steven C. DeLaney and Warner L. Blunt, III reporting to him as CEO's of those respective corporations. Currently, Mr. DeLaney is President of Investors Financial Corporation and Mr. Blunt is President of Investors Savings Bank.

Mr. Thompson offered the following comments on behalf of the Board of Directors:

"It is with deep regret that we accept Bob Butcher's resignation. We recognize however, that significant changes have been made in our future business strategies in the past year, particularly with regard to real estate, which is an area of particular interest for Mr. Butcher. The Board sincerely appreciates his many contributions to the company over the past fourteen years in building the company into what is now the second largest thrift institution in Virginia. Perhaps his greatest accomplishment was the assembling of an outstanding management team which we are confident will guide the company through today's challenging environment. We go forward wishing Mr. Butcher the best in future endeavors knowing that we will have his continued support."

HARRISBURG, Pa. (SEPT. 18) PR NEWSWIRE - Harsco Corp. (NYSE: HSC) today announced that its BMY-Combat Systems Division has been awarded a major U.S. Army contract for the production of the M109A6 Howitzer Improvement Program (HIP).

The contract calls for the delivery of 44 modernized M109 howitzers beginning in the spring of 1992. Initial funding of $37 million has been committed against a total contract value that could reach $74 million pending final negotiations. The contract follows two earlier awards to the division totalling just over $30 million for the purchase of long-lead time materials and to prepare for actual HIP production start-up. A follow-on production contract for additional vehicles is expected next year. Ultimately, the U.S. Army anticipates modernizing as many as 1,000 of its M109 howitzers.

Culminating over $120 million of research and development that began five years ago on the part of the U.S. government, Harsco and Harsco's industrial teammates, HIP production signals achievement of a critical U.S. Army objective, artillery modernization through upgrade. Building upon the combat tested M109, the HIP howitzer gives artillery commanders tactical and survivability advantages never before available. An integrated Automatic Fire Control system, designed and built by Honeywell Inc. (NYSE: HON), a BMY teammate under the HIP program, allows the howitzer to automatically compute firing data using on-board computers. This capability, combined with an on-board position location/navigation system, enables the vehicle to rapidly move into position, set-up, and fire in less than 60 seconds, far faster than now possible with current M109s. Additionally, cannon range has been increased by 33 percent. Type classification as the M109A6 occurred earlier this year after intensive field testing and follow-on refinement.

As prime contractor and systems integrator, the BMY-Combat Systems Division will be responsible for fabricating the M109A6's all new aluminum turret and integrating its advanced fire control and navigation systems. Refurbished and upgraded M109 chassis will be supplied to BMY from the Army's Letterkenny Depot in Chambersburg, Pa. Final assembly and delivery of completed vehicles will take place at the division's York, Pa., plant. Later stages of the program call for vehicle chassis to be refurbished by U.S. Army facilities in Europe, again using BMY- build turrets and systems integration support.

Considerable interest on the part of NATO and allied users of the M109 howitzer has been expressed in the cost-effective HIP concept. Earlier in the year the Army hosted a live-fire demonstration of HIP that drew an enthusiastic, international attendance. Declining budgets amid continuing global defense requirements distinguish HIP as an attractive means of artillery modernization.

Harsco Corp. is a diversified, international, industrial company headquartered in Camp Hill, Pa. The company's 12 divisions provide products and services for defense, industrial, commercial and construction applications from more than 270 facilities in 32 states and 15 countries.

MOSCOW (SEPT 18) TASS - PRINCE SAUD AL-FAISAL AL SAUD, THE SAUDI FOREIGN MINISTER, TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE HERE TODAY THAT THE ACCORDS REACHED IN MOSCOW TO RESUME DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES MARKED "AN IMPORTANT STEP ON THE ROAD OF DEVELOPMENT OF RELATIONS BETWEEN THE SOVIET UNION AND THE KINGDOM OF SAUDI ARABIA".

THE SAUDI PRINCE ARRIVED IN MOSCOW LAST SUNDAY FOR TALKS WITH PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV AND SOVIET FOREIGN MINISTER EDUARD SHEVARDNADZE.

DURING HIS MEETING WITH GORBACHEV ON MONDAY AND TALKS WITH SHEVARDNADZE, THE SIDES EXPRESSED THEIR MUTUAL DESIRE TO RESUME FULL DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES, INTERRUPTED 52 YEARS AGO AFTER MOSCOW RECALLED THE STAFF OF THE SOVIET DIPLOMATIC MISSION FROM RIYADH.

DURING A NEWS CONFERENCE HERE TODAY, THE SAUDI MINISTER SAID THAT HE WAS "HONOURED TO READ OUT AN ADDRESS FROM THE CUSTODIAN OF THE TWO SACRED MOSQUES TO SOVIET PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV."

"THE CUSTODIAN EXPRESSES HOPE," THE PRINCE SAID, " THAT THIS STEP WILL ENTAIL FURTHER STRENGTHENING OF MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN OUR COUNTRIES AND RELATIONS BETWEEN OUR PEOPLES WHICH CAN CONTRIBUTE TO THE WELFARE OF THE SAUDI AND SOVIET PEOPLES, BUT ALSO TO THE CAUSE OF STRENGTHENING PEACE AND SECURITY IN THE WHOLE WORLD AND THE CREATION OF A NEW WORLD ORDER ON THE BASIS OF MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING AND DEVELOPMENT OF COOPERATION BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES IN THE INTERESTS OF THEIR PEOPLES".

TOUCHING UPON THE DISCUSSION OF THE GULF CRISIS, SAUD AL- FAISAL SAID THAT THE SAUDI VIEWPOINT ON THIS VERY INTRICATE CRISIS WAS RECEIVED WITH UNDERSTANDING BY THE SOVIET SIDE.

"WE ALSO ESTABLISHED," HE SAID, "THAT THERE WAS A CERTAIN SIMILARITY IN OUR APPROACHES TO THE SOLUTION OF THIS CRISIS".

HE STRESSED THAT THE CONTACTS HE HAD IN MOSCOW SHOWED THAT THE TWO SIDES

COUNTED ON THE SETTLEMENT OF THE CRISIS BY PEACEFUL MEANS AND BELIEVE THAT ITS PEACEFUL RESOLUTION "REQUIRES THE COMPLETE FULFILLMENT OF THE RESPECTIVE U.N. SECURITY RESOLUTIONS CONCERNING IRAQ'S OCCUPATION OF KUWAIT".

"THIS, IN TURN, THE SAUDI MINISTER SAID, "FOCUSES ON THE NEED TO WITHDRAW IRAQI TROOPS AND TO RESTORE KUWAIT'S LEGITIMATE RIGHTS, I.E. TO RESTORE THE PRE-AUGUST 2 STATUS QUO".

SAUD AL-FAISAL AL-SAID TOLD JOURNALISTS THAT "THE SOVIET UNION HAD ALWAYS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE MIDDLE EAST. THE SOVIET UNION IS ALSO PLAYING A POSITIVE ROLE IN THE SOLUTION OF THE GULF CRISIS, AND WE WELCOME THIS ROLE AND SEEK TO ENCOURAGE IT".

SAUD AL-FAISAL RESOLUTELY OPPOSED ANY ATTEMPTS BY IRAQ TO LINK THE SETTLEMENT OF THE GULF CRISIS WITH THE SOLUTION OF THE PALESTINIAN PROBLEM, BUT STRESSED THAT THE PALESTINIAN PROBLEM NATURALLY NEED SOLUTION.

"HOWEVER, THERE IS NO NEED TO OCCUPY KUWAIT FOR THE PURPOSE," HE ADDED.

ASKED IF SAUDI ARABIA WILL ASK THE UNITED STATE TO WITHDRAW ITS TROOPS AFTER THE GULF CRISIS IS RESOLVED, THE MINISTER SAID THAT THESE TROOPS ARE THERE AT THE REQUEST OF THE SAUDI LEADERSHIP, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTION TO ENSURE THE DEFENCE OF HIS COUNTRY AND THAT THESE TROOPS WOULD LEAVE THE COUNTRY "AS SOON AS THEY ARE ASKED TO WITHDRAW" BY THE SAUDI LEADERSHIP.

UNITED NATIONS (SEPT 18) TASS - FOLLOW AN ABSTRACT FROM THE STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL YULI VORONTSOV ON THE OCCASION OF THE INTERNATIONAL DAY OF PEACE:

THE ANNUAL OBSERVANCE OF THE INTERNATIONAL DAY OF PEACE IS A PROPITIOUS OCCASION FOR THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY TO REAFFIRM COGNIZANCE OF ITS COLLECTIVE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE PROMOTION OF PEACE AND GOOD RELATIONS AMONG NATIONS.

THE INTERNATIONAL DAY OF PEACE THIS YEAR IS BEING OBSERVED AT A TIME WHEN SOME OF THE PRINCIPLES OF THE CHARTER STAND AT A CRITICAL TEST.

IN THE COURSE OF THE CURRENT YEAR THE AUTHORITY OF THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION HAS BEEN SUCCESSFULLY INVOKED TO PROMOTE AND CONSOLIDATE PEACEFUL RESOLUTION OF CERTAIN OUTSTANDING INTERNATIONAL CONFLICTS. THAT IS COMMENDABLE.

IN THE COURSE OF THE SAME YEAR, HOWEVER, FLAGRANT BREACHES OF THE PRINCIPLES OF THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER CONTINUE TO BE COMMITTED. THIS POSES A POTENTIAL THREAT TO THE SECURITY OF THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY AS A WHOLE. THE SECURITY COUNCIL IS FULLY COMMITTED TO FINDING PEACEFUL AND FAIR SOLUTIONS TO THESE CONFLICTS.

ACCEPTANCE OF THE OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE CHARTER IS CATEGORICAL AND INCUMBENT UPON EACH AND EVERY MEMBER STATE. THE INTERNATIONAL DAY OF PEACE SHOULD THREFORE SERVE AS A TIMELY REMINDER TO ALL MEMBER STATES TO REDEDICATE THEMSELVES TO THE PRINCIPLES AND PROVISIONS OF THE CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS, WHICH FORM THE BASIS FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF INTERNATIONAL PEACE AND SECURITY.

MOSCOW (SEPT 18) TASS - NONE SPOKE OUT AGAINST THE IDEA OF A MARKET-ORIENTED ECONOMY AT TODAY'S SESSION OF THE USSR SUPREME SOVIET PARLIAMENT WHICH DISCUSSED PLANS FOR PUTTING THE COUNTRY ON A MARKET BASIS. ALL AGREED THAT THERE WAS NO ALTERNATIVE TO THE MARKET, BUT DIFFERED ON THE WAYS OF IMPLEMENTING THE TRANSITION.

NUMBER ONE QUESTION IS, OF COURSE, THAT OF SOCIAL GUARANTEES. NIKOLAI TRAVKIN IN AN EMOTIONAL ADDRESS TO THE PARLIAMENT SAID "THERE IS NO MORE TIME LEFT. THE PEOPLE DEMAND: DO SOMETHING, GET MOVING."

ON THE SHATALIN PLAN, THE DEPUTY SAID THAT "IT IS NOT AN HOUR-BY-HOUR SCHEDULE FOR THE MOVEMENT TOWARDS THE MARKET, BUT IT IS MOVEMENT".

HE EXPLAINED THE HASTY APPROVAL OF THE SHATALIN PLAN BY THE RUSSIAN PARLIAMENT BY THE PRESSURE OF TIME, NOT BY THE DESIRE FOR CONFRONTATION WITH THE CENTRE.

MARSHAL SERGEI AKHROMEYEV VOICED SUPPORT FOR THE TRANSITION TO A MARKET ECONOMY, BUT DEVOTED THE BULK OF HIS SPEECH TO PROBLEMS OF THE SOVIET ARMED FORCES. HE STRESSED THAT "MILITARY DANGER TO THE SOVIET UNION PERSISTS -- NOT AN INVENTED BUT REAL DANGER". AKHROMEYEV BLASTED THE CAMPAIGN TO DISCREDIT THE GOVERNMENT.

DEPUTY VLADIMIR KIRILLOV POINTED TO NUMEROUS SIMILAR COMPONENTS IN THE SHATALIN PLAN AND THE GOVERNMENT PROGRAMME. HE STRESSED THE CENTRAL SIGNIFICANCE OF PRIVATISATION AND CALLED FOR GUARANTEES OF ENTREPRENEURIAL ACTIVITY AND FOREIGN INVESTMENTS.

ACCORDING TO NIKOLAI SAZONOV, THE PROPOSED PLANS HAVE ONE WEEK SPOT IN COMMON -- "THEY FAIL TO REFLECT THE INTERESTS OF THE SPECIFIC INDIVIDUAL". HE ADVOCATED AN EVALUATION OF THE NATIONAL PROPERTY, INCLUDING THE PROPERTY OWNED BY PUBLIC ORGANISATION.

SAZONOV ASKED WHICH SOVIET CITIZENS WILL BE ABLE TO PURCHASE STATE ASSETS IN THE COURSE OF THE SELL-OFF AND ANSWERED THAT ONLY "20 PER CENT OF THE POPULATION HAVE SOME CAPITAL, WHILE THE REST LIVE FROM PAYDAY TO PAYDAY".

ACCORDING TO HIM, THERE ARE 100,000 MILLIONAIRES IN THE SOVIET UNION AT PRESENT.

THE PARLIAMENT CONSIDERED A DRAFT RESOLUTION OF THE USSR SUPREME SOVIET ON GRANTING SPECIAL RIGHTS TO THE SOVIET PRESIDENT FOR THE PERIOD OF THE COUNTRY'S TRANSITION TO MARKET RELATIONS. DEPUTIES REFUSED TO APPROVE THE DRAFT AND DECIDE TO SEND IT BACK TO COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS TO BE FINALISED.

DEPUTY YURI BORODIN ADVOCATED "A GOOD PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN TO ACCOMPANY THE TRANSITION".

TOMORROW AND ON THURSDAY, PARLIAMENT MEMBERS WILL WORK IN COMMITTEES AND COMMISSIONS OF THE USSR SUPREME SOVIET.

(SEPT. 18) UPI - A fuel leak Monday again grounded the shuttle Columbia. Just minutes after fueling began... sensors detected a hydrogen leak in the engine room. NASA then pushed Columbia's flight back to at least October... to give time to launch the shuttle Discovery for what is deemed a more important mission. The delay is the fourth for the Columbia this summer. Three delays were caused by fuel leaks.

Some members of Congress take issue with the administration's proposal to sell 20-Million dollars worth of arms to Saudi Arabia. But lawmakers and other sources said Monday that a direct challenge to the sale is NOT as likely as an attempt to scale it down. Some members intend to question the form that aid takes... as well as to press for more military aid to Israel to retain its edge over potential Arab adversaries.

Geffen Records said Monday that it has canceled its manufacturing and distribution deal with Andrew Dice Clay's label... Def American Recordings. Geffen said it is- ''at odds with Def American's creative philosophy.'' Clay has become the focus of protests because of his abusive remarks toward minorities, gays and women. Geffen previously refused to distribute an album by the rap group Geto Boys.

New York authorities say an inmate of Rikers Island took a female probation officer hostage at a Manhattan court house Monday after being convicted of rape and sodomy. The Correction Department says the 30- year-old convict flattened a mop handle into a makeshift knife while in a court bathroom. He then returned to court and took the woman hostage... and is still holding her more than five hours later.

(SEPT. 18) UPI - A former California state senator was found guilty Monday of racketeering, extortion and conspiracy. Former Senator Paul Carpenter is a current member of the panel that sets taxes in California. He is the second legislator convicted in an F-B-I sting investigation aimed at corruption in Sacremento. As he left the federal courthouse in the capital... a grim-faced Carpenter said- in his words- ''glad hanging isn't an option.''

Newspaper Guild members at the New York Post voted five-to-one Monday to accept layoffs and 20 percent wage cuts to keep the paper alive. One reporter said workers NO longer have a noose around their necks... but now have ''a life sentence.'' Another reporter said the vote was ''very sad.'' Post owner Peter Kalikow insists the cuts are necessary to keep the paper's headlines screaming from newsstands.

(SEPT. 18) UPI - President Bush threatened Monday to veto a bill setting quotas on textiles, apparel and footwear. Bush charges that the bill would violate 38 trade agreements between the United States and other nations. He insists that many of the agreements are ''indispensable'' to efforts to forge an alliance against Iraq for its annexation of Kuwait. The bill is to be considered by the full House Tuesday.

The House voted Monday to establish a memorial to Indians at one of the most famous battlegrounds in the United States... Montana's Little Bighorn. Since 1881... a monument has stood at the site to honor Custer's Last Stand... but there is NO monument to the Native Americans. Democratic Representative Bruce Vento of Minnesota says the monument is needed ''to commemorate the Indians who fought to preserve their land and culture.''

(SEPT. 18) UPI - Jose Rijo is close to achieving one of four personal goals; an aim that his teammates would love to share with him.

The Cincinnati pitcher hurled a two-hitter, while Paul O'Neill smashed a two-run homer and Hal Morris delivered a two-run single, pacing the National League West-leading Reds to a 4-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

''My goals are to pitch in a season-opener, an All-Star game, the playoffs and World Series,'' Rijo said. ''I don't have any of them yet. But I'm feeling good about my playoff goal.''

The victory reduced the Reds' magic number for clinching the National League West to 11 games, as San Francisco suffered its fourth straight loss. Los Angeles remained 5 1-2 games back.

Rijo, 12-7, permitted only a first inning double and a ninth inning single to Kevin Bass as he pitched a career-high fifth complete game and his first shutout of the year.

''It was unbelievable,'' he said. ''I felt so good I don't even believe it myself. I don't think I could feel any better than I did tonight.''

The hard-throwing right-hander, who walked two, retired 12 in a row at one point and 11 straight at another. His 12 strikeouts were a team- high for the season. Rijo came into the game with an 0-5 career mark against the Giants.

''I've been lifting weights and throwing extra to build my shoulder back up,'' he said. ''I feel so strong now I feel almost unbeatable. I think I can throw my fastball by anybody. I was throwing at least 95 miles an hour tonight.''

''I never saw Rijo in trouble,'' San Francisco Manager Roger Craig said. ''He pitched like hell.''

Rick Reuschel pitched two scoreless innings in relief for the Giants, his first appearance since suffering a knee injury May 27.

''He's amazing,'' Craig said of Reuschel. ''He's 41 years old and missed nearly four months because of knee problems, but he pitched tonight like he hadn't missed any time at all.

''It makes you wonder what we could have done this year if we had had him all season.''

In other National League games, San Diego shut out Houston 5-0, and Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 5-2.

In the American League, it was: Boston 7, Baltimore 3; Toronto 6, New York 4; Cleveland 4, Milwaukee 2; Kansas City 1, Minnesota 0; Chicago 7, Oakland 0; and Texas 10, Seattle 4.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Padres 5, Astros 0

At Houston, Bruce Hurst scattered six hits and Roberto Alomar hit a two-run homer to help San Diego eliminate the Astros from the National League West race. Hurst, 10-9, recorded his eighth complete game of the season. Danny Darwin, 11-3, allowed five runs and nine hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Dodgers 5, Braves 2

At Atlanta, Kal Daniels and Eddie Murray each collected three hits and an RBI for Los Angeles. Tim Crews, 4-5, allowed three hits over 5 1- 3 innings. Jay Howell permitted three hits over two innings to notch his 16th save. Charlie Liebrandt, 8-10, took the loss.

DENVER (SEPT. 18) UPI - After John Elway had thrown 10 consecutive incompletions, he needed some help. His wide receiver Vance Johnson provided the relief.

Denver trailed 23-21 with 1:11 left Monday and faced a fourth-and-10 situation on its own 17-yard line. Elway passed 49 yards to Johnson that eventually set up David Treadwell's 22-yard field goal as time expired, lifting the Broncos to a 24-23 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Johnson told Elway in the huddle prior to the big play: ''Hey, throw me the ball.''

Elway then asked Johnson if he could beat Kansas City cornerback Kevin Ross. Eleven seconds later Ross dragged Johnson down on the crucial play.

Five plays later, including Elway's 16-yard completion to Mark Jackson and a 14-yard run by Bobby Humphrey with 25 seconds remaining, Treadwell kicked his game-winner.

''This was a real confidence booster for me,'' Treadwell said. ''I was glad Bobby got me a couple of yards closer on that last kick. This was a must-win for us.''

Steve DeBerg hooked up with Stephone Paige for two TDs, including an 83-yard bomb with 1:44 left in the game to give Kansas City a 23-21 lead. DeBerg also connected on a 16-yard TD pass to Paige, who caught a pass in his 66th consecutive NFL game.

''This was a game where whoever had the ball last was going to win,'' DeBerg said. ''Elway's a great competitor, and that fourth-down play was amazing. That was an all-pro play.''

Humphrey rushed 19 times for 132 yards and two touchdowns to lead the Denver ground attack, scoring on runs of 37 and 6 yards. Elway added a 2-yard TD run as the Broncos evened their record to 1-1.

Nick Lowery kicked field goals of 39, 29 and 31 yards for Kansas City, which fell to 1-1.

Kansas City's star running back Christian Okoye gained only 69 yards in 20 attempts as the Denver defense gang-tackled him.

''Okoye wasn't a really big factor in the game,'' said Karl Mecklenburg, who had a 22-yard fumble recovery. ''He got a lot of carries, but not a lot of yards.''

''It felt good to go out and play well against Christian,'' Humphrey said. ''He's a great back, and I wanted to play well tonight.''

In the first quarter, a short punt by the Broncos' Mike Horan gave the Chiefs possession at the Denver 26, setting up Lowery's 29-yard field goal.

With Kansas City ahead 3-0, Humphrey broke a tackle in the middle, used the back judge to screen off another defender and broke free for a 37-yard TD, his longest scoring run as a pro.

The Chiefs pulled within 7-6 on Lowery's second field goal. DeBerg engineered a 63-yard drive, converting on third-and-10 at his own 26 with an 18-yard completion to Todd McNair.

Denver drove 80 yards on its next possession, 43 yards coming on a flea-flicker from Elway-to-Humphrey-to-Elway and downfield to Johnson. Humphrey's 6-yard burst up the middle gave Denver a 14-6 lead.

KC cornerback Albert Lewis recovered Orson Mobley's fumble at the Denver 43 with 3:15 left to set up Lowery's third field goal. The 31- yard kick cut Denver's lead to 14-9 with 4 seconds remaining in the first half.

''We made so many mistakes in the ball game,'' Denver Coach Dan Reeves said.

''It's a good win for us. It had everything in it, good, bad and ugly.''

''We had too many missed opportunities in the first half,'' DeBerg said. ''We were forced to come away with field goals when we should have had touchdowns. In fact, one time were inside the five and still only got a field goal.''

After Lowery fell short on a 52-yard field goal attempt early in the third quarter, Elway capped a 10-play drive with a quarterback draw. His 30-yard completion to Johnson on third-and-13 kept the 65-yard scoring drive alive.

DeBerg completed passes of 19, 17, 18 and 13 yards during Kansas City's drive to the Denver 20 midway through the fourth quarter. Linebacker Simon Fletcher blindsided DeBerg who fumbled. The 19-yard sack and fumble, coupled with Karl Mecklenburg's fumble return gave Denver possession at the Kansas City 39.

But Denver's offense sputtered when an instant replay review reversed Ricky Nattiel's 10-yard first down catch.

Lewis blocked Horan's punt, his sixth career block. Kevin Porter recovered and returned it to the Denver 17. The Chiefs scored in three plays, with DeBerg hitting Paige for the TD in the west corner of the end zone to pull Kansas City within 21-16.

''There were two very good football teams out there,'' Kansas City Coach Marty Schottenheimer said. ''Neither one of them knows the word quit. That's a real tribute to the men in both locker rooms.''

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) UPI - Share prices fell Tuesday for the fourth day in a row on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, with the market's leading indicator dropping another 2 percent.

Higher oil prices fueled fears of higher interest rates, driving the market down, analysts said.

The key Nikkei average of 225 selected issues, which fell 531.86 points Monday lost an additional 480.78 points to close at 23,884.82.

The broader Tokyo Stock Price Index's plunge accelerated. TOPIX sank 43.86 points to end at 1,816.33 after surrendering 35.49 points the day before.

Volume rose somewhat, but remained well below average. An estimated 400 million shares were traded, compared with 306.29 million Monday.

''The catalyst today was the record high oil prices in New York,'' said Liam Newberg, an analyst with Merrill Lynch, Japan. ''The Persian Gulf crisis is a source of uncertainty, but what is important is oil prices.''

Prices recovered toward the end of trading after the Nikkei hit a new low for the year of 23,308.31 points at 1:18 p.m.

Dealers said this was seen as the bottom and bargain hunting brought prices back up before the close.

All sectors were lower, particularly shipbuilding, large-capital steel, financial and construction.

BANGKOK, Thailand (SEPT. 18) UPI - Anti-government students held protests on the second anniversary of the military takeover of Burma, forcing security troops to fire tear gas at one group of demonstrators, diplomats said Tuesday.

There were reports of small ''hit-and-run'' demonstrations in Rangoon by groups of students who chanted anti-government slogans and then scattered before security forces could respond, said diplomats contacted by telephone from Bangkok.

Government troops patrolled the capital amid tough warnings against demonstrations on the second anniversary of the incidents Sept. 18, 1988, when the military seized power and shot hundreds of pro-democracy demonstrators.

''There is a significant military presence in the city and they have been conducting exercises to apparently intended to intimidate the population,'' said one diplomat.

Official Rangoon radio, in a broadcast Monday night, said protests also broke out Monday at a school in Mandalay, 350 miles north of Rangoon, when a group of former students wielding knives and slingshots interrupted examinations.

''The group, joining force with several students who were waiting for them to create disturbances, flew a flag, chanted slogans, and caused a commotion,'' the radio said.

When security troops arrived at the school, a crowd of about 100 youths hurled stones at them, injuring three security officials, it said.

Diplomatic sources, however, put the number of demonstrators at about 1,500.

''As repeated appeals to disperse fell on deaf ears, the security personnel shot four tear-gas canisters to break up the crowds,'' it said. ''At noon, the situation returned to normal.''

It said several people involved in the dispute have been interrogated and legal action will be taken against them.

The protesters are demanding that the military transfer power to the legislature elected in May.

The military junta, however, has rejected appeals for a rapid return to democracy, saying the elected legislators, when allowed to convene, must first draft a new constitution acceptable to the military. It has given no timetable for the transfer of power and so far has refused to meet with the civilian political parties.

Earlier this month the military arrested the two acting leaders of the National League for Democracy, the party that swept 80 percent of the seats in the elections.

A diplomat said there were signs the military junta planned formal legal action against the two - acting party leader Kyi Maung and party secretary Chit Khaing, who have been accused of disclosing government secrets.

The two, both moderate, retired military officers in their 70s, are the second set of League leaders arrested by the military so far. The charismatic top leaders - Aung San Suu Kyi and Tin U - have been in detention since July 1989.

The military has insisted the 1988 crackdown, which left an estimated 500 to 1,000 demonstrators dead, was necessary to save the country from anarchy.

Since then it has imposed martial law on the country of 40 million people, with military tribunals empowered to hand down sentences including execution for violating tight political restrictions.

TOKYO (SEPT. 18) UPI - Typhoon Flo walloped Japan's southernmost island chain of Okinawa Tuesday, spewing fierce winds and heavy rain that triggered a landslide killing a 78-year-old woman, police said.

News reports said another four people died and three were missing in landslides, but police said they could not confirm the reports.

The typhoon's rains touched off a landslide that crushed the home of the 78-year-old woman, killing her, police said.

The fiercest storm to hit Japan in 31 years halted transportation and knocked out electricity on several islands, officials said.

In Okinawa's capital, Naha, 930 miles south of Tokyo, the powerful winds destroyed neon signs, tore away store-front shutters and tossed bicycles across streets.

Okinawan fishermen struggled to prevent their boats from being smashed against the docks by storm-driven waves.

U.S. military bases throughout Okinawa went on typhoon alert Monday, the military newspaper Stars and Stripes reported. More than 25,000 U.S. military personnel are stationed on Okinawa.

The typhoon was centered 50 miles southeast of Okinawa's main cluster of isles Tuesday morning, and was on a course for Japan's main islands.

Forecasters said the typhoon, with winds of up to 112 mph at its core, would strike the populous island of Kyushu late Tuesday afternoon.

The storm's effects were already being felt on Japan's central island of Honshu, where wind and rain disrupted intercity train service out of Tokyo, stranding as many as 100,000 passengers.

All air traffic to and from Okinawa was halted, leaving 9,500 passengers in the lurch, news reports said.

(SEPT. 18) UPI - Temperatures dipped toward freezing in New England and the mid- Atlantic region, setting records and bringing frost to many rural areas Tuesday, while heavy rain hit Arizona and clouds covered the West.

Thunderstorms hit southwest Kansas with heavy rain reported at Dodge City Airport, but no severe weather was reported.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood warning in west central Arizona, where the Yavapai County sheriff's office reported heavy rains that flooded streets in Bagdad. The storms moved northeast at 20 mph.

The second cold night in a row hit the Northeast Tuesday as temperatures dipped to near record lows in the 30s in some portions of eastern Pennsylvania and western New York state.

The temperature dipped to 37 degrees in Rochester, N.Y., breaking the record of 38 set in 1953, the NWS said.

The thermometer hit 42 degrees at Baltimore-Washington International Airport, tying a 1986 record.

Frost warnings were posted off Lake Erie and Lake Ontario and in south central

New York state and the thermometer hit 46 degrees under clear skies in New York City's Central Park.

More seasonal - and milder - temperatures were not expected until Wednesday, along with increasing cloudiness.

The South enjoyed more clear, pleasant weather with mild temperatures.

The West had warm weather and Southern California had partly cloudy skies. Temperatures dipped into the 40s in the Southern California mountains and clouds covered the Mojave Desert.

LOS ANGELES (SEPT. 18) UPI - A Delta Airlines flight bound for Dallas-Fort Worth returned to Los Angeles International Airport early Tuesday because of a bomb threat written on a bathroom mirror, authorities said.

The Boeing 727 landed safely at 1:24 a.m. and the 101 passengers aboard evacuated the plane without incident, Federal Aviation Administration duty agent Jerry Acosta said.

Delta Flight 996 took off from Los Angeles International Airport about 12:30 a.m. and was scheduled to arrive at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport at 5:16 a.m. a Delta official said.

''Something was written on one of the bathroom mirrors which caused the crew to bring the aircraft back,'' said Sgt. James Miyagishima of the Department of Airports Police.

Los Angeles police were told the note said there might be a bomb aboard the plane, an officer said.
